ANNUAL REPORT ON INLAND EMIGRATION FOR 1879 80

CENTRAL DEPARTMENT—INLAND EMIGRATION

Calcutta the 10th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The Report on Inland Emigration for the year 1879 80

The report is submitted by Dr J G Grant, who was Superintendent of Emigration throughout the year. It is sufficiently full as regards matters, and the new arrangement of subjects adopted is approved by the Lieutenant Governor, and should be followed in future reports. But due care has not been taken to avoid minor discrepancies in the figures. Thus in paragraph 9 the number of coolies accommodated in the Calcutta depôts is given as 12,591, while the tables at pages 11 and 26 show that 12,278 is the correct figure. Again, in the table at page 14 the number remaining in depôt at the close of 1878 79 is shown as 801 instead of 783, the correct figure, as explained at page 11. Other discrepancies are pointed out below.

2 The first section of the report gives a brief but intelligible review of various important administrative questions in connection with the working of the Department, which came under the consideration of Government during the year, such as, the action taken for the encouragement of free emigration, the restriction of the powers of the Medical Inspector at Goalundo to ascertaining whether the emigrants are fit for the voyage, the report of the Calcutta Medical Inspector being accepted as final on the question of their fitness for labour, the arrangements made for an improved water supply on board the steamers, and for securing more careful inspection of the emigrants en route, the strengthening of the medical staff on board, and the enquiries made into the causes of cholera among labourers in transit. Reference is made to the proposals put forward by Messrs Schöene, Kilburn and Company and other agency houses for transferring the provisioning of the emigrants to the Steamer Companies, who should also provide for their medical care and treatment, a matter upon which the Lieutenant Governor has now passed final orders conceding all that the firms in question asked for. Dr Grant also sets forth at some length his views upon the complaints made of the importation into Assam of an inferior type of coolies. This is a subject upon which the Lieutenant Governor has recently passed separate orders. He found himself unable to accept fully the view that no blame could in such cases be attached to the Labour Transport Department. As the law stands, the Medical Inspector in Calcutta is bound to satisfy himself of the coolies' fitness for labour, and the number and nature of the complaints from the tea districts left no doubt on the Lieutenant Governor's mind, or on that of the Chief Commissioner, that at times the medical examination had not been sufficiently careful, though it would seem that, during the past year, greater strictness has been exercised, probably as a result of the complaints made and enquiries ordered. It is, as Sir Stuart Bayley remarked in reviewing Dr Grant's letter on the subject, desirable in the interests of the planters that the Medical Inspector should make his examination lenient on the whole, but while the responsibility of selection legally lies on him, it must be made sufficiently searching to detect cases of such diseases as leprosy, insanity, and blindness. It is not likely that serious maladies of this kind, some of them of a constitutional type should only show their first symptoms on the way to the garden, and be found fully developed on arrival there after a journey of only two or three weeks. At the same time the Lieutenant Governor has expressed to the Government of India his entire concurrence with the view taken by the Chief Commissioner of Assam, that the responsibility of selecting physically fit labourers ought not to rest upon any Government officer, but on the agents and representatives of the employers. The duty of the Government officers should be confined to seeing that the emigrants are in a fit state to travel without immediate danger to themselves and without being a source of danger to the public, to their fellow voyagers, or to the populations among whom they are about to sojourn. The best mode of amending the Act upon this and other points, especially with a view to making recruiting more easy, and the supply of labour to the tea districts generally less expensive, will, the Lieutenant Governor hopes, be carefully considered by the Commission representing all the interests concerned, the appointment of which during the present cold season has been sanctioned by the Government of India.

3 Section II of the report treats of the recruiting agencies at work during the year. The number of contractors holding licenses was 16 against 20 of the year preceding. But of the 16, four did not renew their licenses on their expiry in the course of the year, and two gave up business, thus reducing the number of working contractors to ten. Of these, six are general contractors ready to supply labourers to any firm or garden who may order them, and four are special contractors working only on behalf of particular firms and agencies interested in tea. Dr Grant observes that the system of recruitment through special contractors appears to be gaining ground.

4 The number of recruiters' licenses granted was 618 against 558 in the previous year more than half the number being issued to three of the general contractors—Messrs Andrews, Hendry, and Harvey. The percentage of licenses cancelled during the year fell to 1.94 from 3.4 in 1878-79, a very marked and satisfactory improvement, showing that the pressure put upon contractors to supervise their recruiters more closely has not been without effect.

5 The number of certificates granted to garden sirdars by employers in Assam, as notified to the Superintendent of Emigration in Calcutta, amounted to 2,207. But of these only 310 authorised the holders to recruit not more than 20 labourers and take them to the gardens direct (class C labourers), while 1,897 authorised the recruitment of more than 20 labourers, to be passed through contractors' depôts (class B labourers) Direct recruiting by garden sirdars in the manner contemplated by the Act is therefore, as has been noticed in former reports, clearly in disfavour at present, and the causes of this are stated by the Superintendent of Emigration to be these In the first place, if coolies are wanted quickly in considerable bodies, a large number of sirdars, limited to 20 recruits each, would have to be sent out to find them, and the gardens cannot spare these men, next, it is found that sirdars left without guidance and control are not to be depended on, either for their zeal in procuring labourers, or their honesty in respect of the funds in their hands, while, lastly, it appears that the Agents prefer to see and pass the recruits in Calcutta before incurring the expense of sending them up to the gardens The Lieutenant Governor is disposed to think that some means might easily be devised for controlling and superintending the operations of garden sirdars in the recruiting districts, and if so, the number of coolies that each sirdar may engage might be materially increased without objection This is a matter on which the Commission, referred to in previous paragraph, will probably be able to advise effectively

6 The total number of emigrants registered (exclusive of the number registered for Dhubri) was 13,550 against 28,151 in 1878 79 The numbers under each class compare thus—

	1878 79	1879 80
Class A (contractors coolies)	13 795	7,601
, B (sirdari coolies, to be passed through depôts)	11 917	4 625
C (sirdari coolies to go direct)	2 439	1 324
Total	28 151	13 550

The registrations were less than half those of 1878 79, and the reduction is most marked in the case of B class emigrants In the Assam Reports the falling off is no doubt rightly attributed to good harvests in the recruiting districts, which made the labouring classes unwilling to emigrate, to the reluctance of managers to accept up country labourers, and in some measure to the more economical working of gardens consequent upon the fall in the price of tea The supply of labour was, however, undoubtedly short of the real demand

7 The divisions of Bengal, from which these emigrants were drawn, were these—

NAME OF DIVISION	CLASS B LABOURERS
	Passed through Calcutta depôt		Sent direct to gardens	Sent to gardens through depôt	Total
	A	B	A + B	C
Burdwan	1 901	2 4	90	70	2 31

Patna	1 696	700	82	466	2 820
Bhagulpore	431	231	7	90	767

Chota Nagpore	2 300	2 940	244	142	6 026
Orissa		11			11
Total	7 560	4 213	423	1 324	13 550

* Including labourers registered at G. L. and Furreedpore in the Dacca District (N. B.)

The percentage of coolies registered in the Chota Nagpore Division was less than in 1878 79, thus—

	1878-79	1879 80
Of class A	50	2 98
, B	26	2 05
, C	7 11	5 76

There can be no doubt that Chota Nagpore has already supplied the tea districts with as much labour as it can itself spare It is to Behar that the gardens must chiefly look for their labour in future, and the Lieutenant Governor believes with the Chief Commissioner that, if a proper system of rationing newly imported labourers were generally adopted, the Behari immigrants would thrive quite as well as the much sought for inhabitants of wilder districts. The one great object which should be now kept in view is to facilitate communication between the districts in which there is a large surplus population and the tea districts. When the difficulties of the journey are overcome, and transit made easy and cheap the people will, it is to be hoped, in time move themselves without State interference. Dr Grant also suggests, in the first section of his report, that planters would find it greatly to their advantage to substitute Indian corn for rice, as the staple of diet, in the case of up country coolies, and urges that the coolies themselves should be encouraged to grow that cereal.

8 The following statement shows the casualties to emigrants transmitted through the Calcutta depôts from registration to their arrival at Goalundo —

	Class A	Class B	Total
Number registered in recruiting districts	7,560	4,243	11 803
Number detained discharged deserted and died before arrival in depôt	226	87	313
Arrived in depôt	7 334	4 156	11,490
Remaining in depôt from previous year	254	29	783
Born in depôt	4	1	5
Total number in depot	7 592	4,686	12 278
Rejected, discharged, deserted or died	1,400	624	2 024
Remaining in depôt at close of year	152	166	318
Number despatched to labour districts	6 040	3 896	9 936
Number despatched to Goalundo	5,779	3 817	9,596
Ditto ditto to Assam via Dhubri	118	51	172
Number despatched to Chittagong	143	2	168
Deserted or died on way to Goalundo	3		3
Arrived at Goalundo	5 776	3,817	9 593

9 From the details given by the Superintendent of Emigration, it appears that the percentage of rejections in depôt at Calcutta was much larger than in the previous year —

	1878 79		1879 80
	A	B	A	B
Emigrants	2 62	1 39	7 23	3 03
Dependents	1 25	1 03	1 81	0 83
Total	3 90	2 42	9 06	3 86

This is accounted for partly by the difficulty of procuring labourers owing to the prosperous harvests of the year, which led to the recruitment of unfit persons, and partly to greater strictness in the medical inspections. The health of the coolies in depôt was remarkably good, comparing thus with the figures of 1878 79

	1 78 79		1879 80
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
Deaths from cholera	468	1 76	53	0 43
Total deaths	602	2 27	82	0 46

The improvements in the water supply and sanitary arrangements of the depôts have no doubt largely contributed to the favourable result, though it is to be observed that the year itself was exceptionally free from cholera. The regular bi weekly despatch of labourers has also reduced the risks of detention in depôt. But the Lieutenant Governor hopes soon to see the majority of the labourers passing from the recruiting districts direct by rail to Dhubri without passing through Calcutta at all 10 Section III of the report deals with the statistics of transport by all routes. The number of emigrants selecting each of the five possible routes to places of embarkation for Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet, is shown below for the last two years —

	1878 79	1879 80
(1) Via Calcutta to Goalundo	21 511	9 593 } *
(2) Via Mugra and Kanchrapara to Goalundo	1 034	491 }
(3) Via Calcutta to Dhubri	1 186	172 }
(4) Via Mugra and Kanchrapara to Dhubri	4 805	7 069 } †
(5) Via Rajmehal to Dhubri	4 426	794 }
Total	32 992	19 119

* The figures are those of arrivals at Goalundo

† These figures are those of arrivals at Dhubri

It is satisfactory to find that the direct route to Dhubri, via Mugra Kanchrapara and the Northern Bengal State Railway, is becoming extensively used by sirdari coolies, and that the long road journey by Rajmehal has practically been abandoned. Facilities for the transport of emigrants by this route have lately been afforded by a system of through booking by the East Indian Railway, Eastern Bengal Railway, and Northern Bengal Railway.

11 To Chittagong 168 emigrants and dependents were despatched from Calcutta by steamer, all of whom arrived safely.

12 The returns of the Goalundo Superintendent of Emigration on page 15 show that 9,593 emigrants arrived there from Calcutta depôts, 5,776 being of Class A and 3,817 of Class B. Forty one labourers of Class A and 382 of Class B, or 423 in all, were registered for Goalundo depôts in the district of recruitment, and of these 406 arrived, 17 of the B coolies having deserted, or, as was suspected, been fraudulently made over by their sirdars to contractors or others. Besides these, 85 sirdari coolies of Class C arrived for embarkation, making a grand total of arrivals at Goalundo of 10,084. In the table at page 14, the number of arrivals is given as 10,089 but that figure includes two remaining in depôt (one being a birth in depôt apparently) from the previous year, and three lost on the way to Goalundo from Calcutta. In the body of the report, however, the number of arrivals is given as 10,068, and all the subsequent deductions are made from this latter figure. From the 10,068 persons assumed in the report as the number of arrivals, the Superintendent of Emigration deducting 88 on account of casualties at Goalundo and 117 as left behind at the close of the year, and adding two on account of the balance of the previous year, gives 9,865 as the number of persons actually embarked at Goalundo for the labour districts. These figures do not altogether agree with those given in the tables at pages 26, 27 and 30. There it appears that 10,001 A and B class emigrants were accommodated in the Goalundo depôts, the number of casualties was 140 in all, and 81 remained in depôt at the close of the year, while 9,780 were embarked for Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet. Adding to these 85 C class emigrants despatched, we get the total of 9,865 embarked at Goalundo. Of these, 6,333 embarked for Assam, 2,999 for Cachar, and 533 for Sylhet. More care should be taken by the Superintendent to see that the figures of all the tables and statements in the report agree together.

13 At Goalundo the number of deaths is returned at 42, or 0.41 per cent of strength, desertions at 20, or 0.19 per cent, and rejections at 25, or 0.24 per cent. The desertions were all among sirdari coolies, and the honesty of the sirdars was, as already noted, suspected. The death rate was an improvement on that of last year (0.76 per cent), but the year itself was a specially favourable one as regards cholera. The Superintendent of Emigration remarks that the emigration of whole families seems to be still increasing, judging from the high percentage of infants and children, no less than 2,295 (23.26 per cent) of the 9,865 embarked being children, and 640, or 6.39 per cent, infants. The total was made up by 3,983 (40.37 per cent) men and 2,947 (29.87 per cent) women.

14 Sixteen licensed steamers were employed in conveying emigrants to Assam. The statistics of the voyages compare favourably with those of previous years, thus—

	1876 77	1877 78	1878 79	1879 80
Total number of trips	71	63	75	71

The Superintendent of Emigration gives the statistics of mortality and average duration of voyage for each steamer as follows —

The sirdar coolies suffered most from cholera during the passage, and those who had not passed through depôts more than those who had, thus—

Percentage of deaths
Of native coolies class A	50 3 from cholera
	0 other cause
Of sirdar coolies (passed through depôts) class B	1 16 cholera
	0 65 other causes
(Not passed through depôts) class C	1 17 cholera
	3 52 other causes

If the aggregate number of emigrants conveyed in steamers during the year be grouped into men, women, children, and infants, the percentage of deaths for each group is found to be—

Men	0 97
Women	1 50
Children	1 2
Infants	1 1

15 For Cachar 1,112 of the A class, and 1,887 of the B class of emigrants embarked at Goalundo in country boats, or 2,999 persons in all (No C coolies went up by boat to Cachar). During the passage five absconded, and 93, or 3 10 per cent, died. The total of deaths in the table at page 27 is erroneous, 87 deaths being due to cholera and six to other causes. The rate of mortality, though much higher than that on the Assam route, was somewhat lower than in 1878 79, when the percentage was 3 98.

16 For Sylhet 337 A class coolies and 196 B class, or 533 in all, embarked at Goalundo, being nearly twice as many as in 1878 79 There were no desertions, and three deaths on the voyage, two from cholera

17 The following statement shows in a summary form how the total number of emigrants to be accounted for during 1879 80 were disposed of by the end of the year —

Via Calcutta, Goalundo and other Routes

CLASS	Number registered	By the sea	By the river	Total	Of the total	Percentage	Route by which forwarded	Total number at destination	Number lost	REMARKS

							Odisha	415 Sylhet
Total	13550	5	482	14037	246	1.75		111	314

So far as the Superintendent's information goes, the percentage of losses from all causes among the different classes stood thus—

PERCENTAGE OF		1879 80			1878 79
Deaths	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.51	1.40	0.00	0.00
Discharges	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.01	4.8	4.8	0.00

Deaths	1.00	1.00	1.00	1.00	1.7	3.07	1.00
Rejections	3.37	2.14	2.14	9.11	4.1

The rejections for physical unfitness were, as already noticed, much more numerous than in previous years,—a fact which is believed to have influenced also the number of desertions and discharges among B class coolies, whole gangs declining to proceed when one of their number has been rejected as medically unfit

18 The results of emigration through Dhubri form the subject of a separate report submitted to the Chief Commissioner of Assam by the Superintendent of Emigration at that place For the purpose, however, of giving a complete view of inland emigration operations, Dr Grant has reproduced the principal facts in Section IV of his report, from which the following extracts are here made —

The Dhubri route for immigration into Assam was opened up in 1877 76 and has consequently been in use for the last five years with the following results as to the aggregate number of emigrants embarked and marched up from Dhubri —

1875 76	1876 77	1877 78	1878 79	1879 80
2838	3719	9670	10270	7957

"There has thus been a steady increase in the flow of emigrants along that route, and though the number that was forwarded last year fell short of that of the previous year 1878-79 by 2313 this decrease was due to other causes in no way affecting the preference for this route in connection with the despatch of coolies to the tea districts of Assam. For, comparing the year's shipments to Assam from Goalundo and Dhubri respectively the number forwarded from the latter place exceeded that from the former by fully 1,624 souls.

The results of the operations of the last two years may be summarised as follows —

First as to emigrants embarked at Dhubri—

	1879-80	1878-79
Registered originally for Dhubri	6 695	6 625
Arrived from Calcutta	1,2	861
Born on journey to Assam	5	6
Balance of previous year	33
Total	6 905	7 492
Total casualties en route	364	666
Arrived at destination	6 541	6 826
Next, as to emigrants marched up from Dhubri—
Registered originally for Dhubri	1 441	3 340
Arrived from Calcutta		325
Born on journey to Assam		1
Balance of previous year	1
Total	1 442	3 666
Total casualties en route	26	222
Arrived at destination	1 416	3 444
GRAND TOTAL	7 957	10 270

From a consideration of the above summarised statement the following facts seem clear —

- 1st — That the accommodation of coolies for Assam is being provided for more largely at Dhubri than at Calcutta for only one fifth of the number of coolies sent in 1878-79 left the Calcutta depôts for Dhubri the larger number having presumably proceeded direct from the recruiting districts.
- 2nd — That the employers of labour deterred by the heavy percentage (6.05) of casualties in 1878-79 among coolies on the march to the tea districts, have decided in favour of shipping them in lieu of marching them up.
- 3rd — That the efforts of Government in co-operation with the Assam Administration towards the reduction of mortality and other casualties among emigrants proceeding to the labour districts of Assam have met with considerable success, for whereas the percentage of casualties in 1878-79 amounted to 7.9, that of the year under review fell to 4.6.

The decrease of mortality both at Dhubri and on the passage is a marked feature in the history of emigration through Dhubri in 1879-80 and though the year has undoubtedly been exceptionally healthy the increased care of the emigrants on the journey, whether by land or railway or steamer inaugurated under the protective measures adopted by Government and the Assam Administration has as surely contributed towards attaining such gratifying results.

19 The Lieutenant Governor desires to acknowledge the care and conscientiousness with which Mr Grant continues to conduct his duties as Superintendent of Inland Emigration.

ANNUAL REPORT ON COLONIAL EMIGRATION

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—COLONIAL EMIGRATION

Calcutta, the 12th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The Report of the Protector of Emigrants for 1879 80

The report is submitted by Dr J G G Grant, who was Protector throughout the year

2 In the opening section of the report the Protector notices the more important administrative questions in connection with the working of colonial emigration which came under consideration during the year. Various amendments of the rules and scales were proposed and received the general approval of the Government of India, but their publication was postponed pending the amendment of the Act (VII of 1871), which has also been decided upon. Dr Grant refers at some length to complaints made by the Emigration Agents of difficulties thrown in the way of the recruitment of women, especially in the districts of the North Western Provinces and Oudh. The enquiries instituted showed that, although in some few cases the registering officers had placed an unduly stringent construction on the orders of Government regarding the careful scrutiny of the cases of women brought up for registration in districts other than their own, in most instances any delays or difficulties arising were entirely due to the irregular or illegal action of the recruiters concerned. If the Emigration Agents keep a strict surveillance over their recruiters and subordinate agents, and employ only thoroughly respectable men in both capacities, no real obstacles will be found to lie in their way, beyond the natural difficulty of inducing people to come forward as emigrants when they are fairly comfortable at home.

3 There were nine agencies at work during the year, viz those for Mauritius, Demerara, Trinidad, Jamaica, St Lucia, St Vincent (all British), Surinam (Dutch), and Guadeloupe (French). Those for Natal and Fiji were closed, but that for St Vincent re-opened after having been closed since 1874 75. The Protector acknowledges the ready manner in which all the agents co-operated with him, and specially mentions the constant efforts of Mr Mitchel (the Agent for Trinidad and three other colonies), to prevent irregularities and carry out suggestions.

4 The following table shows the demand of the colonies for emigrants during the last two years, and the manner in which it was met —

Total	13 045	16 224	1 94	9 836	10 24	11 834

No material change took place in the terms offered by the several colonies to intending emigrants.

The number of women to be adjusted by the method of regulating the proportion of males to females is as follows:—

The numbers coming into depôt were 5,882 less than in 1878 79 The percentage of rejections was 5 18 against 8 45—a satisfactory improvement The releases on application were on the other hand 1 04 per cent against 0 56, while desertions were 2 59 per cent against 2 93 The death rate was 0 29 against 0 51, the depôts being fairly healthy throughout the year An outbreak of cholera in the Jamaica depôt caused six of the 38 deaths, but it was speedily checked and did not spread But for an exceptionally heavy mortality among infants, the results of the year would have been still more favourable The average period of detention in depôt was less than one month, except in the case of the Guadeloupe depôt, where some sufferers from measles in September had to be detained for the second shipment in December

8 The North Western Provinces and Oudh supplied 7,974 of the total number of souls embarked, and Bchar 1,740, the rest coming from Central India (339), Bengal (303), the Punjab (139), and other provinces

9 The number of return emigrants re-emigrating has grown year by year from 172 in 1875 76 to 629 in the year under review Of these last, 283 went to Demerara and 195 to Trinidad, 64 to Mauritius, 44 to Surinam, 35 to the French Colonies, and 7 to Jamaica It appears from the Mauritius Immigration report that return immigrants are looked upon with great disfavour in that island

10 The rule prescribing the despatch of at least 40 women to every hundred men was practically complied with, there being only 2 women short sent to Demerara and one to Surinam at the close of the year all other agencies having made up their complement The number of women sent to Mauritius was as high as 51 04 per cent on the number of men, and to St Vincent 48 39 per cent The Labor Ordinance of Mauritius requires the high proportion of 50 women to every 100 male emigrants

11 The whole of the emigrants were sent in sailing vessels, 23 being chartered in all, and the average number of emigrants in each vessel being 449 as against 444 in 1878 79 Reports have not yet been received regarding four of the vessels, but in all the other cases the results were satisfactory, the highest death rate being 2 61 against 4 46 in the previous year No cholera broke out on any of the vessels The Lieutenant Governor observes, from the report of the Protector of Immigrants to Mauritius for 1879, that the mortality at sea is much higher in the case of emigrants from Calcutta than it is in despatches from Madras The rate stood thus for the last four years—

	1876	1877	1878	1879
Calcutta	3 9	10 6	7 9	5 9
Madras	No arrivals	2 3	1 9	1 3

This is a point deserving of careful enquiry, and the Lieutenant Governor desires that the Protector will report upon it, after consulting medical officers who may have sailed with emigrants from both ports, and referring to the Madras local authorities and the Emigration Agents in Madras and Calcutta

12 The following statement gives particulars of the return emigrants of the year —

COLONIES	N mb f h p	N mbe f l	Average pe t g of t lity		SAVINGS

The numbers returning were 1,131 more than in 1878 79, and 1,854 more than in 1877 78 In no case was the mortality on the return passage excessive, considering that many of the coolies came back in poor health Besides the above, 189 coolies returned by French mail steamers from Reunion with savings averaging Rs 54 1 5 per man

RESOLUTION ON THE GENERAL REPORT ON PUBLIC INSTRUCTION FOR THE YEAR 1879 80

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION

Calcutta the 12th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The General Report of Public Instruction in Bengal for 1879 80

THE final orders of the Government of India regarding the introduction in Bengal of the new forms of educational returns were not received in time to admit of their adoption in this report. The Director has, however, supplemented the old forms by a second set of tables drawn up according to the new forms, though differing from them in certain particulars in which information was not available.

GENERAL SUMMARY

2 In the Resolution of Government on the report of the Director of Public Instruction for 1878 79, it was noticed that, for the first time since the Department was constituted, the contribution from private sources to the total cost of education had exceeded the amount of the Government grant. During the year 1879 80 the proportion of the Government expenditure has been still further reduced, namely from $17\frac{1}{2}$ to 46 per cent. Of the cost of collegiate education, the Government share has fallen from $52\frac{1}{2}$ to $51\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, or, if University charges be added, all of which fall on the candidates, from 44 to below 43 per cent. In secondary education the Government share has fallen from 35 to $34\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, and in primary education from $28\frac{1}{2}$ to $25\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Of the cost of special instruction the Government share is naturally much higher amounting to 82 per cent. These figures refer only to those colleges and schools which receive aid from the State. If the expenditure incurred in the maintenance of unaided institutions be taken into account, the proportion of the Government expenditure to the total cost will be very much less.

3 The following table shows the expenditure of the year from returns furnished by the Accountant General —

Budget of Expenditure	Estimated at 1879 80	Actual 1879 80
	Rs	Rs
Direction and inspection	3,91 000	4 27 604
Government colleges and madrasahs	4 66 000	4 46 817
Government schools	6 14 000	6,07 065
Grants in aid and assignments—
For secondary and superior instruction	1 50 000	4 19 226
For primary instruction	4 00 000	3 88 636
Scholarships	1, 56 000	1 16 155
Miscellaneous	46 000	37,657
Total	21,23,000	24 73,160
Less receipts	4 50 000	4 50 745
Net Government expenditure	20 73 000	20 22 415

The sanctioned estimates of expenditure for the year amounted to Rs 25,23,000, the actual expenditure was Rs 24,73,000. The receipts passing through the Government treasuries amounted to Rs 4,50,000, a sum in close accordance with the estimates. The actual net Government expenditure amounted to Rs 20,22,415, against Rs 20,73,000 estimated, a saving of more than Rs 50,000 having thus been effected. Adding the cost of medical education, which is provided for in the estimates of the Medical Department, the departmental returns show that, out of a total expenditure of Rs 47,68,000 in all Government and aided institutions, the cost incurred by Government amounted to Rs 21,97,000. In the previous year the total cost of education in connection with schools and colleges receiving aid from the State was Rs 45,45,000, and the share borne by Government was Rs 21,72,000. The Government expenditure has therefore increased by only Rs 25,000, while the expenditure from private sources has increased by Rs 1,98,000. The only head under which the expenditure of the Department has exceeded the sanctioned estimates is that of "Direction and Inspection," and this is explained as being due for the most part to the appointment of three Assistant Inspectors for the divisions of Bhagulpore, Chittagong, and Chota Nagpore, after the estimates had been framed.

4 The subjoined table shows the total number of schools of all kinds from which returns have been received, and of the pupils reading in them, at the close of the years 1878-79 and 1879-80. Excluding unaided patshalas, tols, and maktabas, which read for no departmental standards and lie outside the Government system, organized instruction shows an increase in round numbers of 6,000 schools and 100,000 pupils. The schools in this table are classified according to the nature of their income, as Government, aided, or unaided —

CLASS OF INSTITUTION	1878-79		1879-80
	Schools	Pupils	Schools	Pupils
Government schools and colleges	407	29,133	301	29,332
Grant-in-aid	1,617	83,781	1,708	88,005
Circle grant	287	11,917	290	12,350
Primary grant	21,314	489,188	30,411	582,992
Unaided schools and colleges	6,613	111,038	6,613	106,146
Total	33,278	1,27,107	33,370	81,030

5 The loss of six Government schools is thus explained. The survey school at Hooghly and the two Normal schools of Purneah and Durbhunga have been closed, while the Dohree Training school has been merged in the new Engineering College at Howrah. A law school has been opened at the Rajshahyee College, the Anglo-Hindi school at Darjeeling has been converted into a Government school, and a school has been opened at Kurseong for the children of Europeans employed on State Railways. In addition to the net loss of one school here shown, there have been minor changes among Government vernacular schools of the middle and lower class, some of which have been converted into aided schools.

6 The number of grant-in-aid schools shows a certain increase (31), but the Director explains that this increase does not fully measure the result of the year's operations. In nearly all cases grants are reduced at each renewal, and in this way a considerable sum of money is set free every year for the purpose of aiding new schools. Besides the fact that 31 more schools have been aided than received grants in the previous year, the expenditure for the year upon grants-in-aid has been reduced by nearly Rs 12,000, and this sum, together with the other savings on the total grant-in-aid allotment of Rs 4,50,000, amounting in all to more than Rs 30,000, is available for aiding other new schools as opportunities arise. The 31 schools above referred to represent the excess of new grants sanctioned over old grants cancelled, and the Director's report shows that the active measures which were referred to in the Resolution upon the last report, as having been taken against inefficient schools, were maintained with the best results during the year under report.

7 The object of the circle grant, which provides peripatetic head teachers for each circle of two or three primary schools of the better class, is the gradual elevation of these schools to the middle standard at a comparatively small cost. The grant has accordingly been declared to belong to the field of secondary education, and its administration has been transferred from the hands of the Magistrate to those of the Circle Inspector. The total number of schools thus provided with teachers remains nearly the same as in the previous year, but schools of the middle class have increased from 106 to 116, and lower class schools from 92 to 114, while the number of primary schools has fallen from 89 to 60. The amount of the grant

(Rs 22,000) having been unaltered, the general advance in the standard attained by these schools shows that it has been well laid out in the promotion of its special objects

8 The number of schools aided from the primary grant of Rs 4,00,000 has increased from 24,354 to 30,414, and the number of pupils reading in them from 489,518 to 582,992. At the close of the year 1876-77, the number of schools aided from the primary grant was 14,000 with 360,000 pupils. In three years therefore the number of aided schools has increased by more than 100 per cent, and the number of pupils by more than 50 per cent. The increase is due to the constant development of the system of payment by results in place of that of fixed stipends. That the increase in the number of pupils does not keep pace with that in the number of schools arises from the fact that, while the stipendiary system confined itself to aiding the larger and more successful schools, the method which has now replaced it offers encouragement to large and small schools alike, and thus the system gradually extends its influence to schools with no more than 12 or 15 pupils. The same inference may be drawn from the statistics of unaided primary schools, which show a constantly decreasing average in the number of their pupils. The number of unaided schools supplying returns is 6,266 with 76,145 pupils, while, in the previous year, it was 6,237 with 84,196 pupils. In 1877 the average number of pupils in an unaided primary school was 18—it is now 12—a fact which indicates that all the larger indigenous schools are being taken up year by year into the primary system of education.

CONTROLLING AGENCIES

9 The appointment of Joint or Assistant Inspectors of Schools in the divisions of Burdwan, Bhagalpore, Chota Nagpore, Chittagong, and Orissa continues to be attended with good results. The rapid extension within the last few years of the system of primary education had made such large demands upon the time of inspecting officers as to leave them little opportunity for the supervision of secondary schools, and the decline in the standard of middle schools had been the subject of repeated representations. The area of an Inspector's circle is too large to enable him to exercise any but a general supervision over the secondary schools contained in it, and the appointment of Assistant Inspectors, whose duty it is to see and report and to carry out his orders, have greatly increased the efficiency of his control over the schools. The Director states that the Joint and Assistant Inspectors have done excellent work during the past year, and have furnished careful and valuable reports of their work, which is chiefly, though not exclusively, concerned with secondary education. The prospects of secondary education have been still further improved by the declaration made in the Resolution of Government upon the last annual report on public instruction that "the proper duties of Deputy Inspectors are—(1) the immediate personal inspection of secondary schools, (2) the general supervision of primary education through the agency of Sub Inspectors." In most districts the system of primary instruction has now passed the experimental stage, and the Sub Inspectors are in general men of considerable experience. The attention of the Deputy Inspector can therefore be safely directed to the supervision of secondary schools to a greater extent than was formerly advisable, and his responsibility for the condition of those schools can in consequence be much more clearly enforced. As regards the supervision of primary education, the number of Sub Inspectors is in several divisions quite unequal to the duty of visiting each school, but it is found that the system of collecting and examining groups of patshalas at fixed centres gives equally satisfactory results.

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

10 The abolition of the college classes, which were experimentally attached in 1877 to the Rungpore school has reduced the number of Government colleges to eleven. The Northern Bengal State Railway made it easy for matriculated students from Rungpore to go elsewhere for the further prosecution of their studies, and the Rajshahye College has become the natural centre of high education for the whole division. Of the eleven colleges that now exist, seven teach the full course for the B A degree These are the Presidency, Hooghly, Kishnaghur, Dacca, Patna Rajshahye, and Cuttack Colleges To the last named College the Maharajah of Mohurbhunj has given a donation of Rs 20,000 as the nucleus of a permanent endowment, and at his request its name has been changed to "Ravenshaw College," in commemoration of Mr Ravenshaw's services as Commissioner of Orissa Four colleges of the second grade teach only to the First Arts standard—these are the Sanskrit, Berhampore, Midnapore, and Chittagong Colleges During the course of the year much discussion took place upon the question of maintaining the Berhampore College In deference to the strongly expressed wishes of the inhabitants of the district, and in consideration of the history and achievements of the College in former years, the Lieutenant Governor finally decided to retain it and appointed Mr W B Livingstone to be its Principal Besides the Government colleges abovenamed, there are six aided colleges, all in Calcutta, of which the General Assembly's institution, with 361 students, is not only the largest in Bengal—the Presidency College coming next with 36 students—but has a larger roll number than any college has shown for the last five years There are three unaided colleges, of which LaMartiniere in Calcutta and the Baptist Mission College at Scrampore, have four and nine students respectively, while the Metropolitan Institution of Calcutta has still further increased the number of its students from 248 to 328

11 The total number of students in all colleges has risen from 1,963 to 2,080, of whom 1,086 are in Government colleges, 673 in aided, and 341 in unaided colleges The Director's report shows that the demand for collegiate education is steadily rising It appears that 96 per cent of those who passed the matriculation examination in December 1879 were admitted to colleges in the following session, a larger proportion than has yet been known And, as was noticed last year, practically all who pass the First Arts Examination continue to read for their degree, and about half those who obtain a degree attempt the standard for honours The total expenditure upon collegiate education has increased from Rs 4,40,777 in 1878-79 to Rs 4,50,290 in 1879-80, more than four fifths of the increased cost having been contributed from private sources Of the whole expenditure, Rs 2,34,782 were paid by Government, and Rs 2,15,513 from fees and subscriptions The candidates at the various examinations of the University also paid a further sum of Rs 68,000 in fees The average cost of each student in Government colleges has risen from Rs 316 to Rs 326, of which Rs 213 were paid from State funds and Rs 113 from fees and subscriptions The increase was chiefly due to the fact that the number of students in the calendar year 1879 was somewhat less than in 1878 The cost of each student to Government varied from Rs 60 in the Rajshahye and Rs 78 in the Midnapore College, both of which are supported by ample endowments, to Rs 538 in the Sanskrit College and Rs 750 at Berhampore The cost of each student in the Presidency College was Rs 187 from Government, against Rs 148 from private sources In aided colleges each student cost the State Rs 42 while Rs 179 were contributed from fees, endowments, and subscriptions

12 Some improvement was shown in the number of successful candidates at the various examinations of the University For the First Arts Examination 864 candidates appeared and 261 passed, or 30 per cent against 27 per cent in the previous year From Government Colleges 33 per cent of the candidates passed, from other institutions 28 per cent The Presidency College passed 43 per cent of its candidates, the Patna and Hooghly Colleges 31 and 29 per cent respectively, and the Kishnaghur, Dacca, and Rajshahye Colleges from 25 to 23 per cent It is to be regretted that the proportion of candidates passing from mofussil colleges is not higher at the same time allowance may be made for the fact that the absence of officers on furlough has reduced the establishment of several colleges below the requisite strength, and has compelled the Government to resort to temporary arrangements for carrying on their work An application has now been made to the Government of India for a small permanent addition to the number of graded officers, which the experience of the last few years has shown to be unequal to the actual requirements of the colleges

13 For the B A Examination 248 candidates appeared, and of these 90 or 34 per cent passed, the proportion in the previous year having been 26

per cent Of the 136 candidates from the seven Government colleges of the first grade, 61 or 45 per cent passed, while the four aided colleges that teach to this standard passed 30 per cent No unaided college sent candidates to the B A Examination, but the Metropolitan Institution has now opened a fourth year class Of the Government colleges, the Presidency College passed 26 candidates out of 66, or 39 per cent Those at Dacca and Patna each passed two thirds of their candidates, and a student from the Patna College gained the distinction of the first place in the University list The Hooghly College succeeded much better than in the previous year, passing 12 out of its 29 candidates The colleges at Rajshahye and Cuttack passed candidates at the B A Examination for the first time, the former two and the latter one The Director refers to the danger of allowing colleges in the mofussil to teach both the literature and the science courses for the B A degree with a staff of professors intended for only one The Principal of a college desires to keep as many students as possible in his B A classes, and when a student asks to be taught the alternative course, on the ground that otherwise he will have to join another college, the Principal is naturally disposed to make an effort to arrange for the necessary lectures But such a division of the teaching power is obviously a source of weakness, and its effects have been shown in the general failure of the candidates from the Kishnaghur College Of three candidates from that College in the literature course, only one passed, and the two candidates in the science course both failed "Desirable as it is," the Director remarks, "to make the local college satisfy the requirements of all its students, yet the wisdom of such a concession must be regarded as doubtful"

14 Out of 262 candidates for the B A degree, including 14 absentees, 108 chose the A or literature course, and 154 the B or science course Of those who chose the former only 27 per cent passed, while 40 per cent of the B course candidates were successful This result, showing the comparative severity of the test in the literature course, is in accordance with the results of the examination held in the previous year, and at variance with those of former years, but it is noticeable that, in spite of this fact the number of senior scholars who select the course in literature is steadily increasing In former years these students almost unanimously chose the science course, even though the University examinations showed a much smaller percentage of candidates passing in that course, but within the last three years the literature course now seen to be the harder of the two, has become singularly popular with these, the flower of the University students Out of 49 senior scholarship holders, 13 in 1878, 14 in 1879, and 19 in 1880, have chosen the A course for the degree The Presidency is the only Government college that is fully equipped for teaching both courses It sent 26 candidates to the A course, of whom five passed, and 43 to the B course, of whom 21 passed But, as mentioned above, the Kishnaghur College has been permitted to prepare candidates for both courses and the Dacca College, in addition to its regular course in science, occasionally sends a few candidates to the examination in literature All other Government colleges teach the science course only The aided missionary colleges of Calcutta send candidates to both courses The students of the Cathedral Mission College, by special arrangement attend the scientific lectures in the Presidency College Of its eight B course candidates four passed, while only one passed out of eleven in the A course The B candidates in the General Assembly's Institution and the Free Church College all failed, while 18 and 3 candidates respectively passed from these colleges in the A course St Xavier's College passed two candidates out of seven in the B course, but the A course candidates failed

15 For the M A degree examination 48 candidates appeared, 31 competed for honours, of whom 20 were successful, and 17 for the ordinary degree, of whom nine passed The Presidency College sent 31 candidates in various subjects, of whom 21 were successful Of these, 17 obtained honours, and four the ordinary degree Three of the candidates from this College were placed in the first class The Sanskrit College passed one candidate, the Dacca College two, the Hooghly College two, and the Kishnaghur College one One candidate also passed in physical science from the Cathedral Mission College, and one in history from the Free Church Institution

SECONDARY EDUCATION

16 The number of high English Government schools in Bengal remains the same as in the previous year, namely 48, but there is an increase of 500 in the number of pupils, which now stands at 13,727. The number of aided schools has increased from 8 to 88, and the pupils reading in them from 8,894 to 10,800. Unaided schools have increased from 63 to 64, and their pupils from 13,903 to 14,091. Altogether there are 200 high English schools with 38,618 pupils, against 196 schools and 36,033 pupils in the previous year. Among Government schools of this class there are 12 which have more than 400 pupils each. These are the Hare and Hindoo schools in Calcutta the former of which has 610 pupils, the Chittagong, Hooghly, and Dacca Collegiate schools, the Bunnal and Uttarpara Zillah schools, and the five great schools of Behar, namely those of Patna with 344 pupils (the second in size in the whole of Bengal), Gaya, Chupra, Arrah, and Bhagalpore, the number of their pupils ranging from 304 to 426. The Director remarks—

The last two or three years have witnessed a surprising development of the demand for English education in Behar quite unprecedented in that province and unparalleled in any other part of Bengal. The movement is as yet most conspicuous in the head quarters stations and the lower classes of the Zillah schools are filled to overflowing with boys who are natives of the province and not as hitherto half of them Bengalis. But the same desire has begun to manifest itself in the interior of districts among the Kayasths and Babhans and Babu Bhodch Mookerjee warns me that we must be prepared for a large development of the grant in aid system. At present the effect is chiefly visible in the rapid addition of English classes to Government vernacular schools. The new hopes held out to the people by the recent adoption of the Hindi character in the courts will unquestionably stimulate the desire of the respectable classes for an education which can now be turned to profitable account.

It may well be hoped that the orders referred to by the Director will have the effect of removing the great difficulty which has hitherto beset middle schools in Behar, namely the complete indifference of the people to a purely vernacular education. In the whole of the Patna Division there are only six middle vernacular schools maintained by grants in aid. At the same time the efforts of the Education Department during recent years to popularize the Hindi character and language have not been without effect. The Board of Examiners for middle scholarships in Behar reports—“All the Hindu students of the vernacular schools of Behar now read and write Hindi with tolerable correctness, while only five years ago the whole province did not send up more than one or two candidates in Hindi. Some Mahomedan pupils in each district have now taken up Hindi, and not Urdu, as their vernacular.” Again, the primary schools of Behar, in which Kaithi has all along been taught, have begun to use Nagri printed books in largely increasing numbers. The people therefore were not unprepared for the change which the orders of Government have now made, and it may be anticipated that the further educational effect of the orders will be to give encouragement alike to those indigenous schools in which the Kaithi character is taught, to those vernacular schools of a higher class in which the language and the character are Hindi, and in at least an equal degree to those in which the rudiments of English are added to a sound vernacular education. The change was made at a time when it was not only necessary in the interests of the people and of their education, but when it could be carried into effect with comparative ease.

17 At the Entrance Examination of 1879, 1,996 candidates appeared from 198 schools, and 767 passed, or 38 per cent. As in the previous two years, the Government schools passed more than 50 per cent of their candidates, while private schools aided and unaided, passed 32 per cent. It is satisfactory to find that aided schools have made considerable progress, as judged by the results of the last examination. This result may reasonably be attributed to the vigorous measures that have been taken during the last two or three years against unsuccessful schools, with the object of withdrawing aid from those that are hopelessly inefficient, and of compelling all others to earn by their public performances the grants which they enjoy. Among collegiate schools the Hare and Hindu schools attached to the Presidency College of Calcutta as usual occupy the highest place, the Krishnaghur school has risen to be third followed by the Dacca, the Hooghly Collegiate, the Rajshahye, the Hooghly Branch, and the Patna Collegiate schools. In the Outback Collegiate school, it is noticed that the minor Rajah of Dhenkanal, among other Government wards, is a pupil. He was "shy and timid when he first joined, but is now quite at home with the rest, and is doing well." The Cuttack and Chittagong Collegiate schools were conspicuous for the failure of their pupils at the examination. Among the 11 zillah schools of the first class, that is, those with 300 pupils and upwards, the Uttarpara school has for the second time taken the highest place. The Burrisal and Mymensingh schools follow, and then those of Beerbhoom and Arrah, the success of the last named being such, remarks the Director, as to "lift it at once to a level with the great Bengal schools, a position which no zillah school in Behar has hitherto approached." The Gya zillah school with 504 pupils passed only two candidates in the third division, and the Director attributes this unsatisfactory result to the fact that the school (like others in Behar) has outgrown, owing to its late rapid increase, not only its building accommodation, but its establishment, which has accordingly been considerably strengthened. Zillah schools of the second class, numbering 175 pupils and upwards, have increased from 9 to 12, by the rise of the Baraset, Dinagepore, and Bogra schools to this class. Among them the Bankoora school has for two years taken the highest place. At the last examination it passed eight candidates out of 12, three of them in the first division—a result which, as the Magistrate remarks, is attained by few first class zillah schools and by none of the second class. The Furreedpore and Barrackpore schools, also did well. In the Baraset school it is satisfactory to observe that, of 103 new pupils admitted during the year, 33 were Mahomedans, who were enabled to attend the school by the increase lately made in the amount of its Mohsin grant. The Mozufferpore school is described by the Director as the only unsatisfactory zillah school in the Patna Division, and as needing the Inspector's closest attention in all classes leading up to the Entrance. The last place in the list is occupied by the Noakholly zillah school, from which only one candidate passed in the third division out of nine sent up. Every boy in the Entrance class is said to have suffered from malarious fever. Among third class schools, which are almost exclusively confined to the divisions of Bhagulpore, Chota Nagpore, and Orissa, the Balasore, Hazaribagh, Maldah, and Purulia schools stand at the head of the list. The others pass no more than one or two candidates each year, and many of them, owing to their small private income, can afford only a weak staff of teachers. The Chaibassa school, for example, has a head master, a second master on Rs. 30, and a pundit, who are assisted by the education clerk. It is held in the same building as, and is practically a development of, the model school for Kols, it is kept up for the immediate benefit of the Bengali and Hindustani residents, and in the hope that Kol boys who already read to the middle standard, may be brought up in course of time to the Entrance Examination.

18 The system of net grants to Government schools, in accordance with which the amount at credit of the school at the close of the year is re-granted to it for the following year, continues to work well. The schools began the year with a credit balance in their favour amounting to Rs. 69,441, which was slightly increased to Rs. 70,122 at its close, but meanwhile the schools had incurred expenditure out of their surplus income during the year to the amount of Rs. 19,481, all of which was spent, without any cost to Government beyond the sanctioned net grant in strengthening or rewarding the teaching staff, in adding new buildings, or in supplying new furniture, books, or prizes. The policy of Government with regard to net grant schools is thus described:

It is thoroughly understood that all expenditure of an ordinary kind in the maintenance of or in additions to the buildings must be met from the credit balance of the school, and it is only in exceptional cases where large expenditure upon extensions is needed that an application is made to Government for a special grant. Even in these cases at least half the cost must be defrayed from local sources.

19 The increase in the number of aided high schools from 85 to 88 is not caused by a simple addition of three to the number existing in the previous year, but is the net result of considerable changes in schools of this class. Eight schools have been raised from the middle to the high class, and two reduced from high to middle schools. New grants have been given to three schools, and from six the grants have been withdrawn on the ground of continued inefficiency. Conspicuous notice is given in the report to the Feringi Bazar aided school in the town of Chittagong, which was formerly a middle school and was raised during the year to the high class.

'Some local opposition' writes the Director 'was raised to its elevation to the high class, on the insufficient ground that it might injure the collegiate school. It has done no injury to that school having as the Joint Inspector points out tapped new sources of supply. The number of pupils has risen from 219 to 303 recruited from the Eurasian and Muhomedan inhabitants of the quarter, and its fee-receipts have increased from Rs 60 or Rs 70 to Rs 150 a month. The school has received warm assistance and support from Mr W H Campbell, an influential tea planter of Chittagong who has undertaken the management of the school as a liberal subscriber to its cost and has contributed Rs 2 000 to the erection of a new bungalow now approaching completion.'

The Director rightly urges that no Government school has any good ground to resent the uprising of a good and well managed private school in its neighbourhood, even though its fee receipts may be thereby diminished. The general extension of education at a cheap rate is a solid gain to those benefited by it outweighing the loss of pupils and of income which any individual school may suffer, and which a zealous head master naturally regards with regret.

If the school' remarks the Director 'becomes in time good enough to take the place of the Government school there is a still more solid and permanent gain. Of course if the new school is essentially a bad one real and often lasting harm is done the discipline of both schools suffers and a lower standard both of instruction and of conduct is substituted for a higher. But it may be hoped that the evil is in this case temporary and that though a badly managed school may do harm for a time it contains the seeds of its own extinction. There is a large and growing demand for English education at a cheap rate and if any school which springs into existence to satisfy that demand does not possess the elements of permanent existence it has at any rate stimulated the desire for education, which does not cease with its disappearance.'

20 Unaided higher class schools have increased from 63 to 64. In the Presidency Division there are 17 schools of this class, in the Burdwan Division there are 12, three new schools having been opened and three closed. In the Dacca Division there are ten unaided schools, three having been newly opened. The Maharajah's school at Durbhunga has been raised to the high class, and it now occupies, like the Maharajah's school at Burdwan, the position of a zillah school, there being no Government school in either station. A few schools, nominally of the high class are described as starting up once a year, two or three months before the Entrance examination, for the purpose of granting certificates of eligibility to candidates rejected at the test examination of other schools. Schools of this class, remarks the Director, are most injurious to discipline, and the University has lately inflicted a fatal blow on them by the salutary regulation that no candidate can be sent up by a school in which he has not read for six months.

21 Middle English schools have increased from 340 with 31,490 pupils to 534 with 32,812 pupils. Of these only eight are Government schools, 432 being aided and 114 unaided. Aided schools show a net increase (i.e. an excess of new over cancelled grants) of ten, which is thus explained. Twelve grants have been cancelled, and 31 new grants given, eight middle have been raised to high schools, and two high schools reduced to middle, five middle English schools have been converted into vernacular, and three vernacular into English, while the Anglo Hindi school at Darjeeling has been made the zillah school of the district. The foregoing figures do not, however, give a complete statement of the existing means of English education. The orders by which middle English schools were placed upon a vernacular basis allowed the addition of an English class, locally maintained, to any efficient vernacular school, the school being nevertheless still classed as vernacular until, by passing candidates at the Middle English Scholarship Examination, it had gained the right to recognition as an English school. Very general use has been made of this concession. In the Presidency Division 28 vernacular schools have added an English class, and 33 in the Burdwan Division. In Behar the privilege of learning English, in addition to the vernacular, has been warmly welcomed, and has proved, in the Director's opinion, to be an effectual safeguard against the rapid and inevitable decline with which, until lately, vernacular schools were threatened. There are hardly any aided schools of this class in Behar, but the model or Government vernacular schools have introduced English classes at local cost in large numbers—two in Gya six in Shahabad, six in Sarun, five in Mozufferpore, and two in Durbhunga. Of these and of the similar schools in Bengal Proper, some have succeeded in passing candidates for the English scholarship, and have thus gained the right to be called English schools, but it is evident that there are throughout the country many more opportunities of learning English than the returns of schools at first sight show, and there can be little doubt about the value of a system which promotes this result, or about its tendency to constantly increasing expansion.

22 The policy of placing middle English schools on a vernacular basis has now been practically, in most cases warmly, accepted, and the opposition which at the outset was not unnaturally aroused by so radical a change in the system of education has almost entirely died away. The chief interest of the question at the present moment seems to lie in the possibility of extending the system to high English schools. The Director draws attention to an important experiment that is now being carried out in the Presidency Division.

In March 1879 he writes: "I made proposal to Government with the object of encouraging here and there the amalgamation of a vernacular school with a neighbouring high class English school, the proposed inducement being to allow the pupils of the vernacular department of the joint school still to compete for vernacular scholarships. I pointed out that such an amalgamation being also having the advantage of economy would probably tend to the substitution of the vernacular for English throughout the lower classes of higher English schools and thus we should take the first steps towards a reform which I believe to be as applicable to higher as to middle English school. My proposals were sanctioned and I was directed to notice the subject specially in future reports. Four schools have effected the amalgamation, those of Ranaghat, Manupur, and Kooshtia in Nudda and Lakh in the 211 crunnahs. The case of the Lakh school deserves particular notice. The five highest classes of the school read the ordinary Entrance school course without change. But the next four classes, the 6th to the 9th, which include the four highest classes of the old vernacular school read the Vernacular Scholarship Course with the addition of English as a language for one hour a day. The two lowest classes, the 10th and 11th, which include also the lowest classes of the old vernacular school read the vernacular only. So far as has yet been observed writes the Inspector, nothing but good has followed the change. The number of pupils in the joint school is 50 in excess of the numbers before referred to both schools and the fee receipts no larger. It is true that at Ranaghat no provision is made for those who wish to read the vernacular only, nor is it necessary for at Ranaghat every pupil does to read English also, as is shown by the fact that English teaching had been previously introduced into the middle vernacular school. The amalgamation is confessedly an experiment and it is too early yet to say that it is an assured success, so far decidedly good effects have accrued. The pupils of the lower classes of the old higher English school are getting a sound vernacular training and those of the old vernacular school are learning English more systematically and are under better discipline than before. The number of pupils has increased, the success at the Vernacular Scholarship Examination is greater and finally the consolidated grant to the joint school is less than the sum of the grants before given. A proposal has also been put forward to effect a similar amalgamation in the case of the Zillah schools of Burdwan and Jessore."

The experiment is unquestionably one of the first importance and its progress and the success which attends it should be carefully watched.

23 The Middle English Scholarship Examination of 1879 was the first under the new system, the subjects of examination comprising the full Vernacular Scholarship Course, with English added as a language only. It is important therefore to compare the results of an examination under the new with those of the previous year under the old system. In 1878 155 schools sent candidates to the examination, and from 266 schools 594 candidates passed. In 1879 341 schools sent candidates and from 271 schools 592 candidates passed. The general result is that a considerably larger number of schools competed by the new standard, and that a few more actually reached that standard, while the number of successful candidates was just short of that in the previous year. "That the loss has been no greater," the Director urges, "shows the ease, and even the success, with which the change has been carried out."

The schools began to be set upon their new footing in January 1878 and the reorganization went on throughout that year. Some schools were slower than others in meeting the emergency. When then first class pupil who up to December 1877 had been learning English and no vernacular had to go up in October 1879 to an examination which comprised the full vernacular standard they were unquestionably placed at a disadvantage. In the vernacular they had to compete with boys who had for years been studying that language exclusively under well trained pundits, while their English reading had latterly been confined to one or two hours a day, instead of the four or five hours which candidates of previous years had spent over English books. That the loss has been no greater shows the ease, and even the success, with which the change has been carried out.

There is certainly no ground for dissatisfaction with the results of this first examination under the new system. It is clear that the margin of inefficient schools is steadily diminishing. In 1877 308 schools competed at the middle English examination, and 247 successfully, in 1878 315 schools competed, and 266 successfully, and in 1879 341 competed, and 271 successfully. The reports of the Director and the Inspectors give full and complete accounts of the schools that are still inefficient, the causes of failure, the measures taken for improvement, and the prospects of success being detailed in each case.

24 Middle vernacular schools have increased from 1,061 with 52,607 pupils to 1,085 with 54,562 pupils. Of the whole number 175 are Government model schools, 820 are aided, and 90 unaided. But the facts are not really so favourable as these figures indicate. The class of aided schools includes those middle schools which are aided from the primary grant, and the Director explains that 39 Sanskrit tols, aided from this source, have been included under the head of middle schools, instead of, as before, under primary schools. Excluding these, and also an increase of ten in the number of circle schools of the middle class, there is a net loss of 13 grant-in-aid schools, which has been brought about by steady adherence to the system of withdrawing grants from schools that are hopelessly inefficient. From 24 schools grants have been withdrawn, while only 11 new schools have been aided. To the Middle Vernacular Scholarship Examination 810 schools sent candidates, and candidates passed from 614 of these schools. In the previous year 837 schools competed, and 597 successfully, but the number of successful candidates at the later examination was only 1,423, or 114 less than in the previous year. This unsatisfactory result has been confined to the Bhagulpore Division and to Eastern Bengal. In Bhagulpore the examinations in two important districts had to be set aside, the questions having been allowed, owing to the neglect of obvious precautions to become known. In the Eastern Bengal circle there was a decrease of 172 successful candidates compared with the previous year. The loss was common to every district, and to every class of schools, and the unanimous statement of the local officers, that the questions were above the ordinary standard of difficulty, must be accepted as the only explanation of so widespread a failure. It is urged that such variations of standard are an almost necessary incident of the system of separate examinations for each circle, but their occurrence is much to be regretted, as causing not only injury and disappointment to the candidates concerned, but discouragement to the schools which send them. The Director states that the alternative system of a common examination for all districts in Bengal Proper is under consideration, though he points out that the number of candidates to be examined would be a probable cause of difficulty and delay.

25 Lower vernacular schools have decreased from 1,541 to 1,498, but the pupils reading in them have increased from 53,391 to 54,296. The loss in schools has been chiefly confined to those aided from the primary grant, the number of which has fallen from 1,267 to 1,232. This result is owing to the general introduction of the system of payment by results, which compels district officers to withdraw high grants from individual schools in order to spread their allotments over a wider area. None but the most successful of these schools now receive stipends, with the result that the schools as a class are rapidly gaining in efficiency. The Lower Vernacular Scholarship Examination shows a very remarkable increase in the success of this class of schools. Of 1,139 schools that sent candidates to the examination, 817 were successful, passing 1,652 candidates. The number of competing schools was greater by 127 than in the previous year, of successful schools by 111, of candidates by 333, and of passed candidates by 394. "There is no doubt," the Director writes, "about the progress made by these schools, their stability, and their great usefulness in the place which they occupy as the necessary link between the indigenous schools of the country and the departmental system of organized instruction."

PRIMARY EDUCATION

26 The total number of primary schools has advanced from 29,270 with 31,064 pupils to 35,258 with 613,452 pupils. Of these 6,266 with 76,145 pupils are indigenous patshalas, tols, and maktabas, receiving no aid in any shape from Government. Of the remainder, 28,736 schools are primary schools aided from the primary grant, the rest being Government, or grant in aid, or circle primaries. Besides primary schools, the primary grant also supports 112 middle vernacular and 1,232 lower vernacular schools. In round numbers, the area covered by the primary grant has been extended so as to include 6,000 additional schools and 93,000 additional pupils. In the Burdwan Division 700 new schools have been added, in Orissa 900, in Eastern Bengal 900, in the Patna Division 2,000, and in Bhagulpore 1,000. The system of payment by results, to the adoption of which this increase is to be ascribed, has now been introduced in one form or another into all but eleven of the districts in Bengal. The various modifications of the system are described at length in the Director's report. In the Midnapore scheme, the problem of economising a primary allotment and an inspecting staff, which were sufficient for a system of stipendiary schools, in such a way as to bring under supervision the large outer circle of indigenous patshalas, was met by the plan of small rewards after annual and central examinations, in the conduct of which a local committee of villagers was associated with the inspecting officers. This system, with only slight modifications, has been adopted in all the other districts of the Burdwan Division in the districts of Dacca, Barergunge, and Tipperah, and, with the partial retention of the old system of fixed stipends in Nuddea, Jessore, Moorshedabad, Rajshahye, and Mambhoom. In the 24 Pergunnahs, Dinapore, and Rungpore a similar system prevails, with the substitution of quarterly for annual examinations. Into all the districts of the Patna and Bhagulpore Divisions a system devised by the Inspector, Pabu Bhoo deb Mookerjee, and known as the chief guru system has been introduced. A district is parcelled out into a convenient number of circles, and over each of these is placed a chief guru, usually the guru of a stipendiary school and always the most prominent among the teachers of the circle. The chief guru is charged with the inspection and supervision of all the patshalas in his circle, he is the medium of communication between the inspecting officers and the schools, and he takes the place occupied by the village committee in the Midnapore system. The three districts of Orissa have adopted a system very similar to that of Bihar. In this division, however, the chief gurus or 'abadhans' in addition to their work of inspection and supervision, are also employed in teaching the abadhans of their respective circles, and, in the Cuttack district, by a recent development of the same system, the appointment of five abadhans charged with the sole duty of inspection, has relieved the circle abadhans of the greater part of their inspecting work and converted them mainly into peripatetic teachers. In the districts of Bogra, Pubna, Julpigoree, Dajelding, Mymensingh, Furreedpore, Noakholly, Chittagong, Lohardugga, Hazaribagh and Singhbhum, the old system of fixed stipends still prevails. In all however the stipends are regulated by the condition and progress of the schools, and in most some steps have been taken towards the introduction of a more elastic system.

27 In the 24 Pergunnahs a change for the better has been made by holding the quarterly examinations at centres instead of in each village. In Nuddea, by some apparent mismanagement, the notices of examination were not delivered to the gurus in time for them to be present at the examination centres, and the amount set aside for rewards could not be distributed for want of candidates. In Jessore the system of payment by results has been extended since the close of the official year to a second subdivision, with the object of introducing it throughout the district, should it prove successful there. In Moorshedabad the number of indigenous schools is known to be small, and consequently the system of payment by results has not been attended with much success. In the districts of Burdwan and Bankoora the system of 'small stipend and large rewards' is in force, and has proved very successful. The Midnapore district heads the list, with a total number of 71,200 pupils in schools of all schools, the 24 Pergunnahs district following with 60,300 scholars. In these two districts, and in Burdwan and Bankoora, the proportion of pupils to population varies from 27·3 to 28·3 per thousand. All of them are surpassed by the Balasore district, in which 41·7 per thousand of the population are at school. In the Rajshahye district the results system has been introduced into 3 out of 13 thanas, the schools being examined for rewards every two months. In Dinajpore, besides the system of quarterly examinations, a payment of Rs. 2 a month is made for every twenty children attending the school. In the Darjeeling district, beyond a slight increase in the number of schools, no change of importance has taken place, but in Independent Sikkim the Rajah has to some extent anticipated the wishes of Government by making grants amounting to Rs. 495 to the principal monasteries to which schools are attached. In the Dacca district the system of central examinations has been introduced, the keeping of attendance registers and account books, and the periodical submission of returns, being important elements in determining the amount of rewards. In Backergunge a combined system of stipends and of payment by results has proved singularly successful. In Tipperah a strong effort has been made to bring unaided maktabs, in which the recitation of the Koran is the only subject taught within reach of the system of rewards. Prizes were offered, both to teachers and to pupils for proficiency in the simplest subjects of vernacular instruction, and the aid of influential villagers was enlisted by associating them with the inspecting officers in the work of examination and in the distribution of rewards. In Chittagong the system of payment by results was introduced into the most advanced of the thanas, but the experiment was held to have failed, and the scheme was abandoned. A similar system, which had been set on foot in Noakhally, was discontinued by the Magistrate on the unexplained ground that any attempt to introduce the Midnapore system must prove ruinous to the patshalas. In the Patna Division the chief guru system was adopted towards the close of the year in the districts of Gya, Mozufferpore, and Dumbunna, and it was more fully developed in the districts of Patna and Saran. The Magistrate generally have expressed cordial approval of the working of the system, as they have also in the division of Bhagulpore. In the Monghyr and Bhagulpore districts the system is said to have reached its extreme limit, and to embrace the whole number of existing schools. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs it is less successful, being, as the Assistant Inspector points out, much more fully adapted to the requirements of races which have indigenous schools and teachers of their own, than to the promotion of education amongst an uncivilised people for whom special agencies are required. The chief part of the work of educating the Sonthals has been left to the Church Mission Society and the Indian Home Mission, and they have been very successful in bringing the people under instruction. The total number of Sonthal pupils is now 2,306, and of these a small number attend middle schools not under missionary management,—a fact which affords some indication that the Sonthals are beginning to appreciate education of a class above the primary. In the district of Hazaribagh an extraordinary system of payment has been introduced. That of rewards after examination, which was being steadily pushed throughout the district, was suddenly stopped, and in its place a hard and fast capitation system was introduced. The amount of stipend was to be determined, not by the average attendance, but by the monthly roll number as shown in the registers of the gurus, supplemented, it is true, by a slight progress test. Last year the less objectionable system in force in Jharkhand, according to which stipends were determined by the average attendance of pupils, was condemned* by the Commissioner and by Government, and it is not clear what advantages are claimed for a system which insists less on progress than on mere attendance, and in which no further guarantee of attendance is secured than inclusion in a register. In Singbhoom the system of stipends is supplemented by quarterly rewards, which has had a good effect in stimulating gurus to improve their schools. In the Orissa Division the system in force in Cuttack and Balasore was introduced during the year into the Pooree district. All the patshalas in Pooree that sent pupils for examination, and all but 11 out of 6,000 pupils examined, gained rewards,—a fact which seems to indicate not so much any unusual determined by the average attendance of pupils, was condemned* by the Commissioner and by superiority in the schools, as a desire to make the system at the outset popular. Balasore takes the lead of all districts in Bengal as regards the spread of education, but the Magistrate of Cuttack keenly contests the accuracy of the returns, denying that Balasore can be educationally so far ahead of Cuttack as the figures would show, the proportion of pupils to population being as 41·7 per 1,000 for Balasore and 21·2 for Cuttack. In the Tributary Mchals considerable progress is being made, the schools are increasing in numbers and advancing in class, pupils compete with success at all scholarship examinations up to the middle vernacular standard, and the system of payment by results has been introduced and is being gradually extended. It is believed that there are not less than 2,000 indigenous schools scattered over the tributary estates of Orissa, so that the system of payment by results seems to be specially adapted to the circumstances of the locality.

EUROPEAN AND EURASIAN EDUCATION

28 There is an addition of one to the number of schools for the education of Europeans and Eurasians, caused by the opening of the Government Railway school at Kurseong. This school was established primarily for the education, at a cheap rate, of the children of persons employed on State Railways, but its benefits have lately been extended to employes in the Public Works and Telegraph Departments, and it is also thrown open to the general public at higher rates of fees. The Eastern Bengal Railway Company contribute a grant of Rs 100 a month in aid of the schooling fees paid by persons in its service. The liberal terms on which a thorough and sound education is offered in a delightful climate have proved to be attractive, and the applications for admission are in excess of the present accommodation. The school is accordingly to be now removed to more spacious and convenient quarters on Dow Hill above Kurseong. The total number of schools for Europeans and Eurasians is 47, of which one is a Government school, 38 are aided schools, and eight are unaided. Of these 29, with 3,698 pupils are in Calcutta and 18 with 835 pupils are outside Calcutta. The schools in Calcutta are very numerous, and are so distributed as to make ample provision for the needs of those concerned. Among them the Calcutta Free School, the Catholic Male Orphanage, and the Lintally Loretto for girls, are conspicuous for the good work done by them. Of the schools outside Calcutta, St Paul's at Darjeeling seems to be making the most rapid advance. It is now preparing pupils for the First Arts examination. Six are railway schools, of which those at Jamalpore and Buxar are the best.

FEMALE EDUCATION

29 The total number of girls' schools has increased from 543 with 12,497 pupils to 657 with 14,870 pupils. In addition to these the number of girls reading in boys' schools has advanced from 11,235 to 13,643, the increase being chiefly due to the rewards which in many districts are given to gurus in consideration of the attendance of girls at school. The Bethune school in Calcutta has now two pupils, who have passed the Entrance and are reading for the First Arts examination. The establishment of the school has been much strengthened during the year, and the net grant raised from Rs 650 to Rs 750 a month. The only other Government school, the Eden school at Dacca, has an attendance of 147 pupils. Some of these have passed the Lower Vernacular Scholarship Examination, and are now reading for the middle standard. The standard of education in girls' schools throughout the country is gradually rising. Three girls in Moorshedabad, one from the Serajgunge school, three in Mymensing, and four in Chittagong, passed the Primary Scholarship Examination. In Tipperah two girls passed the lower vernacular and six the primary examination. The girls' scholarship examination in the districts of the Burdwan Division was as usual carried out by the Uttarpara Hitakari Sabha. Of 49 candidates 12 passed the final examination and 30 by lower standards, 30 girls were selected for scholarships. The Balasore Zenana Association is spoken of as doing useful work.

30 Of 2,119 pupils reading in zenanas, or in schools connected with zenana agencies, who were examined by Mrs. Wheeler, 1,861 were in the lower primary stage, 200 in the higher primary, and 58 in the middle stage, none of those examined had reached the upper stage. Of those in the middle stage, 30 were pupils taught and examined in their own houses, that is, strictly zenana pupils,—a fact which shows, as pointed out by the Director, that the work done in the zenanas is not without tangible results. At the same time the report conclusively proves that the great obstacle which besets the work of teaching in the zenanas is the absence of anything like steady attendance. Very few of the pupils, not exceeding 10 per cent in the case of any mission, had been under instruction for more than a year, even though the ages of the pupils ranged from 8 to 14, 15, and even 16 years. Even in the case of those pupils who have been for more than two years under instruction, it is observed by the Inspector that the attendance of many has been “off and on,” or that they have “resumed their studies after a long interval.” It is quite evident that there is as yet in girls’ schools nothing approaching to the regular and systematic teaching which is found in boys’ schools. This is a serious obstacle to efficient instruction, and it is one for which the ladies of the various missions are in no way responsible. There are, however, other difficulties which might be removed by fuller co-operation among the different societies. It is maintained that, as in former years, too many new schools are opened, and that schools are too frequently removed to new sites, where they come into injurious competition with established schools. Of all the agencies, the Church Mission Society stands highest with regard to the proficiency of its pupils, and the Free Church Agency second, and then the American Mission, and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. The Director adds — “The Church Mission Normal School must again be distinguished for its excellent discipline and its success in training teachers,—a distinction which was erroneously given in the last report to another institution.” Towards the close of the year a scheme of examination by standards for all girls’ schools was promulgated to the agencies concerned, and they were requested to arrange their classes according to these standards, with the object of ultimately introducing a system by which grants will be determined by success at the examinations.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION

31 Law — There are now six Government colleges having a law class attached, reading up to the B. L. degree. All these classes outside the presidency have recently been made self supporting. The number of students in 1879 was 321 against 227 in 1878. It is explained that, as students under the University regulations commonly join the law classes in their fourth year, the numbers reading law in any particular year depends very closely upon the numbers passing the First Arts examination in the year previous: thus in 1877 only 184 candidates passed the First Arts standard, and the law classes of 1878 declined from 316 to 227. In December 1878, 208 candidates passed, and the law classes of 1879 rose to 321.

32 Medicine — The number of students in the Medical College at the close of the year was 153 against 208 in 1878-79 and 145 in 1877-78. As explained in the last report, the numbers in 1878-79 were swelled by an exceptionally large number of hospital apprentices sent up by the Military Department, and by the re-admission of a large number of candidates who had failed at the preceding examination. The number of graduates passed out of college increased from 26 to 72,—a result which is very satisfactory as indicating successful working up to the new rule of the University (which caused so many failures in 1878-79) that each candidate must pass in every subject, and not merely obtain a certain number of marks on the aggregate of subjects. The number of pupils in the vernacular medical schools has further decreased to 508. In 1877 the schools were attended by 862 pupils, but the numbers have year by year decreased as the novelty wore off, and in consequence of the orders of Government limiting the numbers admissible and raising the standard of preliminary qualification. During the year the general course of education in these schools has been settled on the basis of a valuable report by the Committee on Medical Expenditure in Bengal. The object kept in view has been to simplify and reduce the subjects of study, and to make the training of the pupils more thorough and practical, looking to the work which they will be called upon to do in after life.

33 Engineering —“During the year the civil engineering classes were attached to the Presidency College. After its close they were transferred to the new Government Engineering College at Seebpore near Howrah. Four classes, numbering in all about 150 students, have been opened in that college for civil engineers, mechanical engineers, civil overseers and mechanical apprentices. This last class is for the present mainly composed of the boys from the Dehree school, whence they have been recently transferred. The decline in the number of students in the Civil Engineering Department of the Presidency College continued last year, when they fell to 73, against 89 in the previous year. The attendance at each of the vernacular survey schools slightly decreased, and the school at Hooghly was closed, the total number in all schools fell from 165 to 138 pupils. The number passing the examination for the certificate at the end of their two years' course fell from 40 to 32. The successful candidates from two out of the three schools have no difficulty in obtaining employment, being taken up at once by the district road establishments.” The Civil Engineering Department sent up 26 candidates to the University Examination, five for the degree of B.C.E., and 21 for the License in Civil Engineering, but all failed to pass. The Director points out that the subjects in which the students failed were chiefly those of a practical character, such as “carpentry and mechanism,” “strength of materials,” and “practice of building.” The defect in their teaching hitherto has been the want of practical training, and this defect the new College at Seebpore will amply supply. The characteristic feature of the new college is (as the Director remarks) the combination of study and practical work throughout the course from the beginning. Every student is to spend three hours a day in the Government workshops recently established on the river bank adjoining the college, where he will work with his own hands at the bench, the lathe, the forge or the foundry. The theoretical work will also be carried to a high standard, both for engineers and for overseers. An application is to be made to the University to make some changes in their regulations, in order to meet the case of engineer students.

34 Industrial Schools —The European school at Dehree has been transferred, as already noticed, to the Seebpore Engineering College. The vernacular school had 39 pupils at the end of the year, but the removal of the machinery from Dehree to the new workshops at Howrah, and the large reductions of establishments on the Soane, make the early closing of the school probable. This will not really matter if the proposals now under consideration for placing the Bankipore Industrial School on a proper footing are successful. The gift of a lakh of rupees by Syud Lutf Ali Khan of Patna for this object should make it possible to establish a workshop on an adequate scale, without which no industrial school can be of any real use. The Dacca School has been closed for want of pupils, and the school at Ranchi, under the Lutheran Mission, dwindled down to six pupils owing to the departure of the Superintendent, the Rev Mr Herzog, on leave to Europe.

35 School of Art —The year closed with 76 students on the rolls, the same number as in the previous year. The Principal, while remarking on the extraordinary aptitude for draughtsmanship evinced by two Parsi students, reports that the Bengalis also show great quickness and proficiency in art work, and expresses regret that the passed pupils of the school are not more largely employed in Government offices as draughtsmen. The Director might very well invite the Surveyor General and other heads of offices to inspect the school and judge of the proficiency of the students. The Art Gallery attached has now 65 works of art, of which 53 are the property of Government. The number of its European visitors during the year was 402, and of Native visitors 1,801.

36 Normal Schools —The number of Normal schools at work during the year was 15, there being seven of the first grade, viz those of Calcutta, Hooghly, Dacca, Patna, Rungpore, Ranchi, and Cuttack, one of the second grade at Chittagong, and seven of the third grade at Julpigoree, Moteehari, Hazaribagh, Purulia, Chaibassa, Balasore, and Pooree. In the Vernacular Mastership Examination 219 candidates appeared including 16 private students, of whom 133 obtained certificates, 32 of the first grade, 45 of the second, and 56 of the third. Only one private student obtained a certificate, and that of the third grade. The Hooghly and Beaulah schools were, as in the previous years, first and second respectively in the results of examination. The Dacca school, which has for some time past suffered from the superior attraction of the medical and survey schools of that place, is again reviving under pressure of the increased demand for certificated pundits. The Beaulah school has during the year been transferred to Rungpore, it having been found that students from the backward districts of Rungpore and Dinagepore would not, even with stipends, study at Beaulah. The Patna school is the only one that trains teachers in English. It had 21 students in the English, and 43 in the Vernacular Department. It is expected that the number will increase as the demand for teachers in English schools grows in Behar. Certificates were granted to 349 gurus trained in third grade Normal schools. These men help materially to improve the standard of efficiency in village schools, and it would be satisfactory to see them trained in greater numbers.

37 Madrassas—The number of pupils in the Madrassas of Calcutta, Hooghly, Rajshahye, Dacca, Chittagong and Joraghat was 777, having increased by over 100. (These figures take no account of the Anglo Persian Department of the Calcutta institution, which is merely a high class English school for Mahomedans.) All the Madrassas have now been organized on the model of the Calcutta institution, which is composed of a senior or college department with four classes, and a junior department, and all have worked up to the Calcutta standard. At the central examination of Madrassas for 1879, 170 candidates appeared and 97 passed, 36 in the first, 17 in the second, and 44 in the third divisions. The Director remarks—

These results do not compare favourably with those of last year when 112 passed out of 167 candidates—48 in the first division, 28 in the second and 36 in the third. The decrease is confined to the first year classes in which there were only 45 for examination of whom 18 passed as against 60 of whom 40 passed in the year before. In other classes there is an improvement. The explanation appears to be that the classes which have been increasing in number year by year are outgrowing the power of the teaching staff which was sanctioned at a time when the standard taught was much lower—a state of things which would chiefly affect the lower classes.

Taking the Calcutta Madrassa as a whole, there were 1,033 students at the close of the year against 1,015 in the year preceding, 232 in the Arabic Department, 395 in the Anglo Persian Department, and 406 in the Branch school, 659 are English and 374 Oriental students. There was a very satisfactory increase in the attendance at the Chittagong Madrassa, the numbers rising from 126 to 204, accounted for by the opening of an elementary or preparatory class acting as a feeder to the regular classes.

38 It is appropriate to notice here the proportion of Mahomedans to Hindus in schools of all classes throughout Bengal. The following table gives the figures—

	Total number of pupils	HINDU		MAHOMEDANS
		Number of pupils	Percentage	Number of pupils	Percentage of pupils
Arts colleges	41,730	1,592	91.5	93	5.3

† Ditto of the year in the Government School of Art

Upon this the Director remarks—

The Mahomedan population of Bengal forms according to the last census 31½ per cent of the whole, while the school population is no higher than 18½ per cent. Of the whole school going population the proportion of Hindus steadily rises and that of Mahomedans as steadily falls as we pass from the lower to the higher classes of instruction. In technical schools the proportion of Mahomedan pupils is higher than in any other class. This is largely due to the fact that the medical and survey schools of Patna contain considerably more Mahomedans than Hindus, the Hindus of Behar not having as yet taken freely to instruction of that kind.

The total number of Mahomedans under instruction was, however, 159,191 against 131,998 in the previous year, and 111,641 in 1877-78.

39 Sanskrit Title Examination—The institution of a special examination in Sanskrit literature, law, philosophy, and the Vedas, and the grant of titles of honor to those who pass, in order to encourage the study of Sanskrit among private students, was noticed in last year's report. At the first examination in April 1879, 52 candidates appeared, of whom 24 obtained titles. This year 61 presented themselves for examination, of whom 30 passed. Several wealthy members of the Hindu community have come forward to supply rewards to successful competitors, and the examination is said to be likely to become a popular institution in Bengal.

40 Agricultural Scholarships—The Lieutenant Governor believing that agricultural science, like any other branch of knowledge, can only be efficiently taught by those who have made it a special study, and thoroughly understand it themselves, has sanctioned the establishment of two scholarships of £200 a year each, tenable for 2½ years by natives of the province who may have passed the B. A. examination on the physical side, and are willing to undergo a full course of instruction at the Agricultural College, Cirencester. When the Government has at its disposal a staff of trained agriculturists, it will be time enough to undertake the scientific examination of indigenous agriculture in Bengal, and establish colleges and schools for grafting on eastern practice, as far as may be found possible or desirable, the ascertained results of Western research.

SCHOOL BOOKS

42 In Bengal Proper school books in both English and Vernacular are constantly being produced. Before a book can be used in a Government or aided school, it must be placed on the authorized list of the Central Committee. The schools then choose which of the books they will read for the departmental examinations in which only the subjects are fixed. It is satisfactory to learn that school managers almost invariably select the best books of their class. In Bihar and Orissa a stimulus has to be given to authorship by the offer of rewards for vernacular school books. The production of works in Hindi and Oriya during the year has, under this arrangement, been fairly active. The recent orders of Government enforcing the general use of the Nagri or Kaithi character in the Courts of Bihar may be expected to exercise a marked influence in the outturn of books from the vernacular press —

The people writes the Inspector will now find one great obstacle to the study of their own vernacular removed and the vernacular schools will to a great extent be relieved from the difficult attempt to combine the teaching of two or three characters. The progress of an indigenous vernacular literature will under such circumstances, be only a question of time.

43 The Lieutenant Governor has again to acknowledge with thanks the service rendered to the cause of education in Bengal by the able staff, European and Native, working under the Director of Public Instruction. Mr Croft continues to superintend the Department with an ability and zeal which leave nothing to be desired. To Mr Lawney, who officiated as Director for three months during Mr Croft's absence, the Lieutenant Governor's acknowledgments are also due.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

A MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal

The mean pressure, temperature &c are deduced from observations made at 6 h 16 h and 22 h and from the traces of the barograph and the rainograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a watch lined open at the sides and at the top with direct effect above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on the results in indications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

RESOLUTION — On the 12th April 1876 the Governor General in Council recited in a Resolution* the principal documents relating to the then existing constitution of the Department of Finance and Accounts

* N 2163 re order as Proceedings
No 15 of June 1876

2 In a despatch* dated 14th April 1876 the Government of India simultaneously brought to the notice of Her Majesty's Secretary of State an apparent conflict between the proceedings recapitulated in that Resolution, and Acts 24 and 25 Vic cap LIV under which an Accountant General like the other principal civil officers of the Administration must, owing under an exceptional procedure be a member of the Covenantal Civil Service and made certain propositions for the remedy of this conflict

3 Subsequently memorials were addressed to the Secretary of State by 190 members of the Bengal Covenantal Civil Service remonstrating against the apprehended breach of the provisions of the Statute as aforesaid

† P. 14 N. 18, 1110 † In his despatch No 104† dated 26th October 1876 the Secretary of State after reviewing the whole subject pronounced the condition of the department unsatisfactory and wrote as follows —

The administrative business of finance though intimately connected with the duties of accounting is of a different nature and requires very different qualifications. It is indispensable to the efficiency of a financial officer that he should have a thorough knowledge of accounts but there is much of the work of keeping accounts that may well be performed by officers and clerks who would not be likely to become efficient financiers. If this distinction be duly recognized it appears to me that there is no reason why an arrangement could not be made under which members of the Covenantal Civil Service should be employed in the Department of Finance and Accounts in a manner that should secure the provision of recruits for the higher financial posts wholly from that Service possessed of the requisite technical knowledge of accounts while the less important but more special duties of the Account Branch might be supplied by Uncovenantal Servants many of whom should be natives of India

5 Owing to the conflicting interests affected by these orders the Government of India has found it difficult to frame organic measures for carrying them into effect. But meanwhile in making appointments to the five principal Accountant Generalships the Government of India has felt bound to conform in practice to the Statute

6 In accordance with further instructions since received from the Secretary of State and with the sanction of Her Majesty's Government the Government of India has now resolved to reorganize the Department as follows taking occasion to simplify its nomenclature by eliminating the titles of Deputy Accountant General in Independent charge (for which the designation of Comptroller will be substituted) Inspector of Local Account Offices Assistant to the Comptroller General Assistant to the Accountant General and Assistant to the Head Commissioner and Commissioners of Paper Currency

7 Including the recently sanctioned office of Inspector of Local Fund Accounts in Bengal and excluding the Comptroller General Assistant for Money Orders transferred to the Post Office the Department now consists of 46 sanctioned appointments besides a sanctioned staff of 11 probationers in training to fill vacancies

8 Experience shows that the work of the Department cannot be done with less than 46 officers. But the Government of India considers that efficiency will be promoted while at the same time there will be some saving of expense by the substitution of eleven superior ministerial officers of whom seven will be entitled CHIEF CLERK for eleven of the Enrolled Officers. The present Head Assistant of the Comptroller of British Burma may at the same time become a Chief Clerk without change of pay. The appointment of a Chief Clerk will be gazetted and he may resign or discharge any other duties assigned to him by the Head of his office

9 The Comptroller Generalship is not included among the existing 16 superior officers. The Government of India has now finally decided also to remove from the list of Enrolled Officers the five Accountant Generalships for Bengal Madras Bombay the North Western Provinces and Oudh and the Punjab which five offices will henceforth be treated as reserved by Statute to be filled ordinarily by members of the Covenantal Civil Service

10 The whole Department will consist in future of the following officers —

- 1 Comptroller General
- 5 Accountants General

30 ENROLLED OFFICERS

- 2 Deputy Comptrollers General
- 1 Assistant Secretary
- Comptrollers
- 2 Deputy Accountants General
- 17 Assistants Comptroller General Assistants Accountant General and Assistants Comptroller

CHIEF CLERKS

- 8 Chief Clerks

11 The pay of the Comptroller General will be as heretofore Rs 3 500 a month

The pay of the Accountants General will be as follows —

Two at Rs 2 750 a month each
Two at 2 500 a ,
One at 2 250 a

besides which the Accountant General actually on duty at Calcutta or Bombay will receive a local allowance of Rs 250 a month

Hereafter the Accountants General for Bengal and Bombay will ordinarily receive the highest pay thus provided namely Rs 2 750 a month or if acting their salaries will as a rule be reckoned on that pay. But as the existing distribution of the Staff has not been made with this understanding this particular detail cannot be completely introduced till vacancies occur

12 The pay of the 30 officers who are to be designated THE ENROLLED OFFICERS will be as follows —

CLASS	NUMBER	MONTHLY PAY				TOTAL MONTHLY
		Monthly	Local	Gratuity	Retirement	Monthly	Local	Retirement
		Rs		Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs

Accountant General Bengal	1	100	10		180
Ditto do Bombay	1	100	20		300
	1	300	18		300

15 The Government of India does not bind itself to adhere precisely to any particular distribution of the Enrolled Officers and Chief Clerks but primarily and ordinarily they will be distributed somewhat as follows —

IN THE OFFICES OF—	ENROLLED OFFICERS						CHIEF CLERKS				TOTAL
	(I)	(II)	(III)	(IV)	(V)	(VI)	(I)	(II)	(III)	(IV)

	(GRAND TOTAL		33 017

17 Without the previous approval of Her Majesty's Government no one who is not a Covenanted Civil Servant will be admitted to the Enrolled List otherwise than as prescribed in paragraph 24. Subject to this general condition the Government of India reserves to itself a free discretion to appoint any person to be an Enrolled Officer whom it may deem it to be for the interest of the public service so to appoint but the emoluments of every Enrolled Officer will as a rule be regulated by the scale stated in paragraph 12 and in particular no higher emoluments will be granted to any Enrolled Officer only by reason of his being a member of the Covenanted Civil Service.

18 The Government of India will at any time make such changes as it may think expedient in the organization now announced the present resolution is not to be regarded as in any sense a legal or moral contract which the Government is not at liberty to vary without the consent of the officers of the Department.

19 The Government of India does not undertake to keep the complement of officers in each class always full or to promote officers from class to class only because there is a vacancy in a higher class or otherwise than upon an unfettered consideration of their merits. But if there is a vacancy in a higher class a corresponding addition may at the discretion of the Government of India be made to the complement of a lower class.

20 In order that there may be a supply of officers qualified by practical experience to succeed to the office of Accountant General at least three of the thirty one Enrolled Officers actually present on duty will as a rule be Covenanted Civil Servants—namely one in the second class one in the third class and one in the fourth class. Accordingly a vacancy whether temporary or substantive caused by the transfer of a Covenanted Civil Servant from some office in the Enrolled List to some office not on the Enrolled List whether in the Financial Department or not or by the promotion of a Covenanted Enrolled Officer from one class to another will as a rule be filled by the appointment thereto of another Covenanted Civil Servant.

21 The Government of India does not pledge itself under all circumstances to fill a vacancy in the office of Comptroller General by the promotion of an Accountant General or a vacancy in the office of Accountant General by promotion from the Enrolled List or a vacancy caused by the transfer or promotion to a higher class of a Covenanted Enrolled Officer by the promotion of a Covenanted Enrolled Officer from a lower class.

22 The Local Government must immediately re-appoint in his proper relative place in the general administrative staff any Covenanted Enrolled Officer who is permitted or required by the Government of India to leave the Department delegating as necessary to lower rank and emoluments the junior officers acting and substantive displaced in consequence of the reversion of the Enrolled Officer.

23 Eventually the two first class Enrolled Officers will usually be Uncovenanted Officers if the Department contains such officers whom the Government of India considers fully qualified by standing and merits to be so appointed. It is not the present intention of the Government of India as a general rule to appoint to the first class any one but a Deputy Comptroller General or the Assistant Secretary. The Assistant Accountant General Bengal who is employed on the inspection of Local Fund Offices and the Assistant in charge of the Currency Department and the Reserve Treasury in Calcutta will usually be in the third class. But in either appointed to one of these offices or to the office of Deputy Comptroller General if by reason of such appointment only promoted substantively before officers senior to him in the Department will usually hold the rank and pay to which he is thus promoted only provisionally while actually filling the office in virtue of his tenure of which he is thus promoted. The first class Chief Clerk will usually be employed in the office of the Comptroller General.

24 To provide for the ordinary recruitment of the Uncovenanted Enrolled Officers a body of Probationers will be selected in the manner prescribed in Resolution No. 2273 dated 18th April 1876 by the competitive examination of three nominees for each vacancy the nominees at every third examination being natives of India of unmixed descent there will be eight such Probationers in all and their pay will be as heretofore.

On first appointment	Rs 200
passing the Lower Departmental Examination	250
passing the Higher Departmental Examination	300

Thus including the Probationers there will be 38 Enrolled Officers. Until the Enrolled List contains less than 38 names no more Probationers must be appointed.

25 Excluding Probationers the Enrolled Officers and the Chief Clerks together will eventually number 38 or together with the four other new ministerial officers described in paragraph 14 42 No new Chief Clerk or ministerial officer must be appointed substantively in accordance with paragraphs 13 and 14 of this Resolution until the number of Enrolled Officers, including the present Probationers and including also the Chief Clerk of the Comptroller of British Burma, falls below 42 As soon as that happens, the total number of Enrolled Officers and Chief Clerks may including the other four new superior Ministerial appointments be kept up to 42 by the gradual appointment of eleven substantive Chief Clerks and new Ministerial Officers as authorized in paragraphs 13 and 14 At present excluding three officers Messrs FitzGerald Hart and Chapman, who are seconded there are 45 Enrolled Officers

26 No officer may be appointed to act as Chief Clerk or in the other four new Ministerial appointments while there are 41 Enrolled Officers present on duty There are now 38 officers so present Three acting Chief Clerks may therefore be appointed and Messrs Priyanath Datta Harish Chandra Mittra, and C Hall are so acting

27 In future no acting promotion will be given in the Financial Department in consequence of the absence of an officer on privilege leave unless an officer is transferred from another station to fill the place of another officer or required to perform decidedly more responsible and onerous duties

28 The new organization will take effect from the 8th August 1880 being the date on which the Secretary of State's despatch No 233 dated 10th July was received by the Government of India If the substantive pay of any Enrolled Officer is increased by the new scale his next increment will be due on the 1st September 1881

ORDERED that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India and communicated for information and guidance to the Comptroller General and to each Accountant General and Deputy Accountant General in independent charge

Ordered also that this Resolution be communicated to the several Local Governments

The 13th November 1880

No 3646—Resolution—The Presidency Municipalities the Trustees of the Port of Bombay and the Commissioners for making Improvements in the Port of Calcutta are empowered by the enactments constituting or incorporating them to borrow money for certain purposes by way of Debenture on the security of the Rates Taxes or Dues which they are authorized to levy or impose

2 Under the Local Authorities Loan Act other Bodies Corporate and Municipalities may also be authorized to borrow money upon the security of the funds which they administer or the taxes which they levy

3 The Bonds or Debentures issued by all these Bodies and Coupons issued with such Debentures are in the absence of any special exemption chargeable with Stamp Duty at the rate of about half per cent

4 The question whether Stamp Duty is chargeable on the renewal and subdivision of such Debentures is open to argument but whether Stamp Duty is chargeable in such cases or not the interests of the Stamp Revenue necessitate the attendance of the parties at the office of the Collector of Stamp Revenue in order to the stamping (without charge) of the new Debentures The Government of India is not willing to relieve such Debentures altogether from the payment of Stamp Duty but it is prepared to exempt Coupons issued with them from the separate payment of duty and is anxious to remove as far as is compatible with the due protection of the Stamp Revenue the inconvenience occasioned to the Debenture holders by the necessity for attendance at the Stamp Office on each case of renewal or subdivision

5 His Honor the President in Council thinks that these objects may be attained if the abovementioned Bodies Corporate are willing on the issue of any Debentures to compound for the Stamp Duty chargeable thereon by the payment in a lump sum of half per cent on the total amount of the Loan There is no special provision in the law authorizing such a composition but on payment by any of the Corporate Bodies referred to, under such a composition the Government of India will exempt the Debentures from any Stamp Duty with which they might otherwise be chargeable whether on issue renewal or subdivision

6 The payments made under such compositions will be credited to Stamp Revenue

No 3715—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 8 of the Indian Stamp Act 1879 and in continuation of the Notification in the Department of Finance dated 14th August 1880 the President in Council has exempted from stamp duty all agreements with Railway Companies or Administrations which purport to limit the obligations or responsibilities of such Railway Companies or Administrations as carriers under the Indian Contract Act 1872 sections 151 and 161, and are in a form approved by the Governor General in Council under section 10 of the Indian Railway Act 1879

No 3707 —In exercise of the powers conferred by section 23 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878 the President in Council has exempted the following articles from the duties to which they are liable under items 24 and 51 of Schedule A of the Indian Tariff Act of 1875 —

Gum Arabic
Benjamin
Olibanum or Frankincense
Mother o pearl
Tortoise shell

The reason of this exemption is that the said articles are for the most part re exported

Revenues have gained on both sides of the account Twenty eight districts showed an increase in the gross receipts during the year, and 15 (including Calcutta) a decrease The increase was largest in Bhagulpore (Rs 46,613), Patna (Rs 39,657), Gya (Rs 31,255), Purneah (Rs 25,916), and Beerbhoom (Rs 21,419) The following districts showed a decrease Calcutta, inclusive of the Suburbs and Howrah town (Rs 53,669), Sarun (Rs 37,894), Lohardugga (Rs 27,676), and Shahabad (Rs 15,956) The large reduction of Rs 22,534 in the charges was chiefly the result of the extension of the outstill system, the amount disbursed on account of the salaries of distillery establishments showing a decrease of Rs 15,242 With the continued extension of the system during the current year, a further reduction in expenditure may be anticipated

5 Under Country spirits there was an increase in 1879 80 of Rs 2,17,940 throughout the province. It is not possible to make any accurate comparison of the number of shops in each of the past two years, as the outstill system was not introduced or extended uniformly, and the returns from some districts accordingly show shops which were only open for a part of either period. The figures available show—

Sudder distillery system—

Bhagulpore	3 09 291	4 00 167
Orissa	27 103	29 668
Chota Nagpore	2 76 949	2 51 139

There was thus an increase in 1879 80 in all divisions except Calcutta, Chittagong, and Chota Nagpore. It is attributed in every case to the extension of the outstill system, and to the general improvement in the condition of the people. The decrease in Calcutta is said to have been due partly to 'smaller collections from license fees,' and partly to the non settlement of some shops in March. In Chittagong a combination among the vendors, since broken up, kept down the rates. The settlements in Chota Nagpore were affected by the short crop of 1878 79 and by the failure of the mowah.

6 The Lieutenant Governor remarked, in the Resolution on the Report for 1876 77, that the rates of fee for retail licenses seemed to be unduly low in some districts. It is satisfactory to observe that there has since been a general increase, as the following figures show—

M m m t	1 7 77	18 80	18 80
	1 1 1	D 1 1	D 1 1
Rs 43 and less	34	31	17
96 and more	6	8	20

This is in itself sufficient to show that the demand for spirits is rising, as it always has done in this and other countries, with the increased prosperity of the country, and that competition for the right to sell makes the revenue keep pace with the requirements of the public. The reports of the local officers are strongly in favour of the outstill system. The Commissioner of Burdwan states that there is a consensus of opinion among the district officers of that division that the system has been a complete success, that, while increasing the revenue, it has checked illicit distillation, and that it has not increased drunkenness. The people are said to prefer the liquor manufactured at the outstills to the produce of the distilleries as it is weaker and less injurious in its effects. The Commissioner of Rajshahye and Cooch Behar reports that, wherever the system has been introduced, illicit distillation has been put a stop to. The Commissioner of Orissa says "Independent observation has so far in no way shown any real increase of drunkenness." The Commissioner of Patna considers that sufficient materials are not yet available to show whether there has been a greater consumption of spirits than would have taken place under the sudder distillery system, but he reports (and in this he is in accord with the Commissioner of Rajshahye and Cooch Behar) that the outstill liquor has undoubtedly in some measure displaced deleterious drugs. The Commissioner of Bhagulpore alone reports that there has been an increase of drunkenness. The Board state, however, that he has produced no proof of this, and that the remarks of the only district officer of the division who has expressed an opinion on the subject lean to the opposite view. It is important to note that in one of the five districts of this division,—the Sonthal Pergunnahs,—where the sudder distillery system is alone in force, the number of gallons which passed into consumption after payment of duty rose from 47,750 in 1878-79 to 59,221 in 1879-80, though there was no change in the rate. At the same time, with an increase of only one in the number of licenses, there was an increase from Rs 16,183 to Rs 20,720 in the receipts from license fees. In the license fees for tari there was also an increase of no less than Rs 3,510 (or 65 per cent), though the number of shops was reduced from 96 to 81. In view of the large increase in consumption, and the competition for shops, the Lieutenant Governor thinks that the rate of duty on spirits might with advantage be somewhat raised in this district, but there can be no question that an increase in consumption of duty paying liquor, with an increase in fees for licenses both for spirits and tari, and no increase in the facilities for obtaining the liquor, must be the result of increased purchasing power among the people. It is not easy to make a comparison in districts where both systems are in force, but it is a significant fact that in Patna, where the number of distillery shops was largely reduced, while the number of outstills was increased, the quantity which paid duty at the distillery rose from 363,937 gallons to 435,861 gallons, though the rate of duty was constant. This shows that there was a greatly increased demand for spirits within the area subject to the distillery system, which can have been in no way stimulated by the outstill system, and must be attributed to the increased spending power of the people. In view of these facts it appears to the Lieutenant Governor to be premature to declare that, because the revenue is increased under the outstill system, therefore that system produces a demand for liquor which would not otherwise exist. Those who decry the outstill system on the ground that it places cheap liquor within reach of the people, entirely overlook the fact that if the liquor is cheaper, it is also very much weaker, and that, as a matter of fact, the actual amount of alcohol purchasable for a rupee is not greater under the outstill than under the sudder distillery system. The settlements for the current year show a considerable increase, but as the material prosperity of the country increases with the opening up of communications, the circulation of wealth, and a series of good harvests, the Lieutenant Governor has no doubt that a still larger expansion of this revenue will be seen. The revenue on country spirits is still extremely small compared with the population. It is only Rs 7 in Patna Division, and Rs 6 in Bhagulpore, on every 100 of the population. In Durbhunga district it is only Rs 1, and in Mozufferpore only Rs 2. The danger really lies in letting the shops on too easy terms. It is very necessary that district officers should be on their guard against allowing an undue multiplication of shops at unduly low rates, and thus both reducing the price of spirits and giving unnecessary facilities for obtaining it. If, however, they exercise care in selecting the sites for shops, and stimulate a healthy competition among the bidders for licenses, there can be little doubt that, as has been the case under the fixed duty system, the revenue paid to Government and the price charged to the public will rise with the desire and power of the public to purchase. Sir Ashley Eden is thoroughly alive to the importance of seeing that considerations of revenue are not allowed to outweigh the duty of Government to prevent by any means in its power a spread of drunkenness among the people, and he has already ordered a special and searching enquiry into the matter. So far, however, as he has yet had reason to see, there is nothing in the outstill system that need have such an effect, and there is no reason why, with a limited number of shops and a reasonably high upset price on each, the operation of the ordinary causes by which increased demand is met by increase in price should not be sufficient to control the consumption. The central distillery system is only suited to the circumstances of large towns and their environs, it calls for an amount of supervision and preventive action which the existing establishments are not able to give, and the consequence has been that the revenue suffers, while the people supply themselves with inferior and illicit liquor

7 Under the head of Rum there was a falling off in the revenue, amounting to Rs 52,042 as compared with the previous year, and to Rs 1,19,827 as compared with the average of the previous five years. There was an increase from 131 to 147 in the number of retail licenses. The number rose from 23 to 38 in Mymensingh, where the better class of consumers are taking to this spirit in preference to the weaker outstill liquor. In the receipts under license fees, however, there was an actual decrease of Rs 7,700 chiefly the result of the postponement of the settlement of a number of shops in Calcutta till after the close of the year. The fees, which would ordinarily have been deposited in March, were thus excluded from the accounts of 1879-80. The quantity of rum on which duty was paid for retail sale was only 22,196 gallons against 39,298 gallons in 1878-79, 62,018 in 1877-78, 49,663 in 1876-77, and 93,460 in 1875-76. There was a decrease of 16,554 gallons in Calcutta alone. This is only partially explained by the increased importation of Shahjehanpore rum from 20,476 gallons in 1878-79 to 22,798 in 1879-80. It seems probable that the revenue of the year was largely affected by the irregularities recently discovered at a distillery in the neighbourhood of Calcutta. His Government has been for some time in communication with the Governments of India and the North Western Provinces regarding the system under which duty should be paid on rum manufactured in Upper India for export to Bengal.

8 The receipts under the head of Imported spirits and wines show an improvement of Rs 13,658. This represents increased receipts from license fees only, the import duties on these articles being credited to the Imperial Revenues. Under the new Excise Act a license is required for wholesale vend of imported liquors in Calcutta as well as in the interior, and a fee of Rs 50 has been imposed, the fee on wholesale licenses in the interior being at the same time raised to that sum from Rs 16. The result has been a falling off in the number of wholesale licenses in all divisions except the Presidency, with an increase in the gross fees received for wholesale licenses from Rs 2,506 in 1878-79 to Rs 10,243 in 1879-80. General retail licenses produced Rs 1,08,073, against Rs 1,01,496 in the previous year.

9 The revenue from Tari shows a decrease of Rs 19,093 on the returns for 1878-79. There were 4,809 licenses for the sale of unfermented tari, against 1,915 in the previous year, and as the fee was raised from 1st April 1879, the receipts rose from Rs 2,044 to Rs 8,980. The bulk of the increase occurred in the Dacca Division, owing, it is said, to the special efforts of the Divisional Excise Inspector and his staff to check unlicensed sale. For the sale of fermented tari 16,769 licenses were issued, against 17,133 in 1878-79, and the revenue from this source fell from Rs 6,50,722 to Rs 6,21,637. The decrease in the gross revenue from tari was largest in Gya (Rs 9,553), Sarun (Rs 5,721), Monghyr (Rs 5,363), Calcutta (Rs 4,110), Patna (Rs 3,000), and Chumpuun (Rs 2,600). On the other hand there was an increase of Rs 3,510 in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, of Rs 2,585 in Durbhunga, and of Rs 2,496 in Backergunge. The decrease in most of the districts of the Patna and Bhagalpur Divisions is attributed in some measure to the development of the outstill system. It appears, however, that there have also been special difficulties in connection with the settlement, which will probably be obviated by the measures now under trial. The bidders will no longer be required to proceed to the head quarters of each district to seek their licenses. Settlements will be made by the subdivisional officers, and shops will be settled in groups, the number of trees allotted to each license holder being limited. The Lieutenant Governor desires that efforts may be made to extend the system of farming tari shops in groups, which was suggested in the Resolution on the Report for 1877-78. This has already been found to succeed in Burmah, and it is now reported that the experiment has led to increase of revenue in the Rajmhal subdivision.

10 The Ganja crop in 1879-80 is believed to have produced not more than 6,099 maunds, against 9,415 in 1877-78 and 10,514 in 1876-77. In 1878-79 the yield had been exceptionally small (3,768 maunds). The result was that high prices ruled throughout the year. The number of shops was 3,210 against 3,244 in the previous year, and the quantity consumed is reported to have fallen from 5,461 maunds to 5,137. There was consequently a falling off in the receipts, both from fees and from duty, amounting in the aggregate to Rs 55,564. In the Patna Division the decrease in revenue amounted to Rs 50,145, and in the Dacca Division to Rs 11,707. A considerable portion of the falling off in Patna resulted from reduced exports to the North Western Provinces, but there was still a substantial and satisfactory decrease in the local consumption. It is reported that this is owing to the fact that outstill liquor is weaning the people from the use of ganja. If this be so, it is a matter for congratulation. In Shahabad the consumption of ganja fell from 142 maunds to 103, in Sarun from 108 to 100, and in Chumparun from 144 to 116. There has been a steady decrease of late years in the exports of ganja from Bengal to the Upper Provinces, and it is stated that ganja is now largely imported into the North Western Provinces from Guzerat, Khandesh, and Gwalior. The consumption in Orissa shows a decrease in consequence of the high price of Kujshahye ganja, and of the increase in the duty on Gurjat ganja, which the Lieutenant Governor found it necessary to sanction in the end of 1878. The Lieutenant Governor approves the action of the Board in discouraging the Commissioner's proposal that the duty should again be reduced.

11. The license fees from Charas show an increase from Rs 2,671 in 1876-77, Rs 3,141 in 1877-78, and Rs 3,657 in 1878-79, to Rs 4,547 in 1879-80. The Lieutenant Governor has, at the instance of the Board, moved the Government of India to sanction the imposition of an excise duty on this noxious drug, of which the consumption is evidently increasing.

12. There was a decrease in the number of licenses for the sale of Opium from 2,868 to 2,796. The fees offered, however, showed a sensible increase from Rs 1,48,092 to Rs 1,91,186. The quantity sold was 1,796 maunds against 1,750 in 1878-79. The general result was an increase of Rs 70,566 in the revenue, though there was no change in the Government price of the drug in any district. The Dacca Division shows a decrease of 7 maunds in the quantity sold. There was an increase in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions, chiefly contributed by Calcutta and the 24 Pergunnahs. The increase in Pungpore is attributed to the improved condition of the lower classes and the influx of workmen employed on railway construction. In the Patna Division the quantity sold increased from 21 maunds to 30. The plan of farming out the right to sell opium in Durbhunga and Mozufferpore districts has resulted in an increase in the revenue from Rs 1,699 to Rs 3,040 in the former district, and from Rs 1,196 to Rs 2,350 in the latter. The increase in Purneah is attributed in part to the greater facilities afforded to vendors by allowing them to take their supplies from the daroghs and mohurirs in charge of the excise circles. This plan might be adopted elsewhere. If vendors are put to inconvenience in obtaining supplies from Government, the temptation to deal in contraband opium is increased. In Orissa, where all classes use the drug, the consumption rose from 290 to 306 maunds. Exactly half of the total amount was consumed in the Balasore district. Here, as elsewhere in Bengal, the use of opium is increasing as an antidote for certain diseases, chiefly those produced by damp and exposure.

13. Arrests were made for offences against the excise laws in 3,897 cases against 2,842 in the previous year. The number of persons convicted was 3,285 against 2,442. There was a considerable increase in the Burdwan Division. In the Presidency and Rajshahye Divisions there was a falling off. The remarks made by Mr. Monro regarding the disinclination of the police to assist the excise officers deserve the careful attention of the local officers, and the Lieutenant Governor trusts that severe examples will be made in any cases in which such neglect of duty is brought home to the offenders. The large increase in the number of convictions in the Dacca Division and the Chittagong district is creditable to the local officers. The number of cases detected by the excise officers in the Dacca, Furruckpore, Mymensingh, and Tipperah districts shows that there is ample work for special establishments, and that the extent to which the revenue is defrauded by illicit manufacture and sale has hitherto been underrated. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Manbhoom, and Rungpore the excise officers also did good service, and in the latter district the police would seem to have failed in their duty. The Board enumerate the districts of Dinagepore, Rajshahye, Rungpore, Bogia, Pubna Julpigoree, Furreedpore, Tipperah, Nonkholly, Mozufferpore, Durbhunga, Sarun, Bhagulpore, Balasore, and Manbhoom as those in which the excise work of the police has been most unsatisfactory. The Lieutenant Governor desires that the District Superintendents may be warned that the names of those who are shown to have neglected duty in this respect will be specially noted in future. It is unsatisfactory to observe that, out of Rs 26,597 realized from fines imposed in cases prosecuted by the police, only Rs 15,710 were distributed as rewards. A police officer is put to trouble, and often to expense, in obtaining information regarding breaches of the law and in prosecuting the offenders, and the persons detected are generally quite ready to purchase his silence. Under these circumstances it is very unwise to withhold the reward which the law sanctions for his self-imposed labour. The number of cases brought to justice would probably be much greater if more liberality were exercised in the distribution of rewards and the attention of all district officers should be specially drawn to this subject.

14. The Lieutenant Governor has read with satisfaction the favourable reports made of the services rendered by special Inspectors Pran Kumar Doss and Prabhish Chunder Roy in the Patna and Dacca Divisions. The names of the district and other office is selected for special mention by the Board will be communicated to the Appointment Department. To Mr Buckland himself the thanks of Government are due for his excellent administration of this branch of the revenue during the past three years. The very satisfactory results which have been obtained are in great measure due to the care and ability with which he has carried out the policy of Government.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE STAMP DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1879-80

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—SIAMIS

Calcutta the 20th November 1880

RESOLUTION

Read—

The Report of the Board of Revenue on the administration of the Stamp Department for the year 1879-80

The new Stamp Act I of 1879 came into force from the beginning of the year under review. It provides for a direct increase of duty in the case of certain instruments, and has substituted ad valorem duties for fixed duties in the case of certain other instruments. Two new kinds of non-judicial stamps also have come into use under the new Act, viz stamps for the levy of duty (1) on Notarial Acts, and (2) on entry as an advocate, vakildar or attorney on the roll of a High Court. The Government of India have directed the use, for the former, of adhesive foreign Bill stamps with the word "Notarial" printed over, and for the latter of printed forms stamped with special adhesive labels of the required values. The operation of the new Act has had the effect of largely increasing the productivity of this branch of revenue.

2. In accordance with the suggestion made in the Government Resolution on the report for 1878-79, the statements formerly submitted showing the receipts from stamps in all the provinces which obtain their supplies from the Calcutta office have now been omitted, and the present report is limited to the transactions in stamps and the administration of the stamp law in the Lower Province of Bengal. Nor does it contain a review of the sale of stamps in use in the Postal and Telegraph Departments, the receipts of which are credited to the Imperial revenue.

3 The following statement shows the gross revenue in Bengal from the sale of the different denominations of stamps during each of the last five years —

YEAR	SALES OF STAMPS UNDER THE INDIAN STAMP ACT							Sales of stamps used in the Courts, High Court, Small Cause Court, and the Comptroller and Auditor General's Office	Total sales of stamps under the Stamp Act and the Comptroller and Auditor General's Office

As the special adhesive stamps prescribed for stamps used for Notarial Acts and for entry as an advocate, vakeel, or attorney were not ready for issue during the year, special adhesive stamps of the values of Re 1, Rs 2-0 and Rs 500 were used in their stead. The sales of stamps used for these purposes therefore are not shown separately in the above statement.

4 It will be seen that the revenue from the sale of stamps which had been steadily increasing for some years past and which showed a depression last year, has again resumed its elasticity. With the exception of share transfer stamps, in which there is a falling off, the sales of all kinds of non-judicial stamps show an increase amounting to Rs 4,66,169 or 16.3 per cent, while the receipts from judicial stamps show an increase of Rs 2,44,501 or 3.1 per cent. The total increase from judicial and non-judicial stamps amounts to Rs 7,10,970 or 6.7 per cent over the receipts of 1878-79. The total gross receipts including duty on unstamped paper, adjudication fees, penalties, &c., amounted in each of the past three years to—

1877-78	1 08 13 321
1878-79	1 07 84 994
1879-80	1,14,98 422

The sum payable to the Government of India in each of the years was—

	Rs
1877-78	99,00 000
1878-79	1 01 25 000
1879-80	1 03,50 000

The development of this branch of the revenue, since it was entrusted to the management of the local Government, has thus been extremely satisfactory. The charges, exclusive of refunds, amounted to Rs 2,69,379 against Rs 2,70,727 in 1878-79, and Rs 2,46,763 in 1877-78. The fixed grant from the Imperial Revenues for the management of this branch is Rs 2,38,000. The gradual increase in the charges represents increased payments for commission to vendors of stamps.

2. The receipts in Calcutta, as usual, were the highest, and in Singhbhum the lowest. In the following thirteen districts the receipts exceeded three lakhs of rupees,—

Districts.	Non-judicial Stamps	Judicial Stamps.	Total.
	Rs	Rs	Rs
Calcutta	8 61 557	10 20 097	18,81,654
24 Pergunnahs	1,14 164	4 23 886	5 37,850
Jessore	1 02 911	4,19 582	5,22,493
Mymensing	1,63 481	3 34,185	4,97,670
Dacca	1 42 988	3 42 240	4,85,226
Baekergunge	89 100	3 59 066	4 48,466
Midnapore	91 231	2 87 488	3,78,719
Mozufferpore	72 119	2,85,314	3 57,433
Tipperah	92 934	2 59 081	3 52,015
Nuddea	78 807	2,70 359	3 49,166
Chittagong	84,201	2,48,298	3 32,499
Patna	1 05 867	2 10 575	3,16,442
Burdwan	74 131	2,36 366	3,10,497

In 1878 79 all these districts, with the exception of Chittagong, returned receipts exceeding three lakhs. In nine districts the receipts during the past year exceeded two lakhs, and in ten they exceeded one lakh.

6. The general incidence of the stamp revenue on the population of Bengal is only two annas and 11 pies per head, or Rs 18 to every hundred inhabitants. This includes the Calcutta receipts, which amount to one-sixth of the whole revenue and reach the rate of Rs 438 on every 100 of the population of the town. In the interior the rate of incidence on every 100 souls ranges from Rs 2 in Singhbhum, Rs 4 in Chumparun, and Rs 6 in Durbhunga, to Rs 29 in Chittagong, Rs 30 in Noakholly, and Rs 40 in Howrah. Obviously with the gradual development of the wealth of the province there is ample scope for expansion of the stamp revenue.

7. The receipts under the head of Impressed Stamps amounted to Rs 23,88,487 against Rs 19,89,374 in 1878 79, showing an increase of Rs 3,99,113 or 20 per cent. The only districts which do not show an increase are Sarun, Manbhum, and Singhbhum. Calcutta, in which there was a falling off during the last two years, shows this year the unprecedentedly large increase of 71.4 per cent, owing principally to the operation of the new Stamp Act. This was also the main cause of the increase in receipts throughout the country generally. Part of the increase is also attributed to larger sales of non judicial paper for use under the Arms Act, and for renewal of bonds and mortgages, which would otherwise have been barred by the new Law of Limitation. In Orissa, where there was an increase of 24 per cent in Cuttack, 23 per cent in Pooree, and 19 per cent in Balasore, the increasing tendency to employ stamped paper instead of palm leaves for the record of pottahs and kabulyats is reported to have contributed mainly to the result. In Chittagong the improvement is said to have been due to the increased number of leases executed in consequence of sales for arrears of revenue. Mymensing, Durbhunga, and Darjeeling, which also last year showed a decline, have this year returned an increased revenue. The decrease in Manbhum is accounted for by the transfer of seven pergunnahs to the Bankoora district. The decrease of Rs 342 in Singhbhum, where the revenue is always trifling, is said to have been caused by the cholera panic which prevailed in Chyobassa during the earlier part of the year.

8. Special Adhesive Stamps or Stamped Labels are affixed on certain specified instruments by the Collector of Stamp Revenue or the Superintendent of Stamps, Calcutta, who are the only officers in the Lower Provinces empowered to affix them. The receipts exceeded those of 1878 79 by Rs 39,680 or 7.2 per cent. The realizations on account of stamp duty on Notarial Acts, and for entry as an advocate, vakeel, &c, are included under this head.

9. Adhesive stamps are of three descriptions—One anna revenue stamps used for receipts, cheques, &c, Share transfer stamps, and Foreign bill stamps.

The collections under one-anna revenue stamps amounted to Rs 1,92,153 against Rs 1,76,066, showing an increase of Rs 16,087 or over 9 per cent. There have been improved collections in 37 districts, the increase varying from 110·7 per cent in Hooghly to 1 per cent in Burdwan and Mozufferpore. The large increase in Hooghly corresponds with the decrease in Calcutta. Hitherto a higher rate of discount has been allowed in Hooghly than in Howrah or Calcutta, and vendors have taken advantage of this to make large purchases from the first named treasury. To check this irregular practice, an amended rule was passed and notified in July 1880, by which the rates in Calcutta, and in the sudder stations of the 24 Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, and Burdwan districts, have been made uniform, and it has been laid down that a licensed vendor shall obtain all his supplies of stamps from the treasury of the district for which his license is granted, and shall sell them at the place mentioned in the license.

The revenue from Foreign Bill Stamps was Rs 30,725 against Rs 25,408 in the previous year. The increase is attributed partly to the increase in the number and value of these instruments negotiated in Calcutta, and partly to the higher rate of duty chargeable under the new Act.

Under Share Transfer Stamps only the receipts show a falling off during the year. The Board say that the decline in the sales is not susceptible of any special explanation.

10 The sales of Hoondi or Bill of Exchange Stamps amounted to Rs 1,10,969 against Rs 1,03,375 in the preceding year. There were increases in 20 districts and decreases in 15, the remaining nine districts did not contribute anything to the revenue under this head. The Collector states that the Calcutta receipts have been improved, owing to the conviction by the Presidency Magistrate of one Bhoora Mull, a Marwari, who was prosecuted for selling in Calcutta, without a license, hoondi stamps which he had bought in Ajmere. There are still, it is believed, some Marwaris who carry on this trade surreptitiously; their proceedings will be carefully watched. It appears that the Collector of the 24 Pergunnahs discovered certain irregularities in regard to hoondi sales from that treasury. There is no local demand for these stamps in the district, but two men were found to have obtained licenses for Bhowanipore and Chutpore under which they were enabled to purchase at the Alipore Treasury stamps which they sold in Barbazai in Calcutta. The Lieutenant Governor would be glad to know the result of the further enquiries made by the Collector. It is difficult to see what motive the men could have unless difficulties are thrown in the way of purchasers at the Calcutta Collectorate.

11 The revenue from Court fee Stamps includes the receipts from the sale of three kinds of stamps, viz adhesive court fee labels, High Court service stamps, and the Calcutta Small Cause Court fee stamps. The total collections amounted to Rs 79,97,276 against Rs 77,52,770 in the preceding year, showing an increase of Rs 2,44,501 or 3·1 per cent. The receipts under High Court service stamps were the same as in 1878-79, while those under Small Cause Court fee stamps showed a decrease of Rs 2,706. The increase under adhesive court fee stamps amounted to Rs 2,47,207. The increase was distributed among 27 districts, while in the remaining 17 districts there was a decrease of revenue. The increase varies from 33·5 per cent in Cuttack to 9 per cent in Calcutta. The highest rate of decrease was in Singbhum 33·4, and the lowest in Bogra, 1·5 per cent. The largest increases in amount took place in Jessore (Rs 51,666 or 14 per cent), Backergunge (Rs 37,717 or 11 per cent), and Cuttack (Rs 35,389 or 33 per cent), the largest decreases in Shahabad (Rs 34,946 or 16 per cent), Durbhunga (Rs 21,922 or 18 per cent), and Rajshahiye (Rs 20,142 or 16 per cent). The increase in the number of suits, which contributed largely to the expansion of the revenue, is accounted for in some districts by the expiration, on 30th September 1879, of the two years' grace allowed under the new Limitation Act. In others, special local causes operated. In the 24 Pergunnahs a large estate changed hands, and the new owner proceeded to strengthen his position by suing the ryots; Pubna became the head quarters of a Judge's charge, in Jessore the local authorities believe that their vigilance has driven the zemindars to assert their claims through the Courts instead of through their own retainers. The value of suits was also higher in some districts. In Calcutta, Patna, and Cuttack large payments were made on account of letters of administration, probates, and certificates. The operation of the Land Registration Act helped to swell the receipts in Cuttack, Balasore, Chittagong, Dacca, and Sarun. The decrease of 23 per cent in Singbhoon only represents Rs 1,200, it is chiefly attributed to the outbreak of cholera at Chyebassa, which for a time paralyzed business. In Julpigoree there was a fall of 22 per cent, the receipts of the previous year having been abnormally high in consequence of the destruction of the Deputy Commissioner's court house with most of its records. The falling off in Rajshahye is attributed to the curtailment of the civil jurisdiction of the district. The decrease in Shahibul and Durbhunga is explained by the decrease in the number of suits, but to what cause this was due is not stated.

12 The Government of India in the Financial Department, in their order No 1168, dated 8th March 1880 directed that information regarding the annual consumption of each denomination of court fee label should be given in the stamp administration reports. The Board give this information in paragraph 69 for the year 1879 80. It appears that the largest numbers sold were, as usual, of 8 anna labels (3,537,951), 1 anna (2,259,901,) and Re 1 (1,327,055). The sales of the other denominations of court fee labels range from 100 of Rs 1,000 to 349,163 of Rs 2 labels.

13 The table below shows the number of cases in which duty and penalty were realized by Civil Courts and Collectors respectively, and the amount of duty and penalty realized —

YEARS	NUMBER OF CASES IN WHICH DUTY AND PENALTY WERE REALIZED BY			DUTY AND PENALTY REALIZED BY
	Civil Court	Collector	Total	Court	Collector	Total
				R A I	R A P	R A I
1878 79	776	1 163	1 939	9 40 9 6	1 17 11 1	18 017 4 7
1879 80	910	1 268	1 8	7 7 15 0	1 04 13 6	0 51 11 6

There was an increase in the number of cases as well as in the aggregate amount realized, though the realizations in the Civil Courts were smaller than in the previous year. Still it is quite clear that in many districts a reprehensible apathy in this matter is shown both by the Civil Courts and by the Revenue authorities. It is not easy to believe that only 10 cases occurred in which the courts should have interfered in Burdwan, while 49 occurred in Midnapore, 13 in Nuddea against 50 in 24 Pergunnahs and 48 in Jessore, 7 in Rajshahye against 31 in Julpigoree, 2 in Chumpraun against 40 in Durbhanga, 4 in Balasore against 31 in Cuttack, and 3 in Hazaribagh against 36 in Maunbhoon. The variations are still greater in the proceedings of the Revenue authorities. Action was only taken in 7 cases in Jessore against 117 in Nuddea, in 10 in Mymensing against 104 in Dacca, in 5 in Noakholly against 131 in Chittagong. There were only 12 cases in the Orissa Division, 22 in Chota Nagpore, and 35 in Rajshahye and Cooch Behar. The Lieutenant Governor cannot believe that there was practically no evasion, or no opportunity for detecting it, in the districts which return so very few cases, and he must hold the district officers responsible for much preventable loss of revenue. This matter should receive the early attention of the Commissioners. It is stated that many district officers are in the habit of accepting the plea of ignorance or inadvertence, imposing only the minimum penalty leviable under the Act. The Lieutenant Governor entirely agrees with the Board in thinking that, with the provision for obtaining an authoritative opinion regarding the stamp duty chargeable on any instrument, the plea of ignorance should no longer be admitted. The High Court issued a circular during the year to all civil judicial officers, pointing out the changes which have been made by the new Act in the law regarding the admission in evidence of unstamped or insufficiently stamped documents. The Board also have drawn the attention of revenue officers to that circular, and have further issued orders to correct another irregular procedure adopted by some of the Revenue officers and Civil Courts who, in dealing with unstamped or insufficiently stamped instruments executed while the old Stamp Acts were in force, have been levying penalties as prescribed by those Acts instead of by the new Act of 1879. The High Court have been asked to issue a similar order with a view to correct this irregularity in the Civil Courts. The remarks of the Commissioner of Bardwan regarding the failure of some officers of the Registration Department to impound insufficiently stamped deeds will be considered in the Judicial Department. The matter is of serious importance, as the registering officers have exceptional facilities for protecting the revenue, if they are willing to make use of them.

14 The following table shows the number of prosecutions for infractions of the stamp law —

YEARS	Number of prosecutions instituted	Number of cases tried	Number of convictions	Number acquitted	Fines realized.	Rewards given	REMARKS
					R A P	Rs
1878-79	185	358	309	49	4 7 1 0	Nil
1879-80	290	427	310	57	3 19 3 8 0	25	30 pending trial

The result of the prosecutions is favourable, the proportion of convictions to acquittals being nearly 6 to 1. This shows that the prosecutions were judiciously instituted. In 19 districts the prosecutions were more numerous than in the preceding year. In 11 districts the number of cases showed a falling off, while in the 11 districts named in the margin there were no prosecutions. These 11 districts include Patna, Shahabad, Sarun, Monghyr, and Balasore, in which the absence of prosecutions during 1878-79 was specially noticed in the Board's report of that year, and in the Government Resolution thereon, and yet no improvement in this respect is shown in the year under review. The Lieutenant Governor considers this very unsatisfactory. Indeed, except in Durbhunga and Chumparun, the penal provisions of the stamp law appear to be a dead letter in the Patna and Bhagulpore Divisions. The statement that it would be difficult to obtain convictions cannot be accepted in view of the satisfactory results of prosecutions elsewhere. In Durbhunga 75 persons were convicted out of 80, and in Chumparun 41 out of 43. The Lieutenant Governor must insist on more energy being displayed in these divisions, and in Orissa and Chota Nagpore. The Board justly remark on the inadequacy of the fines inflicted in some districts. In Jessore the fines on two persons amounted to Rs 18, and in Maldah two persons were each fined a rupee.

15 It is satisfactory to find that the number of licensed stamp vendors has increased from 2,461 to 3,047. The increase took place principally in the Presidency, Dacca, Rajshahye and Bardwan Divisions. In the Patna and Bhagulpore Divisions, as well as in Lohardugga and Julpigoree, the number of vendors is limited, so that practically a sort of monopoly exists in the hands of a few favoured individuals, who are generally connected with the amlah of the district courts. The Board have called upon the local officers to take early measures to license additional vendors wherever it may conduce to the convenience of the public. The experiment of putting up to auction the right to sell stamps at the High Court and the Calcutta Collectorate, which was sanctioned last year, is still under trial, and the Lieutenant Governor will await the report which the Board promise to submit on the subject at the close of the current official year.

16 The subject of the introduction of the auction system in the interior of the country came under the Board's consideration during the year, but they do not recommend it, as its effect would be to limit the right to sell stamps to a few individuals. The Lieutenant Governor agrees with the Board in thinking that it would be better to reduce the rates of discount at the principal stations where the profits of licensed stamp vendors are large and the demand for licenses is great, than to attempt to raise revenue by the introduction of the auction system in the interior.

17 Several cases of forged court fee stamps and of the abstraction and re-use of court fee labels were discussed during the year. As they have been the subject of special correspondence, no further notice need be taken of them in this place. The Board's proposals in paragraph 96, for checking the numerous abuses which have been brought to light, appear to be good, but, as a reference on the subject will have to be made to the High Court, orders on them will be issued hereafter

18 With the view to effecting improvements in the levy of the process fees, the Government of India, in their letter No 2649, dated 9th September 1879, sanctioned the Board's proposal to issue the ordinary 8 anna forms in triplicate, bound up in sets of four books of 250 each, and bearing consecutive numbers up to 1,000. Different colours were to be used for the different courts, and one book at a time was to be given to the Nazir, representing a permanent advance to him. The Board, however, have found some difficulty in the way of the general introduction of this system, owing chiefly to the large number of different revenue processes in use and the variety of fees leviable, but they have chosen some of the processes in most ordinary use, and counterfoil forms of these will be introduced as a tentative measure. The High Court have made revised proposals in regard to Civil Court processes and these are under the consideration of the Board.

19 The attention of the Government of India will be invited to paragraph 101 of the report, as showing the necessity of some alterations being made in the manufacture of adhesive labels, if the use of these is to be continued, to prevent the forgeries which are becoming more numerous.

20* The inspection of record rooms by the special Deputy Collectors appointed in August 1879 to test stamps in the record rooms is progressing. The stamps in the Civil Courts in the Presidency, Burdwan, and Bhugulpore Divisions have been examined, and those of the Patna Division were under examination when the year closed. No serious irregularity was discovered in any of the courts.

21 The thanks of Government are due to the Board for their successful management of the Stamp Department, and the Lieutenant Governor has noticed with satisfaction the commendation bestowed by the Board on Mr Monro, Commissioner of the Presidency Division and Mr Ravenshaw, Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, for their careful reports.

ORDER — Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution, with a copy of the Board's report, be submitted for the information of the Government of India, in the Department of Finance and Commerce and that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Board of Revenue for information.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON VACCINATION IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1879 80

MEDICAL & MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT — MEDICAL

Calcutta the 15th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The report by the Surgeon General for Bengal on Vaccination during the year 1879 80

The report on Vaccination, which was due on the 31st July last, reached this office on the 30th September last. The delay is due to the fact that the statistical tables appended to the report have for the first time been prepared in the forms prescribed by the orders of the Government of India, dated the 9th May 1877.

2 The general results of the past year compare favourably with those of the previous year. The total number of operations performed during 1879 80, including re vaccinations, was 1,742,995 against 1,415,864 in 1878 79 and 1,285,301 in 1877 78, showing a net increase of 427,111 cases as compared with the results of the previous year. Of the above, 1,021,452 operations were performed by licensed vaccinators, and 624,898 by the vaccine staff, exclusive of dispensary vaccinators, against 620,439 and 567,623 respectively in 1878 79. There was an increase of work in all the circles, except in the Calcutta and Behar Circles, which showed a falling off of 25,937 cases. A decrease is observable in dispensary vaccination to the extent of 56,177 cases, but this is counterbalanced by the general increased outturn of work. The increase was greatest in the Metropolitan and Danjeling Circles, which showed an excess of 231,202 and 113,692 respectively over the operations of the preceding year. Of the total number of operations performed, 25,562 were re vaccinations. Of these, 21,012 were performed in the Calcutta Circle alone, and 2,273 in the remaining circles, while 2,277 were performed by vaccinators attached to dispensaries.

3 The number of operations effected in the Calcutta Circle (37,792) was less by 25,039 than that performed in the preceding year. It is urged, however, that in 1877 78 and 1878 79 vaccination was abnormally stimulated by the alarm arising from the epidemic which prevailed. Comparison can therefore most fairly be made with 1876 77 and the two previous years. Dr Charles appeals to the following figures to show that in the town of Calcutta vaccination is making very satisfactory progress, though there has been a serious falling off in the Suburbs —

	Town	Suburbs
1874 75	8,295	9,781
1875 76	6,266	9,626
1876 77	5,852	9,384
Average of 5 years ending 1879 80	8,505	9,634
1879 80	8,692	7,082

The decrease in the Suburbs is said to have taken place in the southern division only. The Superintendent attributes this to the special activity of previous years. Dr Charles properly declines to accept this explanation as sufficient, and points to the falling off in March from an average of 1,716 to 501 as indicating a want of energy and perseverance on the part of the staff. In this view the Lieutenant Governor concurs.

In the Behar Circle the returns show a decrease of 898 cases on the very small total (11,959) of the previous year. The chief explanation offered, that the number of unprotected children has been greatly reduced, cannot be accepted as in any way satisfactory. The general aversion of the people is also referred to, and this the Commissioner seems to consider the chief cause. It will not be possible for Government to maintain the expensive establishment now at work for such small results as are here shown. The Sanitary Commissioner will be requested to proceed without delay to this circle, and to report, in consultation with the local officers, whether the failure experienced has been due to any want of competence on the part of the staff, and whether he would recommend that the circle be maintained, or that the work be postponed until a larger staff can be transferred from the districts in which they are now engaged. It is to be observed that in the report for 1878-79 one cause of the want of success was stated to be a want of co-operation on the part of the police. This, however, is a difficulty which the local officers should be able to remove at once if they interest themselves properly in the matter.

The other circles all show an increase. The figures for two years stand thus—

	1878-79	1879-80	Increase
Metropolitan	391,136	621,388	231,202
Darjeeling	239,857	373,549	113,692
Ranchi	133,886	164,803	11,222
Sonthal Pergunnahs	40,229	113,953	73,724
Eastern Bengal	235,802	306,066	70,264
Orissa	31,612	43,733	9,121

In the Metropolitan Circle the work, it is said, would have progressed more satisfactorily, but for the paucity of unprotected children in places which have been travelled over in previous years, and for the difficulty felt in the recovery of fees. The floods in the Nuddea and Jessore districts also interfered with the work.

4 Notwithstanding the satisfactory results generally obtained, difficulties and opposition had to be encountered. In the Cooch Behar State a zemindar is said to have prevented vaccination in the mohulla in which he resided, although small pox was present in it thereby sacrificing his own life and the lives of others to his prejudices. Vaccination would have come to a stand still in Singhbhum but for the energetic action of the Deputy Commissioner, Major Garbett, who convinced the people of the harmlessness of the operation by causing himself to be vaccinated in the presence of a crowd. The Commissioner will be requested to submit a report on the statement that an Honorary Magistrate greatly obstructed the work around Chyhbissa. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs district the people offer no objection to vaccination, but in Bhagulpor and Monghyr they are said to be "obstinate and refractory." In Eastern Bengal, especially in Backergunge, strong opposition is met with from the Feraizi sect.

5 The total number of operations reported to have been successful in 1879-80 was 1,659,590 against 1,251,936 in 1878-79. The percentage of successful cases in primary vaccination, excluding dispensary vaccination, was 98.05 against 95.49 in the preceding year. The proportion is highest in the Metropolitan and Eastern Bengal Circles, being 99.75 and 99.37 respectively. The lowest rate, 88.49, is as usual, exhibited by the Ranchi Circle. In secondary vaccinations the ratio of success was 20.91 per cent against 46.89 in the preceding year, and 72.06 in 1877-78. Dispensary vaccination shows a rate of success of 85.57 in primary and 55.81 in secondary operations, against 94.97 of the former and 77.57 of the latter in the preceding year.

6 The average number of operations performed by each vaccinator during 1879-80 was 1,442 against 1,191 in 1878-79. Increased work was performed in the Darjeeling, Eastern Bengal, Metropolitan and Orissa Circles, while the Calcutta, Ranchi, Sonthal Pergunnahs, and Behar Circles show a decrease. The average outturn of work of each vaccinator employed in dispensary vaccination cannot be definitely stated, as the number of men employed on this work is not given with any accuracy. The amount of work performed was, as in previous years, lowest in the Behar Circle.

7 The sex of 1,654,210 of the persons vaccinated was registered. Of these, 867,115 were males and 787,095 females, giving a percentage of 52.42 males to 47.58 females. The proportion is nearly the same as was obtained during the preceding year. No record was kept of the ages of those who were successfully vaccinated.

8 The total cost of the Vaccination Department during the past year amounted to Rs. 1,20,017 10 3, and was adjusted as follows —

	Rs	A	P
Met from Provincial funds	1,07,178	10	3
from Municipal funds	4,548	0	0
Paid by Native States	212	0	0
Paid from Dispensary funds	8,079	0	0
Total	1,20,017	10	3

The proportion of the expenditure derived from Municipal and other local funds was Rs 12,839, or only 10 7 per cent against 10 5 per cent in 1878 79. The total cost to the State was Rs 1,07,178 against Rs 1,00,517 in 1878 79, and Rs 1,09,577 in 1877 78. The average cost of each successful case was one anna one pie against one anna six pies in the previous year, and one anna seven pies in 1877 78. All the circles show reduced cost, except Calcutta, where it rose to nine annas three pies against six annas five pies in 1878 79. In Calcutta the increase was of course due to the smaller outturn of work, while the same scale of establishment was maintained as in the past year. The Behar Circle shows the average cost at seven annas four pies against seven annas six pies in 1878 79. The cost of dispensary vaccinations rose from one anna one pie in 1878 79 to two annas four pies in 1879 80. In those circles in which both the licensed and the Government agency worked together, the average cost of each successful case performed by licensed vaccinators is much less than that of work done by Government servants. Thus in the Darjeeling, Ranchi, and Eastern Bengal Circles, the average cost of each successful case performed by licensed agency is four pies, three pies, and two thirds of a pie, while the same work done by Government agency would cost one anna seven pies, three annas nine pies, and 11 pies respectively. The pay of the supervising agency, however, is not included in the former case.

9 The system of self supporting vaccination is gradually being extended throughout Bengal. As shown above, the number of operations performed by the licensed agency during the year represented upwards of half the work done by the department. In the Metropolitan Circle the number of licensed vaccinators rose from 294 to 377 during the past year. The total number of operations performed by these men was 625,388 against 394,186 in the previous year, giving a percentage of successful cases in primary vaccination of 99 75. In the Darjeeling Circle there were employed 120 licensed vaccinators against 90 men in 1878 79. These men performed 135,514 operations against 88,871 in 1878 79, returning a percentage of 98 85 of successful cases. In the Ranchi Circle, against 125 licensed vaccinators there were during the past year 149 licensed men who performed 114,573 operations against 87,492, showing a ratio per cent of success of 89 59.

10 In the Sonthal Pergunnahs Circle the number of ex inoculators rose from 15 to 165 in 1879 80. The number of operations performed was 30,416 against 3,942 in the previous year, giving a percentage of 98 52 of successful cases. In the Eastern Bengal Circle 53 ex inoculators worked against 47 in 1878 79, and operated on 115,561 persons against 34,731 in the previous year. Here the ratio per cent of success was 98 99. Altogether 894 licensed vaccinators and ex inoculators worked during the past year, and performed 1,021,452 operations of which 98 32 per cent of primary vaccinations was successful. The total number of paid vaccinators employed, and the number of operations performed by them, amounted to 260 and 654,898 respectively, the ratio per cent of success being 97 61.

11 The total number of villages visited by officers of the Vaccination Department during the year was 21 353, while the number of cases inspected amounted to 1,096,935 out of 1,638,558. Of vaccinations performed by the paid staff, 653 per cent were inspected. In the Ranchi and the Sonthal Pergunnahs Circles the percentage of inspections was satisfactory, being 84 8 and 79 8 respectively of the total number vaccinated. In the Darjeeling Circle the percentage was 68 1, and in the Eastern Bengal, Orissa, and Behar Circles, 49 9, 41 1, and 56 3 respectively. These results are very unsatisfactory.

It is explained that in Behar and Orissa the Superintendents personally inspected the cases. This, however, is not a sufficient excuse. The total number of vaccinations recorded in the Behar Circle was only 11,061, and the Superintendent should be called upon to explain why he only inspected 6,235 of these. It can hardly be expected that vaccination will make progress among a people who regard it with suspicion and aversion, if the superior staff do not exhibit more interest in their work than appears to be the case in this circle. In the Ranchi Circle too the number of cases inspected by the Superintendent was quite insufficient, and an explanation should be required. In explanation of the small outturn of inspection work performed in the Eastern Bengal Circle, it is stated that the Deputy Superintendent was ineffective from illness during half the season, if this was the case, he should have applied to be relieved. Of the Calcutta Circle no details are given. Of vaccinations performed by licensed agency, 69.1 per cent were inspected. The officers of the Metropolitan Circle inspected 94.7 per cent, those of the Darjeeling and Ranchi Circles 31.3 respectively. In the Sonthal Pargunnahs and Eastern Bengal Circles only 5.7 and 16 per cent respectively were inspected and verified. The Lieutenant Governor must insist on closer attention being paid to this important work. Little reliance can be placed on vaccination if the inspection is not searching and constant.

12. The work of the Vaccination Department is steadily increasing year by year. The following table shows at a glance the total number of persons vaccinated, and the number on whom the operation was successfully performed during each of the years 1870-71 to 1879-80 inclusive.—

	1870-71	1871-72	1872-73	1873-74	1874-75	1875-76	1876-77	1877-78	1878-79	1879-80
	17,800	313,009	619,120	712,664	940,071	1,068,800	1,480,906	1,240,000	1,270,800	1,417,133
	2,07,767	508,219	580,078	602,400	880,308	990,693	1,147,537	1,100,190	1,200,130	1,081,996

13. The supervision and control of the Department has, since the close of the year, passed from the Surgeon General to the Sanitary Commissioner. The office of Superintendent General of Vaccination having been abolished, the work of the town has been made over to the Health Officer of the Municipality, the charge of vaccination in the Suburbs being undertaken by the Superintendent of the Metropolitan Circle. In communicating these orders to the Surgeon General, the Lieutenant Governor desired that the thanks of the Bengal Government might be tendered to Dr. Charles for the long and valuable services rendered by him as Superintendent General of Vaccination. Vaccination has now attained a most satisfactory development in Calcutta, and Government has been enabled to pass a compulsory law with the approval of the native inhabitants who have been taught the value of vaccination by the experience of the last fifteen years. The credit for this is entirely due to Dr. Charles, whose assiduity and devotion to the work have been crowned with complete success.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal

The mean pressure, temperature &c are deduced from observations made at 6 h, 10 h, 16 h and 22 h, and from the traces of the barograph and thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from air registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shelter open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on Regnault's modification of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

On nearing it to the distance of about half a mile the depth of $3\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms over coarse sand was obtained. Captain Vines then landed on the bank and describes it as being composed of sand almost circular about 14 yards in diameter and to dry about 2 feet at low water with $1\frac{1}{2}$ fathom at the distance of half a cable around.

OPERATIONS UNDER THE CHOTA NAGPORE TENURES ACT II (B C) OF 1869

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE

Calcutta the 25th November 1880

RESOLUTION

The final report of the operations under the Chota Nagpore Tenures Act II (B C) of 1869, submitted by the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore

Read again—

All previous correspondence and orders in connection with the introduction and working of that Act

The operations under the Chota Nagpore Tenures Act II (B C) of 1869 commenced on the 1st April 1869, and were not concluded until the 31st March 1880, having occupied just eleven years. The duration of the work far exceeded the period at first contemplated. The magnitude of the undertaking was not in fact fully realized until some progress had been made with the operations, and the difficulties attending them began to develop themselves. In reviewing the proceedings under the Act, and the general results, it will be convenient, first, to look back to the origin and history of the disputes regarding the tenures of the Chota Nagpore Estate which eventually necessitated recourse to special legislation, and to offer some account of the nature of these tenures.

2 Of the early history of the Chota Nagpore Estate, which embraces the plateau of Chota Nagpore Proper, no authentic information is extant. The first settlers appear to have been Mundas and Oraons, both commonly described as Kols, who established themselves in the country under a system of village communas, which at some later period came under subjection, either voluntarily or by conquest, to a Nagvansi family, the Rajahs of Chota Nagpore. The Kols agreed to serve and support the ruling head of this family but in course of time, finding themselves treated with contempt by the Nagvanshis, they broke out into revolt, and the Rajahs, in order to effect their subjugation, introduced many foreigners into the country, to whom they made assignments of lands in return for military services. Considerable alienations of land were also effected from time to time in favour of relatives of the Rajahs, many villages were granted to Brahmins through whom an attempt was made to convert and civilize the aboriginal population, and in many cases leases of villages were granted to foreign farmers in direct supersession of the Kol headmen. Thus in place of the simple and direct relations originally existing between the Rajahs and their Kol subjects, there grew up a system under which the Kols were subordinated to a number of foreign middlemen, or the descendants of such, and were practically left at their mercy. Among a population so jealous of their rights such a state of things naturally produced frequent local disturbances. Unfortunately, although the estate came under British administration shortly after 1760, it was not until many years had elapsed that the grievances of the Kols attracted the serious attention of the officers of Government, and a long period again elapsed before any practical attempt was made to settle the disputes between them and their landlords. The first report submitted to Government on the people and tenures of the estate was, apparently, drawn up in 1826 by Mr. Cuthbert, Collector of the old zillah of Ramguri, but the best known of the early reports on the subject is that submitted by Dr. John Davidson in 1839.

The relations between the middlemen or jaghirdars of the estate and the Kols, and the earlier troubles, are described in the following extract from the final report of Baboo Rukhal Das Halder, First Special Commissioner in charge of the late operations. "About the sub proprietors in Chota Nagpore, Mr. Cuthbert wrote as follows — 'The jaghirdars (with few exceptions) have always been considered a turbulent description of people, and their dependents, although oppressed by them, do whatever they desire from the mere habit of obedience, which they have always been taught to consider due to their immediate superiors, and are frequently excited by them to plunder their neighbours. The half deserted villages which are frequently met with evince the oppressive conduct of these people as landlords.' These jaghirdars were no other than the predecessors of the Nagvansi, Rajput, Rantia, Bihman, and Bhuman illaquadars of the present day. It is but just to admit that, with all their faults, they had hardly done more in oppressing the tenantry than what would have been done by even better educated landlords under similar circumstances. The Nagpore jaghirdars had lived among the Kols for many generations past, their interests were in several things quite identical with those of the Kols. Such among them as were not utterly devoid of common sense or common humanity could scarcely fail to see the great usefulness of the aboriginal cultivators. From these and some other reasons it is unnecessary to discuss here, we may fairly suppose that a considerable proportion of the old jaghirdars lived peaceably with their tenants. Candidly admitting these facts, we may be sure, on the other hand, that after all the jaghirdars were alien to the aborigines, who could not but have grounds for disliking the majority of the sub proprietors. The oppressions of these men, however, were borne with, but a far worse class of men had obtained a footing in the country about the year 1822, when the late Maharajah, Jagannath Sula Deo, obtained his ancestral gads on the death of his father in July of that year. These men were Mussulmans, Sikhs, and some others who came to the country as horse dealers and shawl and brocade merchants, fetched enormous offers for their goods from the Nagvansi Chiefs, and obtained farms of villages instead of cash of which latter the Chiefs were always in want. The foreign firms having but a temporary interest in the villages, squeezed as much as possible from the ryots in the shape of rents, abwabs and salams. But this was not all. They proved their yoke to be galling indeed, and rendered the very name of thikadar in Chota Nagpore infamous. The Mundas said among themselves — 'The Pathans have taken our hoor mat, and the Sunhs our sisters. Our lives are of no value, and being of one caste, let us stand fast to each other and commence to cut, plunder, murder, and loot." This resolve culminated in the insurrection of 1832. The immediate effect of the breaking up of the insurrection by the Government was unfavourable for the aborigines, but a reaction soon followed, and from that time forth the Kols began to attract the particular notice of Government officers, courts for the cheap and easy administration of justice came to be established and certain unusual facilities were afforded the aborigines for obtaining redress of their grievances. Supposing the Government to be partial to them, a large number of suits in forma pauperis were instituted by the Kols for the restoration of lands or villages which had passed out of their possession either within or beyond periods of legal limitation. The suitors met with varying success. In a few cases they certainly got lands to which they had no legal right, in others they proved no match for the jaghirdars and thikadars. While all this was going on, Dr John Davidson was Principal Assistant to the Agent, Governor General, South West Frontier, and in charge of the Loharduggi district. That officer had opportunities for studying the peculiarities of the people and then tenures very thoroughly, and his experience was embodied in his well known and oft quoted report dated 29th August 1839. Dr Davidson showed that the Kols were continually being deprived of their lands through the oppression and machinations of the jaghirdars and thikadars, and that the facilities already afforded them for getting justice were not sufficient. He accordingly proposed other measures for the protection of the aborigines. All Dr Davidson's suggestions could not be carried out, and the litigation about lands continued to prevail as before." Dr Davidson's principal proposals were first, that the local officers should be authorized to investigate, in a summary way, all cases for the recovery of bhumiiri lands, giving possession when satisfied of the justice of the claim and that the claimant had not been out of possession for more than 20 years, an appeal to lie to the Agent to the Governor General, and secondly, that the quantity of labour to be demanded of the ryots should be regulated, and a proclamation issued and freely circulated all over the country that under no circumstances should more labour be exacted. Dr Davidson was of opinion that the investigation of claims to land by regular suit would give the landlords an undue advantage over the simple Kols.

4 Matters continued without material improvement for many years. Meantime the first Christian mission in Chota Nagpore was established in 1845, and large numbers of Kols became converted to Christianity. The converts seem to have acquired a more independent spirit than their heathen neighbours, they showed less disposition to submit to the claims of the landlords, and in many cases they successfully asserted their title to holdings. Their success doubtless gave rise to the impression that the courts were more disposed to listen to their complaints than to those of the heathen Kols and it seems an unquestioned fact that many of the latter embraced Christianity merely in the hope of obtaining possession of the lands to which they rightly or wrongly laid claim. On the occurrence of the Sepoy Mutiny, and the flight of the local authorities several of the zemindars drove out the Kols from their villages, and, in some cases, deprived them of lands previously decided as theirs by the courts. Order was, however, soon restored, the Kols recovered their lands, and were again in a position to assert their rights. Towards the end of 1858 conflicts took place between the landlords and their Christian tenants in parts of the province, and it became necessary to despatch a detachment of Native Infantry from Ranchu to Govindpore to assist the local police in preserving order in pergunnahs Sonapore and Busseer, where the agitation had assumed the most threatening aspect. This measure had the desired effect, and the disputes did not again break out to the same alarming extent.

5 In 1859 the question of registering the special tenures of Chota Nagpore was for the first time seriously discussed, and eventually Lal Loknath Sahu, a native of the province, and himself an influential landlord and a Nagvansi by caste, was deputed to the work. He had served Government in the capacity of a moonsif, and his integrity and impartiality were well known to the local authorities. Lal Loknath Sahu commenced operations towards the end of 1859. He took up altogether 272 villages and had completed work in 429, when his death unfortunately occurred in August 1862. The measurement and registration of tenures stopped with his death, and, although disputes revived, the matter was not again taken up until a petition, purporting to come from 14,000 Native Christians of Chota Nagpore, and complaining of systematic oppression on the part of the Maharajah and his people, was received by Government in 1867

6 A full report was submitted on this petition by Colonel Dalton, the Commissioner, to whom it was forwarded. It was stated by the Christian Mission at Ranchi that not more than 20 Christians were actually concerned in the petition, but the position taken up by the petitioners undoubtedly accorded with the contentions of the Christians generally, and practically both the Christian and the unconverted Kols were interested in the agitation. Colonel Dalton recommended the continuation of the registration of tenures commenced by Lal Loknath Sahi, and suggested the passing of an Act to regulate and legalise the proceedings, difficulties in the way of purely executive action having been created by recent legislation. His views were accepted by the Lieutenant Governor, and the Government of India having sanctioned the proposal, Act II (B C) of 1869 was introduced into the local Council and passed.

7 In order to a proper understanding of the scope and objects of the Act, it is necessary to explain in some detail the village system and the peculiar Kol tenures of Chota Nagpore. An interesting account of these, drawn up by Baboo Rakhal Das Haldar, is appended to this Resolution. The following brief description is chiefly based on an excellent report submitted in 1875 by Mr Webster, then Manager of the Estate under the Court of Wards. The tenures are divisible into three classes—(1) bhuinhárf, (2) mánjhihas, and (3) rájhas.

8 Bhuinhárf tenures are held by the supposed descendants of the original clearers of the soil. The bhuinhars, as these tenants are called, believe that they are entitled to half the lands of their village rent free, but it appears that they have not actually held so much land in any form for generations, whatever may have been their ancient right. They originally paid no rent for such lands as they did hold, being required only to perform certain services for their landlords, but in process of time, as demands were made on the jaghirdars for money payments by their superior landlords and the necessity for the services of their tenants grew less, the jaghirdars resorted to the imposition of half rents, and then gradually absorbed lands of the bhuinhárf class, paying low or no rents, into the mánjhihas or rájhas, which form the landlord's khas and the rent paying lands of the village. The claim to services was not relinquished, but it was eventually reduced to certain fixed demands. The extent to which bhuinhárf lands were thus appropriated by the landlords is a point regarding which there has been, and will continue to be, much difference of opinion. If a bhuinhari died without heirs, or left his village, the universal custom originally was that the landlord took possession of his land until he or his heirs returned, when they were entitled to recover the holding. But, later the landlords refused to restore holdings vacated in this manner, and sometimes even had recourse to ill usage and false complaints to compel bhuinhars to leave their villages, with the view of seizing their lands. It has been noted, as evidence of the attachment of the bhuinhars to their tenures, that they are always buried in the village where their bhuinhárf lands lie, and that even when they die at a distance, their heirs consider it a necessary act of piety to transport their bones to their own village, to be deposited in the Hursali or burial ground of the village. Bhuinhari tenures, as now existing, are either held rent free with services attached or at a quit rent with or without services. The term is defined in Act II (B C) of 1869 as including (besides bhuinhárf) the following cognate tenures—Bhutkhetá, dálikátári, páhná and mahtour. I hálheta or 'devil's field' is the term applied to lands which are believed to be troubled by evil spirits. Some of these belonging to private individuals pay rent, while others belonging to the village community, and set apart for religious services, are not assessable. Dálikátári and páhná lands are lands held by the village priests. Mahtour lands are service tenures held by mahtos or village headmen.

9 Mánjhihas is apparently a corruption of mánjhi ang's, or the mánjhi's (headman's) share. These lands are always held by the landlord or lessee of the village. The landlord or his assign has an indefeasible right to hold the mánjhihas khas, and he is entitled to get help from his tenants for its cultivation, such help consisting usually of three days' ploughing, three days' digging, three days' planting, and three days' cutting. When the mánjhihas is not retained by the landlord in his own possession, it is cultivated by the ryots, who give a certain quantity of the produce to the landlord. This is known as the sauka agreement. No length of occupation of mánjhihas gives any right to the occupier as against the landlord.

10 The rájhas includes the regular rent paying lands of the village, and any lands available for settlement. Its rent paying tenures may be sub divided into utakar, chatisá, munile chatisá, máswar, bethkhetu, and korkar. The holder of utakar at first paid rent only for the year in which the land was cultivated, and the crop cut, but this rule is no longer general, the lands being now mostly in continuous cultivation. There is no right of occupancy in this class of tenure. In chatisá land, on the other hand, there is an inherent right of occupancy, independent of the length of occupation, but the occupier is bound, in the event of a new settler coming to the village, and land being wanted for him, to give up a portion of his holding. A certain amount of high or dry land is allotted to every chatisá holding, which in common with other tenures consists essentially of rice growing land. Chatisá land is heritable, but subject to the condition that it does not pass to a woman. Whether the tenure is transferable or not is a disputed point. The courts have, however, decided that a transfer holds good so long as the original cultivator remains in the village, and his transferee pays rent through him. Besides the money rent various cesses are attached to chatisá. The tenant is further bound to assist in the cultivation of the mánjhihas to the extent stated in the preceding paragraph, and to carry loads for the landlord on journeys. Munile chatisa is a modified kind of chatisa, paying chatisá rents, but generally exempted from cesses. Muswar is high land held in excess of the complement ordinarily allotted to chatisa. No right of occupancy is acquired in such land, and rent is payable in kind, and only for the year in which the land is cultivated and the crop is cut. Bethkhetu exists where the quantity of mánjhihas is large, and it is not cultivated by the villagers under the sauka arrangement. Every ryot, who is not a bhuinhari is then allowed a small plot of inferior land, varying in size from an area requiring thirty seers to an area requiring two maunds of seed. He is bound to give more than the ordinary number of days' work to the cultivation of the mánjhihas, but pays no rent. He is unable, however, to acquire a right of occupancy and it is optional with the landlord to resume the land or take full rent, if he does not require more than the usual amount of work which other ryots are bound to give. Korkar is low rice land prepared from high land by the individual exertions of the cultivator. The latter has a right of occupancy, and cannot be ejected on any pretence. As regards the rent, it appears to be the universal custom to charge no rent for the first three years after the ryot has prepared the land and had one crop, and then to charge half rent.

11 The disputes which had assumed so chronic a character in connection with these tenures were attributable to encroachments, generally on the part of the landlord, but, sometimes, on the part of the tenants, to claims advanced by tenants to lands alleged to be bhuinhari, and resisted by the landlords, and to the exaction from the tenants of services in excess of, or other than, those which they were bound to render according to the custom attaching to their tenures. It was therefore provided by Act II (B C) of 1869, with the view of stopping these causes of dispute, that the tenures should be defined and recorded and a register made of all rights, privileges, immunities and liabilities affecting the holders. The tenures mentioned in the Act were, however, only the bhuinhari and mánjhihas, the latter including Bethkhetu, and thus the large class of rájhas tenures were not specifically dealt with in the operations which ensued. The Lieutenant Governor was empowered to appoint one or more persons to be Special Commissioners to carry out the provisions of the Act. Each Special Commissioner was to investigate claims to the tenures and demarcate the lands, and then make for each village an accurate register of all the tenures, specifying the conditions to be fulfilled, the rent and services to be rendered, and the rights and privileges to be enjoyed. He was authorized to restore to possession all persons (or their heirs) who had been wrongfully dispossessed within 20 years of the passing of the Act, and to enter their names as occupants of the lands in the village register. Tenures which had come into existence within 20 years were not to be registered unless they were created in revival of previous occupation. Tenants who were bound to fulfil certain conditions, or to give certain services in respect of their tenures, and the persons having the right to exact such conditions and services, were authorized to apply to the Special Commissioners for the commutation of the conditions and services for a payment in rent. Provision was made for the hearing and decision of such applications by the Special Commissioners, with the help of two assessors appointed by each party respectively. The procedure for the filing and hearing of appeals against the decisions of the Special Commissioners, and for the disposal of applications for review of judgment, was also laid down in the Act. The decisions of the Special Commissioners were made appealable to the Commissioner of the Division, whose judgment was declared final. Petitions presented in relation to any matter cognizable under the Act were exempted from stamp duty.

12 The procedure to be observed by the Special Commissioners in working the Act was laid down in rules passed by the Lieutenant Governor under authority vested in him. They were to issue a notice showing the dates on which they would be at the different centres, and calling on all parties interested to appear and prefer their claims, addressing the notice specially to the Maharajah of Chota Nagpore and the principal proprietors under him, and generally to all petty proprietors, jaghirdars, thikadars, and ryots. On reaching each centre, they were to issue a second notice. A list of claims having been prepared, notices were to be served on the persons immediately in receipt of the rents, or who might, on any other account, have interests adverse to the claimants, inviting them to inspect the list and prefer their counter claims or objections, if any. Claims decided by the civil court before the passing of the Act were to be accepted without further enquiry. When claims were contested the parties were to be confronted, and their contentions heard and decided. In the case of uncontested claims no enquiry was required. After disposal of the claims, the Special Commissioners were to demarcate and survey the lands and then prepare the village register. The following particulars were to be entered in the register—the number of the holding, the name of the tenant, the character of the tenure, a specification of the several plots, the area of each plot and of the entire holding, the total rent payable according to the decision of the Special Commissioner, including any sum adjudged in commutation of services, a specification of the services, if any, which the tenant might be still liable to render, and any other conditions which the Special Commissioner might find or decide to be attached to the tenure. A copy of each entry was to be furnished to the tenant, and a copy of each register to the proprietor or farmer of the village. The register, when finally revised and corrected, was to be submitted to the Commissioner of the Division for confirmation, and it was directed that one copy should in future be kept in the Deputy Commissioner's office, and another in the office of the Board of Revenue.

13 The first Special Commissioner appointed under the Act was Baboo Rakhal Das Haldar, an officer who was specially qualified for the new duties by his knowledge of the Mundari language and long experience in the province. He commenced work on the 1st April 1869 in pergunnah Lodhna, and it is stated that the immediate effect of his presence in the pergunnah was an influx of doubtful and extravagant claims, those who had been previously agitating being active in instigating others to prefer such claims. As the work increased, it was found essential to appoint additional officers, until there were eventually five Special Commissioners engaged, for various periods, in the operations. The office of First Special Commissioner was held by Baboo Rakhal Das Haldar throughout the operations, with the exception of about twenty months, which he spent on leave. The Second Special Commissioner was appointed in 1870-71, and the third in 1875-76. The work still continuing to make slow progress, a Fourth and Fifth Special Commissioner were appointed in 1876-77, in the hope that it would be completed by the 30th June 1879. This hope was not, however, realized, and the Government had to sanction the retention of a reduced establishment up to the 30th March 1880. In addition to Baboo Rakhal Das Haldar, the different officers who acted as Special Commissioners were Baboos Kali Das Palit and Gopal Chunder Mitter in the office of Second Special Commissioner, Moulvie Mahomed Subhan Hyder in the office of Third Special Commissioner, Baboo Raichurn Ghose in the office of Fourth Special Commissioner, and Baboo Grish Chunder Sircar in the office of Fifth Special Commissioner. Munshi Harihar Churn also officiated for some months as First Special Commissioner, and Munshi Nundji as Fourth and Fifth Special Commissioner.

14 The Lieutenant Governor does not propose to review the progress of the operations from year to year up to their close. The several annual reports were periodically dealt with by the Government as they came in from the Commissioner. It will suffice here to notice the chief matters of interest and importance which were reported to Government or came under discussion, in connection with the working of the Act, and to sum up the general results of the operations.

15 The following extracts from the first annual report of the First Special Commissioner explain the principles on which the operations were conducted —

“In the village register of the tenures, I have made an attempt to define clearly the rights of the bhuinhars. I have held, with the approval of Colonel Dalton, that the bhuinhars have hereditary and transferable interest in the bhuinhari lands, which the landlord can resume only in execution of a decree or order of a competent court. This is in opposition to the usual practice of resuming a bhuinhari's lands when he leaves a village, with the usual theory of giving him back the same on his return, and is consequently considered exceptionable by the zemindars. They will not see that the object of the Land Tenures' Act is to better the condition of the bhuinhars without infringing upon just proprietary rights, but it is impossible to effect this without violating in some measure the proprietor's feelings.

“It has not been deemed necessary to define in the registers all the rights a bhuinhar might enjoy. But as the registration of the tenures has very naturally irritated the zemindars, and as the bhuinhars are likely to be harassed in a variety of ways, I beg to allude briefly to a few other topics which frequently form the subject of my conferences with the bhuinhars and the landlords.

“The bhuinhars may and do hold rájhas lands, but the landlords are said to threaten them with enhancement of their rents, or sequestration of their fields.

“Claims have been made by the bhuinhars for exclusive right to hills and jungles. Such claims have appeared to me to be simply monstrous. The proprietor of the village alone can have proprietary rights in hills and jungles. But, on the other hand, I have given it out that the bhuinhars cannot be denied the prescriptive right of using timber and fuel obtained from jungles in their villages for domestic purposes. They cannot sell timber on their own account.

“With regard to trees planted on rájhas land, Colonel Dalton has ruled that wherever the bhuinhars have reared such trees they must have done so in their capacity as ryots, not as bhuinhars, and that their rights in such trees would be in no way connected with their bhuinhari rights and titles. I have pointed out to the zemindars that the object of the new law was not to take an inventory of all property, or to record all the rights belonging to a bhuinhar, and it would not therefore be understood in any court that the bhuinhars had no more than what has been registered by the Special Commissioner.

“The question of tanr or high lands, to which a bhuinhar is entitled, is of more importance. Lal Lokenath Saha did not consider such lands to be bhuinhari. His principle was absolute, namely, that no extraordinary labour was needed to reclaim the high lands, and that therefore they could not be allowed to be held upon the same advantageous terms as low lands. On the other hand, many bhuinhars have claimed all the tanr lands in their holdings as their bhuinhari. In determining this question I have been guided by facts. I found in some villages that tanr lands had been claimed and held from former times as bhuinhárf, their quantity did not bear any proportion to the quantity of low lands held, but they have been held always without payment of any rent or cess. Certain decisions of the late Sadar Dewani Adawlat show that claims to tanr lands as bhuinhari have been upheld at least fifty years ago. This is the case certainly in some villages in pergunnahs Khukhra and Udoypore. In other places, as far as my enquiries have extended, in pergunnah Lodhma and Sonapur, it was found that bhuinhars held their tanr land as rájhas, for they could not be distinguished in any way from the high lands held by the ordinary ryots. Both are equally subject to cesses called hartaki, beheri, or tanr pancha, more than twenty years before the passing of the Land Tenures' Act, or where the cesses are not customary, both are equally exempt from them. It is also worthy of remark that, where the tanr lands are not regarded as bhuinhárf, the same tanr lands are not held always by the same tenants. They cultivate wherever they like. It may further be stated that bhuinhars of Sonapur brought suits in civil courts about their bhuinhárf more than twenty years ago, yet they did not claim tanr lands as bhuinhárf. In my court some bhuinhars did not claim such lands, as they did not consider them to be bhuinhari. Others voluntarily withdrew their claims to the high lands. Where these lands were held as rájhas, I adopted the principle of attaching a certain quantity of tanr lands to a certain quantity of low rice land. I subsequently found that Colonel Davies, Judicial Commissioner of Chota Nagpore, had previously adopted and acted upon the same equitable principle.

"Closely connected with the question of dry cultivation lands is the korkar, or land recently reclaimed. In determining whether such lands can be registered, I proceed upon this principle: if it is satisfactorily proved that the tanr or waste land, which has been turned into don or rice land by the bhuinhari's labour, was originally held as bhuinhárf (which can only very rarely be the case), the land is registered. Otherwise the claim to korkar is rejected.

"There are tenures in Chota Nagpore similar to the bhuinhárf, and called bahbala and anádót. They have been reclaimed by people other than the Kols. I did not consider that such lands were within the scope of the Land Tenures' Act, and accordingly rejected the claims.

"It is true that if all such lands, in short all the lands in Chota Nagpore, bhuinhárf, mánjhihas, and rajhas had been comprehended in the Act, the law would have proved itself a far greater boon to the country than it can now possibly be. Colonel Dalton had recommended that rajhas as well as the other lands should be registered, but was subsequently induced by financial considerations to consent to the exclusion of the rájhas lands from the Bill.

"The bhuinhars claimed in not a few instances, mánjhihas tenures as their bhuinhárf. Like the mán lands in Manbhoom, the mánjhihas is almost always about the best land in the village. Some of the mánjhihas was doubtless originally bhuinhárf, but in most cases the bhuinhárf right has been extinguished in them by lapse of time. It is worthy of remark that the claims to mánjhihas lands filed by the landlords have not been generally objected to by either bhuinhars or ryots.

"The bethkheta tenures have been claimed and demarcated in almost all the villages in which claims have been settled during the year. Latterly the ryots have shown an inclination to give up these tenures in order to be exempted from the services, but the zomindars have also set their wits to work. They say that the ryots have to render the services because they cultivate tanr lands, for which they in many places do not pay rent either in money or in kind. If this had been the case, there would have been no bethkheta, which is known in all Nagpore to be held by ryots exclusively for rendering certain services to the landlord. The bethkheta is likely to be given up in most villages.

"In the registers we have entered the reputed quantities of lands, besides the areas in bigahs.

"As regards the rents payable by the bhuinhars, I have fixed the same as the earliest known amounts within twenty years before the passing of the Land Tenures' Act, whenever it was practicable to ascertain the same. We hear of "rates of rent," but from uncertainty in the land measure rates cannot exist. Rent is occasionally fixed amicably between the landlord and the ryot, but the difference in the qualities of the lands is not in many places taken into account. In this respect, as I was informed in Sonpur, the proverb is applicable to the country, "all sorts of rice are sold 22 pases for the rupee (sab dhan bas pases)"

"In regard to 'beth begár,' or forced labour, though Lal Loknath Sahi recorded an indefinitely large amount of services for all villages alike, it was not found to be consistent with facts. I have found the following to be most general —

- 3 days ploughing with one pough
- 3 digging with one kudal
- 3 sowing or planting rice by one man,
- 3 cutting rice by one man
- 1 day thrashing corn by one man
- 1 assisting in the making of a granary
- Supplying 100 bundles of straw or grass
- Ditto a load of bamboo
- Ditto two small timbers and carrying the landlord's burthens in his journeys. In some villages only one day's planting or cutting rice is due, in some 60 or 200 bundles of grass are supplied, and so on, but in my experience the actual scale only rarely equalled that recorded by Lal Loknath. The condition of carrying the landlord's burthens was liable to great abuse. Though certain bhuinhars are extremely reluctant to admit this condition, the fact is notorious. I have heard of bhuinhars accompanying their landlords to distant countries with burthens, and never again returning to their homes, having in all probability died on the way. I have limited the service to fifteen days in the case of bhuinhars, and to seven days in the case of ryots generally, though in some cases equitable considerations induced me to adjudge longer periods in some villages of Lodhma, never exceeding one month."

16 In a later report (for 1876-77), some of the difficulties against which the Special Commissioners had to contend were brought to notice —

"From our experience in the border pergunnahs on the north, it was hoped that the case would be similar in the border pergunnahs on the south. We have seen, however, that no sooner are notices issued inviting bhuinhars and zemindars to file in their respective claims than some men who profess to be Christian preachers (whether in the regular employ of the mission or not) go about the country and unsettle people's minds, raising vain hopes about the land question. Such proceedings must necessarily interfere with the progress of our work. The other difficulty is this: in the border pergunnahs of the south boundaries of villages seem to be extremely ill defined. What one zemindar claims as his village, another comes forward to contest as a hamlet of his. One zemindar readily colludes with a number of Mundas and admits lands claimed by them to be bhuinhari, while another zemindar comes in as a counter claimant and objects to the lands as being of his village. To find out the truth that lies at the bottom of such contentions, none of the litigant parties as a rule being able to adduce any satisfactory, documentary, or oral evidence as to right or possession, requires much time and labour and diverts us unnecessarily from what we have a right to consider our legitimate work. The petty zemindars of Chota Nagpore have sense enough to perceive that, if they can manage to get decrees as to boundaries, or even evidence manufactured for them in the Special Commissioners' courts, where no cost is needed by way of stamp fees, &c. it is best for their interests not to remain idle. I am afraid that in none of the border pergunnahs, which will have to be taken up in future, can this difficulty be entirely absent."

17 In the report for 1870-71, the question was raised whether certain tenures, not mentioned in the Act, should be brought within the scope of the enquiries made by the Special Commissioners. These were the tenures known as korkar, khutkat, and mankipatti. The korkar tenure has been already described. The khutkatidars are founders of villages, as the holders of korkar tenures are clearers of plots of land. They are often Hindus of the cultivating classes, such as Kurmis, Koiris and Goalas, but in parts of the Chota Nagpore estate known as the five pergunnahs, some of the Munda heads of villages call themselves khutkatidars. Their holdings are very ancient, and usually held at fixed rents. The mankipatti tenures are the service tenures of the mankis, or heads of villages, granted to them as ghatwals of the passes. These tenures were confirmed to the holders after the Kol insurrection of 1832, with the express stipulation that the mankis were not to alienate their lands to foreigners, this having been one of the chief causes of the insurrection. It was decided by the Government to exclude the above classes of tenures from the cognizance of the Special Commissioners. The rights of the korkar and khutkiti tenants were not sufficiently well defined and recognized to justify the intervention of Government between them and their landlords, and it was besides deemed inadvisable to undertake at that time so vast a work as that of surveying and registering these and the mankipatti tenures.

18 In the report for 1875-76, the Commissioner remarked that fresh troubles might arise in future if transfers of bhuinhari lands to money lenders and others not of the bhuinhari class were permitted, and questioned whether these tenures, although by custom hereditary and transferable, were legally transferable. It was pointed out to him that the wording of the Act seems to show that the transferable nature of these tenures was distinctly recognized. "The preamble," the Government remarked, "recites that the bhuinhari tenures are held by persons claiming to be descendants of the village founders or their assigns. Throughout the whole subsequent part of the Act there is no reference to any claim on the ground of any person belonging to a particular class. Indeed care seems to have been taken to avoid any expression of the kind, and the register is to be a register of lands which may be ascertained to belong to the bhuinhari and manjhihas classes of tenure without regard to the question whether they are now held by bhuinhars or not." The Commissioner was, however, desirous to submit any suggestions which he might wish to make regarding the necessity for an alteration of the law in this respect. With his reply were submitted copies of letters from Baboo Rakhial Das Halder, Mr Olphant, the Deputy Commissioner, and Captain Lewis, Assistant Commissioner. Baboo Rakhial Das Halder recommended that alienation of bhuinhari lands should be prohibited, Mr Olphant and Captain Lewis were in favour of allowing the zemindar a right of pre-emption, and the Commissioner himself (Mr Robinson) recommended that, if the lands passed into the hands of aliens, they should be subject to the ordinary rates of rent. The Board, to whom the matter was referred for opinion, remarked that the lands are held subject to the payment of rent or the rendering of services, and that these obligations will attach to the land, whether held by a bhuinhar or an alien. Where payment of rent is involved, the transfer of a bhuinhari tenure seemed simple enough. But where the tenure is subject to conditions or services, the commutation to rent payment should, the Board thought, be enforced, the law being altered for this purpose, if necessary. It was clear that neither the Commissioner's proposal nor that of Mr Olphant and Captain Lewis would check alienations, and the only question which could be seriously considered was whether alienation should be absolutely prohibited by law. The Commissioner advocated a restriction of the power of alienation, on the ground that the object of the Act was to secure the bhuinhars in the possession of their tenures, and to oust such aliens as had come into possession of them. He argued that the object of the Act was not merely to make a register of the lands, for in that case there would have been no reason for replacing in the possession of their tenures all bhuinhars who had been ousted by aliens within the previous twenty years, but that the law was one in favour of a class, to secure them the possession of certain tenures, and its object would be defeated if that class were allowed to transfer the tenures to others. This view appeared to the Government to be quite unsupported by the Act. Section 6, which provided for the restoration of lands to persons who had been ousted within 20 years, applied not to a particular class, but to any person who had been so ousted. It could not therefore be said that the section was enacted for the benefit of the bhuinhars alone. The object of the Act was simply to make a register of the lands, and reinstate those who had been unjustly deprived of them, but a bhuinhar who had voluntarily parted with his land, or whose land had been sold by the courts in payment of his debts, had no ground of complaint, and no remedy was required in his case. The transferable character of the tenures had not only been recognized by the Act, but had been practically admitted during a long course of years, and numerous sales and mortgages had already been made. Whatever, therefore, might have been the original conditions of the tenures, it was clear that the lands had become transferable, and that nothing short of an absolute prohibition of transfer could prevent their being alienated. It was, however, the opinion of the best authorities that such a prohibition should not be enforced, and the Government accordingly decided to abstain from preventive legislation.

19 In June 1875 a memorial was received by Government from the Missionaries of the German Lutheran Church in Chota Nagpore, setting forth the grievances under which they believed the Christian Kols to be labouring in connection with the operations under the Act. The views of Government on this memorial were recorded in the following minute of Sir Richard Temple, which is here reproduced in extenso.

"It appears to me that the Reverend Missionaries of the German Lutheran Church in Chota Nagpore, who have long been labouring for the religious good and the educational advancement of the Kols and other aboriginal tribes, are now taking a lively interest in the tenures of land and other occupancy rights pertaining to these people. I had the advantage, during my visit to that province, of hearing the views of the principal Missionaries on the subject, and I consulted the European officers of Government regarding the allegations which are made on behalf of the Kols.

"An elaborate memorial has now been received, bearing the signatures of all the German Missionaries. It contains many passages or expressions which make me fear that perhaps the Kols having embraced, or intending to embrace, Christianity, expect to have their rights (real or supposed) vindicated by their Christian pastors. It would almost be inferred from one passage in the memorial that in some instances they are dissatisfied with their change of religion, because they do not find that it leads to social advancement. It so happens that the rights which the Kols claim in the land are being investigated under an enactment specially passed, and by tribunals appointed for the purpose; therefore it is very undesirable that any extraneous agitation should arise. Doubtless the Reverend Missionaries do not at all intend to foster such agitation, but their sayings and writings might possibly tend towards producing that effect. At all events, so full a memorial, so numerously signed, merits a reply.

"I would therefore, in acknowledging the receipt of the memorial, express the great interest with which I have perused it. But I would go on to say that there are several passages in the memorial which seem to render it desirable for me to record the following remarks —

"While entirely sympathising with the benevolent motives which actuate the members of the mission in promoting the material welfare of the Kols, I must yet observe that this matter is quite distinct from the spiritual concerns which are primarily and immediately the objects of the mission. The members of the mission are doubtless quite right in doing the best they can for the people among whom they so beneficently labour. The position of the Government and its officers is different.

"The Government could never let it be understood by the Kols that they might obtain any secular advantages by embracing Christianity. Whatever advantages or disadvantages they have before the law, or by the action of the State, must be wholly irrespective of their adhering to, or seceding from, the religion which they have adopted.

"However great may be the respect which I feel for the work of the mission, still I must regard the representations made by the Missionaries on behalf of the Kols as claims entitled to the same consideration as other claims, and no more. Moreover, it so happens in Chota Nagpore that the benefits asked by the memorialists so impressively on behalf of the Kols could be conceded in full only by depriving other classes, Hindoo and Mahomedan, of something which they now enjoy. It were superfluous to remark that the attitude of the Government is, and must be, absolutely impartial in regard to the Kols and those who are not Kols, both to the Christians and those who are not Christians.

"On the principle of hearing the best arguments that can be used on either side, I would thank the memorialists very much for the graphic and eloquent manner in which the case for the Kols is expounded. But I can accept it only as one part of a large question.

"It may be well, on the other hand, to apprise the memorialists that the European officers of Government, who are naturally without bias either way, apprehend that the Kols are making extravagant and unreasonable claims in respect to the tenure of land. The statements of the Kols on this topic may have at first sight the semblance of truth, but some of the best authorities have declared that these statements must be taken with considerable reserve.

"From some passages of the memorial it seems that the Kols are in the habit of making unmeasured accusations against the thikadars, but these thikadars are not recent usurpers. On the contrary, they have long established tenures. It is too late now to enquire, as the Kols would apparently desire to enquire, into the origin of these thikadars' tenures in some antecedent period. The thikadar has now his zemindari rights, as much as the Kol has his occupancy right, or his rent free right.

"Much of that which the Kols, according to the memorial, call exaction or extortion the thikadar would call the levy of dues. It is for the special tribunals now employed in judicial enquiry to decide between them. If in any case a thikadar be really oppressive, the Kol has his remedy quite as readily as any other person in the country. If other evidence were wanting, the memorial would prove that the Kols know how to complain, and doubtless they will make themselves heard by the local authorities if they have any pleas to urge, which can be admitted by the courts of justice.

"Nevertheless the Government believes that the Kols are entitled to at least a part of what they claim. Therefore laws have been passed with this view, and a considerable machinery employed for carrying them out. Awards, extensive in the aggregate, have been made in favour of the Kols. Without undertaking to pronounce regarding individual cases, I must say that the general result of these operations has been to do justice to the Kols. That the Kols should not be satisfied, but should proceed to ask for more and more, need not excite surprise. That generally happens in the case of disputes accompanied by exasperation on both sides.

"The complaints on the part of the Kols, presented in the memorial, regarding the conduct of certain of the officers engaged in these operations, have been referred to the Commissioner, but as yet they have not been found to rest upon any valid basis. It is understood that the memorialists did no more than present these complaints, and that they had not undertaken to make any particular enquiry regarding them. In one passage of the memorial there is produced an accusation made by an individual Kol of bribery against a native official. This accusation will be investigated.

"It is impossible to comply with the request that these operations be supervised by European officers. Among other objections, there is that of expense, for already the cost of the civil administration of Chota Nagpore is out of proportion to the revenues derived from the province.

"In reference to that part of the memorial which adverts to a project of appointing a Missionary versed in law to watch in the courts the interests of the Kols, either those who may be Christians, or may intend to become Christians, I desire to express my satisfaction at learning that this project has been abandoned. I think that it would have been quite inconsistent with the position of a religious body.

"The proposal that all the European officers employed in Chota Nagpore should be versed in the several dialects of the aboriginal tribes is, I fear, quite impracticable, nor is it absolutely necessary, inasmuch as the Kols understand the Hindi.

"I am not sure whether I rightly understand from the memorial that the memorialists believe the Kols to be a suffering and oppressed race.

"Doubtless their opinion, whatever it be, is valuable and worthy of all attention. But I have to say that, according to the information possessed by Government, and derived from various sources, the Kols are flourishing in Chota Nagpore, both as regards material well being and social progress. Their position has been greatly improved by the land tenure investigations now going on. The only unfavourable symptoms are a certain restlessness and excitability, also a tendency to keep up a sort of agitation in regard to the land It is to be feared that these symptoms will hardly disappear till the investigations shall have been completed

"I do not share the apprehensions which the memorialists seem to entertain that the Kols may be tempted to resist authority or to disturb order I think on the contrary that they are well disposed I am sure that the memorialists will see the expediency of impressing upon the Kols the necessity of maintaining a quiet and steady demeanour

"In conclusion, a copy of the memorial together with a copy of this Minute, will be forwarded to the Commissioner of Chutia Nagpore with a request that close attention be given to all allegations therein made respecting oppression, and that, if anything wrong be established, prompt redress may be afforded"

20 It was alleged in the above memorial that the Special Commissioners omitted to measure the whole of the bhumhar high lands on the ground that no dispute existed in respect of them whereas, when the survey of the village was completed, these lands were at once claimed by the landlords and farmers This allegation was controverted by the First Special Commissioner He explained that in the greater portion of the villages of pergunnah Khukra, and in the pergunnahs lying in the north eastern part of Chota Nagpore high lands are held as bhumhar, as contra distinguished from rajhar high lands, and that all high lands which were proved to be bhumhar were decreed to the bhumhars But in Lodhna, Sonapore, Belsian, and the south westerly pergunnahs high lands are not held as bhumhar, the bhumhars' high lands being held under exactly the same conditions as those of other ryots Nevertheless, even in these pergunnahs, the Special Commissioners had, with the consent of the zemindars, awarded to the bhumhars as bhumhar, a large quantity of high land, which was strictly speaking rajhar

21 The Lieutenant Governor observes that small advantage has been taken of the provision of the Act permitting the commutation of services for a rent payment It is a matter of surprise, when the discontent which is reported to have existed among the bhumhars in regard to the manner in which the landlords enforced their right to services is borne in mind, that the total number of applications for commutation did not exceed the small figure returned (1,161) In pergunnah Khukra, which is chiefly inhabited by Oraons, the Second Special Commissioner had worked for three or four years before the first application for commutation was filed, and the number of applications subsequently received was extremely small It was stated that the Mundas or headmen showed great indifference on the subject, and that the landlords resorted to all the means in their power to render this portion of the Act nugatory While the landlords, however, valued the services more highly than money payments, the ryots also seemed to prefer giving the customary amount of labour to paying additional rent, especially where no remunerative employment was available In 1876 it was further reported that the Christian bhumhars, claiming that the adoption of Christianity had exempted them from all labour services, had ceased to work for their landlords, and consequently deemed it superfluous to take any steps for the commutation of their services The following reasons, mentioned in special reports submitted at that time by the First and Second Special Commissioners, appear to the Lieutenant Governor to furnish the true explanation of the singularly small use made by zemindar and ryot alike of this provision of the Act First, the oppressive conduct of the zemindars in exacting labour had been at first to some extent exaggerated The First Special Commissioner remarked "The cultivators here appear never to have fared much worse in this respect, as a body, than the people of their class elsewhere in Bengal It is certain that there have always been hundreds of bhumhars and others in Chota Nagpore who have lived in peace with their landlords, and have never complained against the beth begar, which is customary since the earliest times" Secondly, as the services were authoritatively defined and generally reduced by the Special Commissioners, the bhumhars had no further cause for dissatisfaction Thirdly, as the amount which the special Commissioners thought it equitable to award on commutation was insufficient to compensate the landlords for the use of paid labour, they naturally preferred to retain their right to the personal services of their tenants

22 The detailed statements appended to this Resolution, which were received with the Commissioner's final report, contain full particulars as to the number of villages dealt with, the claims disposed of, and the expenditure incurred during the entire course of the operations. The Special Commissioners held enquiries in 2,482 villages situated in 35 pergunnahs of the Chota Nagpore estate, demarcating, settling and registering the tenures subject to the Act. They disposed of 13,473 claims, of which 7,423 were disputed, besides 1,161 applications for commutation of services and 3,544 miscellaneous cases. They granted review of their own judgments in 294 cases, and 844 appeals from their decisions were preferred to the Commissioner, out of which 636 resulted in the confirmation, 28 in the modification, and 14 only in the reversal of their orders. Sixty eight appeals were rejected without hearing, and in 98 the cases were remanded for further enquiry. The results of the appeals testify to the careful manner in which the Special Commissioners investigated the claims which came before them. The total cost of the operations is stated to have amounted to Rs 2,69,887, but to this must be added some charges for tents, stationery, surveying and mathematical instruments, which have not been precisely ascertained. The bulk of the work necessarily devolved on Baboo Rakhal Das Halidar, the First Special Commissioner. Inclusive of the work done by the officers who held charge of his office during his absences on leave, he demarcated 1,111 villages, settled 1,164 and registered 1,487. He disposed of 5,570 claims (of which 2,889 were disputed), 1,214 miscellaneous cases, and 834 applications for commutation of services. Of the rest of the work the greater portion was done in the office of the Second Special Commissioner, which was held by Baboo Kalidas Palit for about 15 months, and then by Baboo Gopal Chunder Mittra.

23 Of the general effect of the Act, the First Special Commissioner writes thus in his final report —

"I have been assured by all intelligent and well meaning Mundas and Oraons that the effect has been very beneficial. In my own journey through various parts of the State at various times, I have observed plenty and contentment where I had previously witnessed only desolation. I do not of course mean to present a too highly colored picture, and to say that such contrasts would be met with everywhere, but I have observed such contrasts in some places. There cannot also be any doubt about the fact that vast quantities of lands have been decreed as bhumihari under the Chota Nagpore Tenures Act. I am not in a position to state the total quantity actually decreed, but the 13,720 pages of the 69 volumes of the bhumihari registers may show that I am not attempting to give an exaggerated idea of the quantity. If the bhumihars be unable to retain these lands, the fault will be their own."

"The beneficial effects of these operations have not been confined to the bhumihars alone. It should be admitted also that the Hindu zemindars have been equally benefited. The immediate effect of the operations on these may be somewhat unfavorable, but they will eventually find that the State has saved them from endless and ruinous litigation in the future by the registration of the special tenures."

"In the investigation into hundreds of hotly contested claims and counter claims, it would be absurd to pretend that no instances of failure of justice have occurred, but I trust that no officer employed on the work has done any intentional wrong, and that such instances of failure of justice have been few and far between."

The Lieutenant Governor fully accepts these statements. The local officers are unanimous in holding that the working of the Act has been of great benefit to the class of tenants for whose protection it was specially devised, and a great deal has undoubtedly been achieved in the way of settling the numerous disputes regarding tenures which existed in the different villages of the Estate.

24 Nevertheless it must be admitted that in regard to its effect on the relations between landlord and tenant, the success of the Act has fallen short of the expectations generally entertained on its introduction. The operations have not removed every cause of disagreement, and disputes are still of frequent occurrence. This partial failure appears to be due to two causes: first, to the fact that rājhas tenures were not included within the scope of the Act, and secondly, to the extravagant claims and expectations of a section of the bhuinhars which rendered it impossible to satisfy them by any settlement which aimed at preserving the just rights of both parties. The extension of the operations to the rájhas tenures would have involved a complete settlement of the whole Estate. A scheme of such magnitude would have extended indefinitely the period required for the completion of the settlement of the other tenures alone, and added very considerably to the cost of working the Act. This being the case, the Legislature very wisely, as it seems to the Lieutenant Governor, confined the application of the Act to the privileged tenures and the khás lands in which the bhuinhars and the landlords respectively were more deeply interested and had clearer rights, and in respect of which the disputes were more bitter and frequent. The Deputy Commissioner thus explains how disputes regarding rájhas lands have survived the late operations: "No doubt can possibly exist as to the beneficial effect resulting from these coveted tenures (the bhuinháris) being ascertained and demarcated. It is a pity, however, that the opportunity was not taken of measuring and settling each whole village instead of bhuinhári and mínjhihas lands only. The bhuinhars generally claimed their entire holdings, and often other lands of which they were out of possession, as being all bhuinhári. When a decree was given for a portion only, no finding was come to with respect to the remainder beyond recording that it was not bhuinhári but rájhas (rent paying) or manjhihas. When held to be of the latter description, it was demarcated under the Act, but when declared to be rájhas, a door was opened for numerous complications. The Special Commissioner had no power to determine whose rájhas it was, nor what rate of rent was payable for it. Usually it was either in possession of the claimant rightfully, or had been wrongfully taken possession of by him when operations under the Act commenced, and held by him since without payment of rent. As soon as the Act came into force, it was not uncommon for bhuinhars to combine and take forcible possession of lands to which, according to their rights, they were entitled and claim them as bhuinhári, withholding payment of all rents. Active and solvent illaquadars protected themselves well enough by resort to the criminal courts, but when, owing to the incompetence or poverty of illaquadars, resistance was feeble, these combinations were frequently successful. As the bhuinhári cases came to an end, the struggle for the rájhas commenced. Whether the lands really belonged to the bhuinhari or not, the illaquadar was equally anxious to get rid of him. 'Keep within your four boundary marks,' an illaquadar might be supposed to say to a bhuinhari. 'You claimed all your land as bhuinhari and have only got a decree for a fraction, you have put me to expense in contesting the bhuinhári case, you are not a tenant to my mind. I can get a higher rent for the rájhas from Ramjewan Kurmi or Baksu Jalaha, so turn out and let me settle the land with a man after my own heart.' The reply would be 'Decree or no decree, the land was brought under cultivation by my ancestors, the village is ours, and the country is ours, not yours. If compelled to do so, I will pay rent, but turn out I will not.' Then ensues the usual litigation, first in criminal, then in revenue and civil courts to carry on which the demarcated bhuinhári is probably mortgaged or sold to a mahajan. The illaquadar registers a pottali in favour of Ramjewan Kurmi or Baksu Jalaha, who, with two or three witnesses, formally scatters some seed on the land either before or after the bhuinhari has done so. When the crop is ripe, a report is made by one party or the other to the thana that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace, and whichever party reaps the crop is charged with theft. At specified seasons the courts are almost swamped with criminal trespass and paddy cutting cases. It may generally be said that, when illaquadars are intelligent, wealthy, and powerful, they are in the wrong, and that, when they are otherwise, the bhuinhars are at fault. The result, however, is seldom satisfactory, for, in protracted litigation, intelligence, length of purse, and influential position will, in the long run, carry the day.

"When an illaquadar accepts a bhuinhari as tenant for lands claimed as bhuinhári, but declared to be rájhas, even then disputes arise about the rate of rent. Where the ordinary rates only are demanded, the bhuinhari is clearly wrong in declining to pay rent accordingly, but he almost invariably does so, contending, even in face of a final decree, that the lands are bhuinhári still. In such cases he is deserving of no sympathy except for his pitiable ignorance, and decrees for ejectment would readily be given. But it often happens that there are two rates of rent in a village—the old customary rate paid by the native cultivators, and the contract rate paid by new ryots settled on vacated lands by the illaquadars. Now, in Chota Nagpore, without a measurement of the whole village, no enhancement of customary rates can be justified because of the indefinite area which the unit of local measure is supposed to represent. But illaquadars always try, naturally enough, to level up to the contract rate without the tedious process of measuring the whole village.”

25 Of that section of the bhuinhari tenants who still maintain that justice has not been fully done them, it is stated that they are probably the descendants of the people who left the villages before the Kol insurrection of 1832, and that they have been throughout the most unreasonable in their demands. If all the lands claimed by these and other bhuinhars during the eleven years of the operations were added together, they would probably exceed the total quantity of cultivated and cultivable lands within the pergunnahs of the estate in which the Act was applied. To satisfy all claimants was obviously a hopeless task. The Act fixed a limit of 20 years within which it was essential that a bhuinhar should have been in possession of any land claimed by him. This provision, though fully understood, was not acquiesced in by the people. According to the ancient custom of bhuinhari tenures, to which illusion has been already made, a bhuinhar, who left his village and his lands, expected to recover his holding on his return, however long might have been his absence, and this right his children regarded as theirs also. Although the observance of this custom had been frequently disregarded long before the passing of the Act, and it was impossible at that time to accord it legislative sanction, the bhuinhars refused to give up their belief in its continued validity. To this may be attributed the very large number of untenable claims which the Special Commissioners were asked to adjudicate in their favour, and their disappointment at the results. An agitation for the resumption and conduct of the operations in accordance with their own views is reported to be still going on among the disappointed claimants. They are, however, already aware that the Government will not accede to any demands on their part which are inconsistent with the just rights of others, and they must learn to press any claims to which they may consider themselves still entitled in accordance with the ordinary law of the province, and to refrain from attempts to assert such claims by violence.

26 The Commissioner observes that a satisfactory solution of the land disputes still prevailing cannot be arrived at except by a thorough survey and settlement of the whole district. The Lieutenant Governor is not prepared at present to admit the necessity for this. The Government could not commit itself to so extensive and costly a measure without being fully satisfied that it is quite indispensable for the peace and good government of the country, and that nothing short of it would secure that object. The settlement of the khas villages of the Chota Nagpore estate, to which sanction has already been given, will, it is admitted, be a further step in the solution of the disputes over a large part of the district. In the remaining villages, which are leased for a long term of years or in perpetuity to jagirdars, maintenance holders, or farmers, it would appear that the provisions of the Chota Nagpore Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act of 1879 are sufficient for the protection of the ryots against undue and illegal enhancement, while securing to the zemindars their fair rental. It is provided in section 19 that lands known as bhuinhari or khutkati shall not be liable to enhancement, except when the tenures have been created within 20 years of the institution of the suit for enhancement, and, in that case, the rent assessed shall not exceed one half the rent paid for similar land by an occupancy ryot. Section 20 prohibits enhancement in various other tenures therein specified, except under the terms of a written contract, or in accordance with the general custom in respect to such tenures in the same village. With regard to other under tenants and occupancy ryots, when the zemindars desire to enhance, the procedure laid down in sections 22, 23, and 24 provides for full particulars of the holdings and of the grounds of enhancement being furnished to the Deputy Commissioner, for due notice of these being given to the tenant, and for an adequate enquiry by the Deputy Commissioner before enhancement is sanctioned.

Sections 25 and 26 have also practically re-enacted the provision of the Chota Nagpore Tenures' Act permitting the commutation of conditions of services for a rent payment. The Commissioner, however, desires the addition of a section to the Act, permitting the courts to measure lands at the expense of a landholder on his application, accompanied by the deposit of the estimated cost. Many of the landholders would, it is stated, avail themselves of such a provision of the law, some having already made applications for measurement. Section 33 of the Procedure Act of 1879 empowers every person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure to make himself a general survey or measurement of the lands comprised therein, but this is apparently not considered sufficient, the proposal being that the Revenue authorities should carry out the work upon the application and at the expense of the landlord. The Board will be asked to favour the Lieutenant Governor with their views on the Commissioner's suggestion, and will at the same time be requested generally to consult the local officers and report whether any further legislation is required to supplement the special Rent Law of the province in order to meet difficulties brought to light in the course of the operations now concluded.

27 The Lieutenant Governor desires, in conclusion, to express his high appreciation of the manner in which Baboo Rakhal Das Halder discharged his duties as First Special Commissioner under the Act. The earnestness, industry and discrimination which he exercised in the disposal of claims, and his intimate knowledge of the duties entrusted to him, were conspicuous throughout the operations, and the interesting reports received from him from time to time proved of great value to the Government in the discussion of the various questions which came up, and in directing the working of the Act. The other Special Commissioners also worked with care and efficiency. The Lieutenant Governor notes the special mention made of Baboos Rai Churn Ghose and Gopal Chunder Mitter in the Commissioner's final report. The decisions of Baboo Rai Churn Ghose are stated to have been specially good.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

A MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal

APPENDIX

An account of the Village System of Chota Nagpore by Baboo Rakhal Das Halder

[The marginal remarks are in Indian]

CHOTA NAGPORE presents not only villages in which the old institutions of the country are in various stages of decay, but also villages in which the old commune system has been kept up in tolerable vigour. In portions of the country which have passed through various commotions such as the greater part of Sonapur the ancient landmarks have to a considerable extent been washed away. In the Manki patties where the system has been preserved mainly through Government intervention and in regions that have enjoyed comparative peace, such as the north eastern portion of pergunnah Khukhra the old institutions can be seen very nearly at their best. A description of these institutions may conveniently be divided into first the old non Aryan village commune as it probably was secondly, the changes through which it has passed and thirdly and lastly its present condition.

The parhas or unions — The chiefs called mankis or rajahs who presided over these

parhas the headmen of villages called Mundas lahans or Mahtos are extremely well known. The system of which these men formed the most important component parts would seem to have been more patriarchal in its character than otherwise. It can scarcely be supposed that the feudal idea which has been recognized at a subsequent period had any existence in those old days. In times of warfare with neighbours the very instinct of self preservation would induce the people to rally round their acknowledged chiefs but generally the chief or manki was the great referee on points of special disputes. It does not seem to be probable that the manki had any recognized right to the villages held by the Mundas nor did he interfere with the internal management of such villages. How his sovereignty was acknowledged by the people does not clearly appear it is likely however that they supplied him occasionally with the produce of the fields or with game killed in hunting. The manki had for his own maintenance generally more than one village, and his office was hereditary.

The parha rajah or manki was probably always the Munda of a village as well as the chief of the parha.

Not a proprietor he was proprietor or landlord of the land

the proprietor of the lands of Mahatle was proprietor or head proprietor of the Mahatle khat

The Pahan was by no means a mere village priest, as we find him in many places in these days. Somewhat subordinate to the Munda in secular affairs he was master of the invisible world and no less a proprietor of the village than

We may be sure that the Mahto had no existence in the Munda system. We find him in the Oraon villages and in Munda villages bordering upon the Oraon. In the old commune the necessity for his existence as distinct from the Munda is not very apparent.

The most indispensable village servants were the Pani bharu or the Pahan's assistants and water carrier the blacksmith the potter the cowherd the barber the washerman and the watchman. The first was in every village the others might be common to more than one village. Some servants were remunerated by land others by produce of the fields.

14th.—Fields appropriated to the service of spirits called Duba such spirits being regarded as special guardians of the Hutu Horos. Any bhuinhar might hold such a field known to this day as bhuinhári bhutkhéta.

2ndly—Fields known as pahnai for propitiating certain spirits for the general welfare of the village. These fields are known as dalkitiri the dswali bhutkheta the gaon deoti blutkheta and the chandikheta (1)

3rdly.—Fields devoted to the service of certain spirits mysteriously imported into the village (c). Such fields are now called audher (i) audher bhutkheta and are also generally held by the Pahan. These bhutkheta fields bore a small proportion to the bulk of the lands in the village. The Pahan's assistant (alluded to above) had a very small quantity of land for supplying water and cooked fowls and otherwise helping the Pahan during the periodical sacrifices (3).

It does not appear that any other description of tenures existed in the old commune. The name of raphis or rent bearing land could not have been as yet

It is probable that while the country was in this state of simplicity the Oraons entered it from the north west and founded villages by clearing the forests. They brought

The village community imperfectly described above was of the same character among the Mundas and the Oraons. How or when it was brought into existence cannot well be conjectured but there is almost historical probability to believe that it existed since a period anterior to the permanent occupation of the country by the modern Hindus.

Where a jaghirdar was unable himself to cope successfully with the Bhuinhars he would farm the village to a brother jaghirdar or other person having the reputation of a tyrant such a man would do all in his power to knock down the village system

Equally great, if not greater injury was done to the old commune by the custom of giving away pergunnahs or villages to certain members of the Maharajah's family known as Kunwars, Thakurs, and Lalls, as maintenance grants. They commanded the highest respect in the country and wherever they made their head quarters (and they have the reputation of being knights-errant at least in the choice of abodes) the commune was entirely crushed. I may allude to Lodhma Kokaria Gomdpur and Soupurgarh as instances. These members of the Maharajah's family vied to rival each other or the court in worldly show and gave away many villages in their turn to Routias Hindus and Mussulmans who were their creditors either in flattery or in goods and money. In some portions of Sonpūr we find that the very names of the parahs have been extinguished through foreign influence.

We may here pause and inquire about what period the foreign influence had probably begun to tell upon the old village system. Some interested people of the country would have us believe that so recently as only a little before the Kol insurrection of 1832 the system existed intact throughout Chota Nagpore. Others even less careful about the truth would bring the date of disturbance of the system to the time of the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857. Such opinions do not of course require serious refutation. I mention them only to show that there are people ignorant enough to entertain them or presumptuous enough to try to induce others to believe in their validity. In order to form a tolerable opinion about the question we should inquire how long the Hindus and others have settled in the country. The date of their settlement cannot I am persuaded be placed at a very remote period. Old Hindu monuments with inscriptions (few as they are) carry us back to no more than 250 years. The oldest pottah I have hitherto seen is not dated earlier than 1676 A.D. But as this pottah contains attestation of Hindu officials it bespeaks of earlier settlement of Hindus in the country. If we add 250 years to the monumental date we are not I suppose very far from the mark. It was after convulsions had begun in other parts of Hinduistan that we may suppose hordes of people had entered this forest covered country. Tradition says that the Routias came from Berar through the south west corner as the Brahmans and Rājputs came from the north.

The countries of these people Central India and Behar could have felt the Mahomedan power very keenly only after a century or two had elapsed since its establishment on the throne of Delhi. It is therefore reasonable to presume that the colonists of whom I speak Indians as they were would not for an almost inaccessible country care to leave their homes until it was made too hot for them. If this conjecture be right the occupation of Chota Nagpore by the Routias and the Hindus may be supposed to have commenced within 500 years. It must further be conceded that the colonists could attack the non Aryan communes only very slowly and by degrees since they could not have been long in perceiving that the aborigines though a simple were yet a very excitable and dangerous people. Allowing all this however enough time seems to have elapsed for doing serious injury to the old village communities.

Great changes had doubtless taken place in some parts of the country both immediately before and immediately after the Kol insurrection of 1832. Much that took place before is well known as inquiries had been instituted by the Government after that event. What took place after the insurrection may be ascertained by inquiries. When the British troops entered into Chota Nagpore from the north to quell the disturbances the zemindars gave out that all the Kols would be cut off or blown away. Many simple people believed it, and thinking the Government was the friend of the Hindus fled into the jungles. For a year or two lands in many a village were left fallow for want of cultivation. When the peace of the country was fully restored the Bhuinhars gradually came back to their villages some got back their lands on the old tenure some on condition of paying quit rents some on condition of paying rent at full rates while others were not allowed to have their lands at all.

We should note a change in the opposite direction which followed the Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 in some villages of Lodhma Sonpūr Belkadi Doesa and Busia—a change which did not escape the notice of Colonel (then Captain) Davies who visited the scenes of disturbances in 1859. Then Christianity had been introduced at least in name and a new spirit had been aroused among a considerable number of people. The Christian converts, or would be converts believed that the Government was their friend and they banded together and forcibly took possession of lands which they rightly or wrongly believed to have been formerly their bhuinhars. In some villages such attacks were successfully repulsed by the zemindars, in others (perhaps not a very large number) the Bhuinhars got and maintained possession.

The above facts and conjectures based upon inquiries cannot I humbly think fail to cross the mind of any unprejudiced person who may carefully conduct inquiries in this country and they may help us to understand aright the present condition of the tenures. It is said and truly that there is such an elasticity in the village communes of India that they have outlived many a revolution. But this has been the case where disturbances have passed over the communes like waves where a foreign and contrary element had been, as it were infused into the system, and attacks had been made persistently for generations to sweep it away it was impossible for it to remain intact.

I beg now to offer some remarks about the present condition of the tenures and of the tenure holders. In pergunnah Lodhna we found 52 villages of which the Bhumhars were Mundas six villages which the Bhumhars were both Mundas and Oraons Sonpur is essentially a Munda pergunnah (7) and about half a dozen villages only exist in it of which the Bhumhars are Oraons. In Butamba (8) and Baragan (the former noted in the Nagpore annals as the cradle of the present Nagvansi family) the Bhumhars are of the Munda race. In Belkadi there is a sprinkling of Munda villages the bulk being Oraon. In Udaipur and the eastern portions of Khukhra there are both Munda and Oraon villages and some in which the Bhumhars are both Mundas and Oraons. Though there are some very well to do Oraon villages the Mundas may be said to predominate in Udaipur and the eastern portion of Khukhra. The condition of the Bhumhars of both the races is the same and the same description equally applies to both. The fact cannot be ignored that in the greater number of villages the Bhumhars have been reduced almost to a state of serfdom. We may judge of the material condition of a Bhumhar by the quantity of lands found belonging to him although bhumhar land alone may not be absolutely a safe criterion for we know that bhumhar lands have been mortgaged or given away in perpetual leases and in cases where lands are the joint property of the khunt and there is a large number of co-sharers, each member of the khunt can have but an inconsiderable quantity of land to hold and besides on the other hand there are Bhumhars who having only a little bhumhar of their own largely cultivate rajhas lands and are prosperous in their way. Still the quantity of bhumhar land in a village is a fair criterion in the great majority of cases for judging the condition of the Bhumhars. We found a single village (Doima) in pergunnah Sonpur with more than 1,000 bighas (49 acres) of bhumhar lands. No such village exists in Lodhna. There are one village in Lodhna and four in Sonpur in which the bhumhar exceeds 1,000 bighas (330 acres) but is less than 1,000. Two villages in Lodhna and 3 in Sonpur have each from 500 bighas (16 acres) bhumhar but less than 1,000. Eighteen villages in Lodhna and 112 in Sonpur have each more than 100 bighas (33 acres) but less than 500. Thirty-four villages in Lodhna and 99 in Sonpur have each less than 100 bighas of bhumhar lands. Six villages of Lodhna and 22 of Sonpur contain each of them the pahar lands only, and the pahar from $1\frac{1}{2}$ bighas (0.49 acres) to 34 bighas (11.20 acres).

The present condition of the tenures and to the holders

It would have been exceedingly well if means existed for ascertaining the proportion of bhumhar lands to the rajhas or the proportion which each description of land bore to the bulk of the lands in the village. The absence of a village survey in Chota Nagpore leaves us in darkness as to the total areas of villages. By no summary enquiry can the proportions be even approximately ascertained. When people speak of so many khurs of rajhas and so many khans of bhumhar they speak of the wet or low lying lands alone and they have not the least idea of the total quantities of cultivated uplands which contribute no less to the material prosperity of the people. Besides as the areas of khurs are unknown it is impossible to make any deductions for any useful purposes as to proportions of different descriptions of lands to each other. The lands also of different classes described by us are so various in quantities in different villages that no customary proportions may be said to exist. The proportions can only be vaguely described by the relative terms large and small. In Nagpur phraseology it is always called half—whether more or less than a moiety 'half'. The lands settled by us in Udaipur Butamba Baragan and the eastern portions of Khukhra are being demarcated during the present season and the areas cannot be calculated until the recess. It would be extremely hazardous to form even rough guesses about the proportions of lands in these parts of the country.

No better illustration of the fallacious nature of the reputed quantities of lands can be given than in the lands in the village of Barum situate about four miles eastward of Ranchee. The village belongs to Ratan Sahi Mani a man who may be said to be every inch a Munda and a fair representative of his ancestors. Under such auspices the bhumhar of a village cannot but be seen at its best and the Bhumhars must be prosperous. And we find that the head Bhumhar of Barum Malar Pahan is a respectable and well to do man who owns according to his own account three khans (or 24 khans) of low lying lands while it is stated that the man has three khans rajhas. Neither the man nor the Pahan enlightens us as to the total quantity of uplands in the village, although 100 khans were claimed as bhumhar. Upon close scrutiny again we find that the bhumhar of the village is not 24 khans but more than 28 khans while we have no means of ascertaining the actual quantity of rajhas. Consequently the reputed half of the lands in Barum being bhumhar and the other half being rajhas has no intelligible meaning.

No more instances need be cited. It may be broadly stated that the proportion of bhumhar to rajhas vary from even less than the hundredth part of the cultivated lands to more than three fourths. In some villages it may be correct to say that one fourth of the lands is bhumhar in others one third one half two thirds or even as much as three fourths. I have made rough calculations of the total lands in three villages (Baragan Lalgung and Nagri) which fall under the last description. Baragan has a total area of somewhat more than 7,300 bighas (1,419 acres), and the area of the bhumhar in it is more than 2,200 bighas

(1,056 acres) Lalgunj has a total area of about 2,606 bighas (858 acres), with more than 2,000 bighas (660 acres) bhuinhari Nagri has a total area of about 4,000 bighas (1,320 acres) of which about 3,000 bighas (990 acres) is bhuinhari

I now beg to conclude with a brief description of the tenures under the Chota Nagpore Tenures Act found by us

1st—The bhuinhari lands of the Munda Pahan, and Mahto Khunts These are subject to quit rents only or to certain services only or to both

The lands are absolutely hereditary property of the Bhuinhars who have in many an instance exercised the right of transferring their property Where the lands of a khunt are held jointly or at least under the control of a single head Bhuinhar such right of transfer cannot be exercised unless all the members of the khunt choose jointly to do so We find instances of lands held by subordinate Bhuinhars who have left the country for good retained within the khunt another member taking the place of the one who is absent But this occurs where the Bhuinhars muster strong In the majority of cases where the Bhuin har leaves his village the zemindar takes possession of his lands as rajhas and does not allow a Bhuinhar about to leave his home to sell or mortgage his lands for his own benefit This is regarded as a great hardship However, the questions of the right of transfer and of the custom of succession among the Bhuinhars are by no means so clear as to render superfluous some equitable rulings by the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore on these points The tenures registered at so much public cost should be made as secure as possible and the greatest obstacles should be placed by rules in the way of assessing them as rajhas It would appear in several north eastern villages that the Bhuinhars and the zemindars had anticipated the law of commutation of services into money rent Rents have years ago been agreed to specially in lieu of the service of carrying the landlord's luggage while travelling

2nd—The bhuinhari bhutkheta which also is absolute property of the Bhuinhars, but unencumbered with any condition as regards the zemindars Colonel Dalton has ruled that such lands are like the dwattar or dharmottar lands of the Hindus and cannot be alienated

3rd—The pahnai lands which may be divided into the dahkatarai the panibhara, and the bhutkheta (a)—The dahkatarai exists in every village in some there are two separate dahkatarai fields held by different Pahan one of whom may be a Munda and the other an Oraon (b)—The panibhara (which includes also fields called murgor pakowa &c fields held for the consideration of cooking fowls during ceremonies) exists almost wherever there is dahkatarai (c)—The bhutkheta is described in paragraph 22 These exist in some villages only The zemindars have persuaded most Bhuinhars to believe that these pahnai lands had been created out of the rajhas The opinion seems now to me to be manifestly wrong It is true that the Pahan has no hereditary interest in such fields but they must be in possession of the Pahan for the time being and such Pahan must be a Bhuinhar The pahnai lands should therefore be held to fall within the bhuinhari It may be said that if all the Bhuinhars of a village embrace Christianity the pahnai lands in it may properly belong to the church of which the Bhuinhars are members Questions have arisen in the local courts as to right of property to the *sarna I think the remarks on the pahnai apply to the sarna also

4th—The gaoro or mardana bhutkheta (such fields are rather rare) are held by ryots generally without payment of rent These fields may originally have been the bhuinhari bhutkheta of a Bhuinhar's family and held by ryots on extinction of that family hence the fields are sometimes called lawaris bhutkheta They are called also mardana because females are not allowed to take part in the orgies held out of the produce of the bhutkheta

5th—The bhutkheta the mundai and the mahtoai all these may be classed together as service tenures created out of the rajhas In several villages these service tenures have been given up by the holders thereof in order to be exempted from the services

6th—The manjhihas held either by the sub proprietor or farmer of the village In the north eastern villages manjhihas is understood to mean a small quantity of land (generally a khar or about five acres) held by the manager of the village Southwards manjhihas means the lands held by the sub proprietors or grantees and there the quantity of manjhihas is much greater Both these sorts of lands fall within the scope of the Chota Nagpore Tenures Act and when claimed and proved have been admitted into our registers

ADMINISTRATION OF THE CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT DURING 1879 80

REVENUE DEPARTMENT - MIS REVENUE

Calcutta, the 26th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The Annual Customs Report of the Board of Revenue for 1879 80

The Lieutenant Governor is glad to have again to express his satisfaction at the careful and complete manner in which this important report has been prepared by the Collector of Customs and reviewed by the Board. Mr Macken was Collector and Mr Armstrong, Assistant Collector of Customs throughout the year. The offices of Assistant Collector and Head Appraiser were amalgamated at the close of the year, at a considerable saving of expenditure to the Government, the Head Appraiser being appointed Assistant Collector, but retaining charge of his duties in the Appraising Department. Naraingunge and Cox's Bazar were notified as ports for the coasting trade towards the end of 1878 79. Statistics of the sea borne trade of Naraingunge are furnished in the present report, but there was no trade to record at Cox's Bazar.

The following statement shows the gross and net customs revenue of Bengal for each of the past five years —

BENGAL

	1875 76	1876 77	1877 78	1878 79	1879 80

Total net duty	3 48 99 370	3 40 67 644	3 60 78 85	3 19 30 004	3 18 63 824

On these figures the Board remark —

"The total net revenue collected in Bengal had fallen off in 1878 79 by more than 50 lakhs of which upwards of 32 lakhs were in the duty on salt and 18 lakhs in the duty levied upon other imports. In the year now under review the returns show a further decline of about Rs 6 000. The import duties, which—excluding the duty on salt—realized less during 1878 79 than during any of the preceding five years showed a further reduction amounting to more than 4½ lakhs equivalent to about 6 per cent, while in the export duties there was a decline of about 5½ lakhs, equal to 26 per cent the revenue under this head being lower than it has been in any year since 1874 75. The duty on salt recovered itself to the extent of something over 9 lakhs, but not quite sufficiently to compensate for the falling off in the other duties. The decrease in import duty occurred, as in 1878 79, principally under the head of cotton twist and yarn and grey piece goods. The principal decrease in export duty was during 1878 79 in indigo but during the year under review in rice."

3 In Calcutta there was a decline of nearly three lakhs or 9 per cent in the net duty, notwithstanding an increase of nearly 8½ lakhs, or 3½ per cent in the salt duty. At Chittagong, in consequence of a considerable improvement in trade, there was an increase of Rs 1,49,911 in the customs revenue. At the Orissa ports also the customs receipts improved, the increase being Rs 17,004 at Balasore, Rs 50,438 at Falso Point, and Rs 2,970 at Pooree. No duty was levied at Naraingunge. The net receipts of the ports from duty only compare thus for the past two years—

	1878-79	18 8-80	In rease.	Decrease
	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs
Calcutta	3 11 16 539	3 08 29 037		2 87 502
Chittagong	7 37 609	8 87 570	1 47 911
Balasore	18 273	31 277	18 004
Cuttack	55 193	1 05 431	50 478
Pooree	2 190	5 180	2 970

In the figures for the Outports refunds have been deducted, as in the case of Calcutta. These have not been shown in the Collector's report. In future reports, statements of the receipts and charges should, if possible, be furnished for each of the Outports similar to those for Calcutta at pages L and LI of the report. By the addition of receipts from other sources than duty, the total net customs revenue for the past year amounted in Calcutta to Rs 3,10,72,664 against Rs 3,13,25,173 for 1878-79, at Chittagong to Rs 8,92,036 against Rs 7,41,118, at Balasore to Rs 36,319 against Rs 18,273, and at Cuttack to Rs 1,05,856 against Rs 55,416. At Pooree there were no miscellaneous receipts in either year. The charges amounted in Calcutta to Rs 6,98,534 against Rs 7,59,221 in 1878-79 at Chittagong to Rs 28,118 against Rs 26,801, at Balasore to Rs 8,457 against Rs 8,952, at Cuttack to Rs 6,964 against Rs 7,276, and at Pooree to Rs 1,555 against Rs 1,532. After deduction of charges the net customs revenue of the year for the whole province was Rs 3,13,67,895 against Rs 3,13,38,388 in 1878-79, showing an increase of Rs 29,507 or 09 per cent. In Calcutta there was a decrease of 6 per cent, but there was an increase of 20 per cent at Chittagong, 199 per cent at Balasore, 105 per cent at Cuttack, and 447 per cent at Pooree. But for the increased receipts from salt, Calcutta would have shown a much more serious falling off, the decrease in import duties on cotton goods and liquors amounting to over 5½ lakhs of rupees, and in export duties to over 5 lakhs on rice and 1½ lakhs on indigo and lac.

4 The total value of the imports and exports of the Province, exclusive of Government transactions, in each of the last five years stood thus—

As compared with 1878-79 imports of merchandise increased in the past year by upwards of two crores of rupees in the foreign trade, and by nearly 80 lakhs in the coasting trade. Imports of treasure also increased by over 1½ crores in the foreign trade and by about 72 lakhs in the coasting trade. Exports of merchandise increased by over one crore in the foreign trade, but decreased by 36 lakhs in the coasting trade, while exports of treasure show a decline of 20 lakhs in the foreign trade and an increase of over 74 lakhs in the coasting trade. The total import and export trade of the year, in both merchandise and treasure, improved by over 5½ crores but still fell short of the trade of 1877-78 by nearly 1½ crores. The improvement during the year is very satisfactory when contrasted with the falling off in 1878-79, which amounted to 16 crores of rupees, or about 22 per cent on the gross value of the trade of the province

5 Calcutta — The total value of the sea borne trade of Calcutta exclusive of Government transactions was Rs 61,22,73,282 against Rs 56,34,81,070 in the previous year, giving an increase of Rs 4,87,92,212. The imports amounted to Rs 21,74,45,840 in the foreign and Rs 3,95,28,266 in the coasting trade, against Rs 18,40,51,381 and Rs 2,77,30,163 respectively in 1878-79, and the exports to Rs 30,00,47,247 in the foreign and Rs 5,52,51,929 in the coasting trade, against Rs 29,34,30,284 and Rs 5,82,69,242 respectively in 1878-79. The foreign trade thus improved in both branches, while the coasting trade improved in imports, but declined in exports.

6 The returns show a further reduction in the value of stores imported by Government at Calcutta during the past year, the amount being only Rs 9,93,904, as compared with Rs. 4,17,960 in 1878-79 and Rs 44,70,790 in 1877-78. The decrease occurred chiefly in railway plant and rolling stock, metals, arms and ammunition, liquors, carts and carriages, hardware and woollen goods. So far as the reduction in imports implies the substitution of country manufactures and materials for those of the home market, it is no doubt matter of satisfaction, but the decreased importation of railway material indicates, the Lieutenant Governor regrets to say, the postponement of many useful projects, of which the province stands in urgent need, and for which it could well afford to pay. Stores exported by Government amounted in value to Rs 99,593 or Rs 47,191 in excess of the previous year, due to larger shipments of copper coin to Ceylon, and of books and printed matter to the United Kingdom.

7 Exclusive of Government transactions, the total foreign trade of Calcutta, export and import, during the past year, is returned at Rs 51,74,93,087 as compared with Rs 47,74,81,661 in 1878-79, the increase being Rs 4,00,11,422, of which Rs 3,33,91,459 are credited to imports, and Rs 66,16,963 to exports. In imports, merchandise advanced in value from Rs 16,58,47,943 to Rs 18,64,40,947. The improvement was confined to duty free goods, and followed closely upon the stimulus given to the importation of cotton piece goods of the inferior kinds, by the exemption of such goods from duty since March 1879.

The imports of cotton manufactures (dutyable and free) increased by no less than 1 crore 78½ lakhs. Other articles which show a large increase are metals, oil, salt, coal, woollen goods, khopra, quinine, aniline dyes, silk piece goods, and sugar. There was a large falling off in the imports of railway plant and rolling stock, cotton twist, machinery and mill works, umbrellas, building materials, coconuts, ice, books and printed matter, and chemicals. Imports of dutyable goods declined from Rs 14,48,73,103 to Rs 14,02,38,602. The importation of treasure rose from Rs 1,82,03,438 to Rs 3,10,04,893. There was an increase of nearly 21 lakhs in gold, the total import of that metal amounting to 66½ lakhs, which the Board rightly regard as an indication of the prosperous condition of the people, gold being chiefly in demand for jewellery and ornaments. The remainder of the increase (107 lakhs) was in silver, which came from China in payment of the large shipments of cotton and opium made during the year. The imports of treasure from the United Kingdom decreased, owing to the greater use of council drafts for purposes of remittance. Under exports, Indian merchandise rose in value from Rs 28,70,31,239 to Rs 29,59,06,195, and foreign merchandise fell from Rs 10,33,072 to Rs 8,64,141, the net increase in merchandise of both kinds being Rs 87,06,025. The increase was mainly in duty free articles. Raw cotton exports increased by nearly 1 crore and 17 lakhs, and there was also a large increase in hides and skins, wheat, jute, jute bags, poppy seed, opium, saltpetre, and til-seed. In linseed (which fell off by 19½ lakhs), rapeseed (which fell off by 55½ lakhs), tea, raw silk, and some other articles there were notable decreases. Of dutyable goods shell lac improved by 8½ lakhs, but rice fell by 1 crore and 12½ lakhs, and indigo by over 42½ lakhs.

8 The distribution of the foreign trade among the different countries was as follows — United Kingdom, 59½ per cent, China, 17½ per cent, United States, 6½ per cent, Ceylon, 2½ per cent, Straits Settlements, 4 per cent, France, 3 per cent, Mauritius, 1 per cent, Australia, 1 per cent, Italy, 1½ per cent, Austria, 1 per cent, and other countries 2½ per cent. The United Kingdom alone absorbed three fifths of the entire trade, and China one-sixth. About one-fourth only was distributed among the remaining countries. In the trade with the United Kingdom, the imports, exclusive of treasure, increased by 187 lakhs, the greater part of which consisted of cotton goods and the exports by 66 lakhs, chiefly due to larger shipments of raw cotton. Treasure fell by 24 lakhs in imports and six lakhs in exports. In the China trade a notable feature was the large importation of silver alluded to in the last paragraph, but the export trade was also exceptionally brisk, indicating probably that China has recovered from the effects of the late famine. A marked development is observed in the trade with the United States. The imports increased by nearly 93 per cent, the principal article being mineral oil. It declined by 1½ lakhs, owing to the increasing use of the machine made article in this country. In exports to the States the steady advance which has been maintained during the past five years is very noteworthy. In 1875-76 they were valued at 167 lakhs. In 1879-80 they had risen to 296 lakhs. Country produce, raw jute, hides and skins, and linseed contributed the chief share of the increase in the past year. The most prominent facts in the trade with other countries were a large decrease in exports of rice to Ceylon and Mauritius, these colonies having supplied themselves more largely from Burma and elsewhere, and a large increase in exports of raw cotton to France and Italy and in imports of coral from Italy and of unwrought copper from Australia.

9 Taking now the principal articles of the import trade, it is observed that there has been a slight decline in imports of agricultural implements attributed, perhaps rightly, to the dull state of the tea industry. Imports of coal increased from 34,341 tons to 60,193 tons, but the quantity was still below the imports of 1876-77 (77,375 tons) and 1877-78 (80,703 tons). The fact that the increased importation of 30,000 tons of foreign coal was followed by a reduction of only 12,000 tons in the exports of country coal, warrants the conclusion of the Board and the Collector that country coal at present prices can keep its hold on the market. The influx of shipping in search of freight caused by the rise in the freight market in the middle of the year, accounts to some extent for the larger importation of the year, coal being frequently used by such ships for ballast. Corals, which come almost entirely from Italy, show an increase of 4½ lakhs. It is explained that the increase is partly accounted for by more correct valuation, and partly by larger consignments of a kind of coral known as "looriah," which is in much demand with the Nepalese for devotional purposes.

10 The following figures show the imports of cotton twist and yarn and piece goods for the last five years —

	1875-76.	1876-77	1877-78	1878-79	1879-80
Cotton twist and yarn	1 04 43 000	1 05 55 852	1 17 65 008	1 08 71 836	97 55 635
Piece goods	10 34,61 521	9 8 74 448	11 4 74 130	8 75 28 850	10 34,00 309
Total	11 39 15 213	10 39 30 300	12 04 39 138	9 61 00 686	11 31 55 944

The decrease in cotton twist and yarn in the past year amounted to 11 per cent, and is attributed to the existence of large stocks at the beginning of the year. In December 1878 the Collector estimates that there were 4257 bales in hand, while in December 1879 the stocks had been reduced to 1,767 bales. It is worthy of notice that the imports of grey yarns under 3's were only 4,000 lbs less in 1877-78, when they were liable to duty, than they were in the year under review. It also appears that the imports of this article from Bombay still represent 14 times the amount of duty free yarn imported from Manchester.

11 A remarkable increase is seen in the imports of piece goods of all kinds. Grey goods advanced from 524,144,589 to 609,064,757 yards, white from 116,097,264 to 136,772,309 yards, and coloured from 79,042,160 to 100,046,421 yards. Grey goods thus increased by 85 millions of yards, white by nearly 21 millions and coloured by 21 millions. The Lieutenant Governor is disposed to agree with the Board and the Collector that the expansion of the piece goods trade during the year is to be explained entirely by the present prosperous condition of the people of these provinces, combined with the recent development of railways and other facilities of communication.

While the remission of duty under the notification of March 1879 has greatly stimulated the manufacture of certain classes of goods in England for the Indian market, it does not appear that the increased importation of the past year was in excess of the demand. The fact that there was an actual reduction in the despatches from Calcutta to the North Western Provinces (owing to the preference given by dealers in Northern India to the Bombay market, from which Port goods could be placed cheaper in the North Western Provinces than from Bengal) further shows that the imports of the year were mainly intended to meet the demand of Bengal alone. The Collector's remarks on the manner in which the notification above alluded to has affected the Imperial revenue, the importer, the consumer, and the local trade in cotton goods are, the Lieutenant Governor understands fully borne out by the facts. The Government has lost in Bengal 13½ lakhs of rupees revenue during the year, and will lose more in future years, as the trade adjusts itself to its new conditions. Importers and manufacturers have had to undergo much inconvenience and some loss in adapting their arrangements to meet the altered requirements of the market. Consumers get a cheaper, coarser and possibly even a more durable article, but not precisely the article they prefer. The local manufactures have not been ousted from the market, but Lancashire has been driven to manufacture a new class of goods which merely ousts another class of Lancashire goods falling under the dutiable standard. In fact, it does not appear that the sacrifices made by the Government of India in surrendering the duties of certain classes of piece goods have been attended by any corresponding advantages while on the other hand they have had in many ways a distinctly mischievous effect upon trade, and have caused precisely the confusion which was anticipated and foretold by many who were opposed to the surrender of this valuable source of revenue. Any way, it can hardly be maintained by any one now that India herself has derived any benefit from the remission of these duties. The Board have, in treating of this subject, referred to the action taken by the Collector and themselves in the matter of the confiscation of piece goods declared duty free, but found to contain yarn finer than 30s, which has lately excited so much discussion. The Lieutenant Governor's views on this subject were sufficiently indicated in the Resolution issued on the memorials presented to Government by two of the leading local firms in the piece goods trade, and orders were conveyed to the Customs authorities for the purpose of remedying any hardship to which importers had been exposed by an unduly strict working of the notification. Whether any more general relief should be given to importers is a matter which rests with the Supreme Government. It seems to the Lieutenant Governor that the only satisfactory solution of the difficulty is to bring all classes of cotton goods on to the customs tariff again at an equal but reduced rate of duty. The present system is one which it is practically impossible to work with fairness, and it has certainly not fulfilled the declared expectation of its authors.

12 In drugs and medicines imported there was an increase of over two lakhs, which is accounted for by larger imports of quinine and camphor. It would appear therefore that the demand for quinine remains unaffected by the increasing use of the cinchona febrifuge prepared on the Darjeeling Plantations. The imports of malt liquor and of wines and liqueurs declined by 14,557 and 1,007 gallons respectively, while in spirits there was an increase of 28,201 gallons. The Board have drawn attention to the remarkable falling off in the importation of malt liquor, amounting to 30 per cent since 1871-75. This appears to be due partly to the competition of Indian with English beer, and partly to the less general use of beer by Europeans in this country, claret and whiskey to a great extent taking its place. The consumption of wines and liqueurs varies but little on the whole, though there is a falling off in the imports of the more expensive kinds, champagne having diminished by 6,000 gallons, while claret, chiefly of a cheap description, has increased by 9,000 gallons. A rise of 17,000 gallons in imports of whiskey accounts largely for the increase under the head of spirits. The loss of revenue on liquor of all kinds during the year, as compared with 1878-79, was about one lakh of rupees.

13 The figures under the head of machinery and mill work show a slight falling off, attributable to the depressed condition of the jute manufacture. In metals there was an increase of over 2½ lakhs. The winding up of the Bengal Iron Company probably accounts for the increase in the imports of unwrought iron, while a similar increase in the case of wrought iron is attributed to an extra demand from local ship builders. In copper, wrought and unwrought, the imports exceeded those of the previous year by 77,746 cwt, the increase being ascribed by the Collector of Customs to a larger demand for these metals for the manufacture of domestic utensils caused by the improved condition of the people. The Lieutenant Governor is not aware of any other circumstance that might have specially influenced these imports, while the fact of the improved condition of the people and their increased spending power is borne out from a number of independent sources. The difficulty of making satisfactory financial arrangements between India and Australia is said to account for the fact that over 50,000 tons of Australian copper were shipped to Calcutta via England, instead of direct, during the past year. The growth of a direct trade with Australia in tea, jute, seeds and other Indian produce will, it may be hoped in time correct this anomaly. The increased use of mineral oil by the native population led to an advance in the imports of this article, the quantity being 3,696,348 gallons against 1,077,878 gallons in 1878-79, of which the United Kingdom supplied 440,452 and the United States 3,255,896 gallons against 293,550 and 783,852 gallons respectively in 1878-79. The oil imported from the United Kingdom is chiefly "batching" oil for softening jute before manufacture. The imports of salt rose from 238,876 to 291,581 tons. A slight increase is observed in raw silk and a very large advance in the quantity of silk piece goods (1,120,076 yards being imported against 767,725 in 1878-79). The price of silk cloth was lower by 21 per cent, which doubtless stimulated the demand. China tea of an inferior kind continues its hold on the market on account of its cheapness as compared with Indian tea. Tobacco shows a considerable decline indicating a decline in its popularity, the increasing popularity of the native product. The imports of woollen goods were normal, but there was an appreciable rise in their value owing to enhanced prices in the United Kingdom.

14 Under the head of Exports, the expansion of the trade in raw cotton was most marked, the exports being the highest within the last eight years, as shown below —

	Cwt		(wt
1872-73	712,970	1876-77	311,121
1873-74	299,348	1877-78	95,506
1874-75	224,019	1878-79	343,538
1875-76	310,465	1879-80	807,610

The United Kingdom, China, Austria, France, and Italy all took large quantities in excess of the previous year's transactions. The Indian crop was good, and the foreign demand for the staple was influenced by a variety of causes. In the United Kingdom a short American crop was expected, in China it was apparently necessary to make up for the unusually low imports of the previous years, when the country suffered from distress, and in France and Italy larger imports were required on account of the prevailing practice of introducing cotton in silk piece goods and ribbons. Exportation to China is it appears, somewhat slack in the current year, indicating that stocks there are now replenished. Under 'Drugs and Medicines' the exports of cinchona bark rose from 56,210 lbs to 236,383 lbs. The Collector rightly proposes to show the transactions in this article separately in future reports.

15 Last year's indigo crop was seriously reduced by unreasonable weather, and the outturn (74,000 maunds) proved the smallest on record for upwards of twenty years. An abundant supply of pure water at the time of manufacture, however, proved of great benefit to the quality of the dye, and the proportion of fine indigo brought to market was unusually high. The quality of dye produced by native growers is also said to have much improved of late years. The short supply and fine quality combined with large demands from America and Russia contributed to an unprecedented rise in prices, which tended to retrieve in some measure the losses of the producers from short crop. The total exports in the past year amounted to 65,235 maunds, valued at Rs 1,88,04,499, as compared with 1,01,739 maunds, valued at Rs 2,30,88,814 in 1878-79, the average value per maund being Rs 288 against Rs 227. The trade in myrabolams was normal, that in safflower showed a further falling off, while the demand for turmeric was weak and affected by the high rates of freight ruling during some months of the year

16 The exports of rice declined from 5,701,035 to 3,881,083 cwts. Ceylon took nearly $1\frac{1}{2}$ million of hundredweights less than in the previous year, having dealt more largely with Burma, where prices were lower. The exports for Mauritius were also reduced by nearly half a million of hundredweights, but there was an increase of shipments to the colony from Chittagong and the Orissa ports due to the more favourable prices ruling at the outports. The United Kingdom took 705,056 cwts as compared with 456,153 cwts in 1878 79, and 370,278 cwts in 1877 78, owing to the fears of an unfavourable harvest which were at one time entertained in England. The same cause, as well as an anticipation of reduced supplies from America, and the prevalence of low freights here at one period of the year, caused an increase in the demand for Indian wheat. The exports of wheat in the last five years were as follow —

18 5 76		1876 7		18 78		1878 79		1879 80
Cwt	R	Cwts	Rs	C t	R	Cwt	R	Cwts	Rs
1 430 821	31 5 701	3 88 18	1 3 36 374	3 544 9	1 01 13 081	853 800	4 16 600	1 583 666	76 47 708

17 One of the most striking features in the statistics of the year is the great development of the export trade in hides and skins. The figures for the last five years are—

18 6	1876 77	1877 78	18 8 79	1879 80
No	No	No	No	No
8 208 498	7 537 152	8,06 423	9 286 059	12 023 038

In the past year there was an advance of more than $1\frac{1}{2}$ millions in hides and one million in skins. Two thirds of the raw and the whole of the dressed hides went to the United Kingdom, while the United States took one fifth of the raw hides, 90 per cent of the raw skins, and 93 per cent of the dressed skins. The exports to the United States rose from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to over $5\frac{1}{2}$ millions, accounting for four fifths of the general increase in the trade of the year. The development of this trade is doubtless due to the opening up of communications with new districts by the extension of the railway system in Behar and Northern Bengal.

18 The exports of raw jute amounted to 6,298,693 cwts, the highest figure attained since 1872 73. The increase is attributed to heavy shipments of the crop of 1878 79 within the first half of the past year. The last season's crop was not a particularly good one. The export trade in gunny bags shows a steady increase during the past five years, but there was a general fall in their value last year, amounting to Rs 3 on every hundred. The total number shipped was 54,871,254 as compared with 43,902,259 in 1878 79, and 18,691,025 in 1875 76. In gunny cloth the exports increased from 4,556,821 to 5,210,756 yards. The value of the jute exports of all kinds was Rs 5,27,61,741 against Rs 4,66,52 594 in 1878 79, showing an advance of over 61 lakhs. There was a slight improvement in the export of raw jute to the United Kingdom, but a falling off of $2\frac{1}{2}$ millions in the number of bags, attributed to the bad quality of the previous year's shipments. The exports of gunny cloth also fell off considerably. The United States took 50 per cent more of raw jute than in 1878 79, and (inclusive of the shipments to Hong Kong, the bulk of which are transmitted thence to San Francisco) 30 per cent more of gunny bags, the number of these being 23,760,218 against 18,455 255 in 1878 79. The number of bags despatched to Australia, for use in the transport of grain and wool, also increased from 8,001,290 to 12,266,990. The high price of raw jute in India, coupled with the low prices obtainable for the manufactured articles led to a serious depression of the industry, many mills working at a loss and some being compelled to stop altogether. The trade may be expected to recover as the use of gunny bags for sea borne grain develops.

19 The exports of shell lac underwent a further decline last year, extending to all sources of demand, but a higher average price was attained than in the previous year. The causes of the depression from which the lac trade has suffered in recent years were fully explained by the Collector in last year's report. A very large increase is observed in exports of castor oil and saltpetre A fall in the price of castor oil, due to the larger consumption of mineral oils for lighting purposes in this country, has, it appears, brought it into greater request for lubricating machinery in England. The saltpetre trade was probably favoured by the stoppage of the usual supply from South America owing to the disturbances existing there. The exports were 508,162 cwts as against 382,146 in 1878-79. Oilseeds, consisting of linseed, poppy seed, rapeseed, and tilseed, form an important item in the export trade of Calcutta, their total value in 1879-80 amounting to Rs. 2,61,13,493. The total exports of linseed were lower than in the previous year (2,529,496 cwts against 2,964,598), but from the increase in the quantity taken by the United States, it is satisfactory to notice that the anticipations of a fall in the American demand, in consequence of extension of home cultivation there, are not being realized. Poppy (508,356 cwts against 249,018) and tilseed (392,842 cwts against 218,720) show a very large increase, France having drawn extensively on the Calcutta market to supplement a deficient local supply of "oil stock." A short crop and large local requirements led to a heavy reduction of the exports of rapeseed (586,414 cwts against 1,481,132).

20 The experience of the silk trade in the past year was very discouraging. It was at one time hoped that the shortness of the European crop would improve materially the prospects of Indian silk, but this expectation was frustrated by a low demand for silk goods (chiefly due to the substitution of other textiles for silk) and a consequent fall in the value of the raw material. Thus, although the Indian exports advanced from 1,265,836 to 1,367,196 lbs., their value actually decreased from Rs. 55,67,991 to Rs. 51,26,744. In silk piece goods the results were better. A large advance took place in exports, while the average value continued steady. The increased shipments were, it is reported, the result of a heavy demand on the United Kingdom for printed silk handkerchiefs for Burma. The plain goods are sent from India to England to be printed, and are re-shipped thence to Burma.

21 It is clear from the export returns of recent years that the production of sugar in Bengal is not in excess of the local consumption and the demand from other parts of India, and that, under ordinary conditions, there would be hardly any export trade in this produce. With the exception of the years 1876-77 and 1877-78, which were quite abnormal, the exports have declined steadily since 1875-76. In the past year they amounted to 38,582 cwts., but the local demand was so strong that prices rose from Rs. 7 12 to Rs. 10, and a distillery in Oudh apparently found it remunerative to import supplies from the Straits Settlements. The imports from the Straits thus rose from 832 to 10,313 cwts. The whole of the exports from Calcutta could, it seems, have been disposed of profitably in the local market.

22 The tea exports of the past five years, and their average value per pound, are shown in the following statement —

The low prices ruling throughout the year have had a most depressing effect upon the Tea industry. Apart, however, from this it is feared that there has been a tendency among Indian growers in recent years to sacrifice quality to quantity in their output. The large increase in exports to the United Kingdom during the past year is attributed to a temporary reduction in the supply from China. The gradual advance in the shipments to Australia and other countries is a most promising sign for the future. The success of Indian teas at the Sydney Exhibition may also be expected to result in a moderate development of the export trade in this article.

23 In tobacco the exports fell from 10,062,010lbs to 4,827,265lbs, or by more than 56 per cent. The Collector rightly observes that the increase of local consumption does not account for so serious a reduction. The true explanation is, he believes, to be found in the abundance of the American crop, which enabled purchasers in England to supply themselves largely from that source at prices which precluded competition on the part of dealers in the Indian produce, which is never likely to be very popular in the home market compared with the produce of other countries. The Lieutenant Governor is inclined to agree with the Board that the exports must also have been influenced to some extent by a deficiency in the Indian crop. The exports to Italy increased by over 50 per cent. This was the only market showing an increased demand.

24 Coasting trade of Calcutta—The total value of the Calcutta coasting trade in the past two years was—

	1878-79	1879-80
	Rs	Rs
Imports	2 13 73 250	2 50 59 315
Exports	5 23 02 139	4 16 81 771
Total	7 36,75 389	6 67 41 086

The increase of 37 lakhs in the imports was due chiefly to improvement in the trade with Madras. The trade with Burma, the Bengal outports, and non-British ports also showed an advance, but this was more than counterbalanced by a decline of 10½ per cent in the trade with Bombay. Exports give much the reverse of these results. The shipments to Madras, Burma, and non-British ports diminished considerably, while those to Bombay and the Bengal outports increased, the net effect being a decline of 20½ per cent in the total exports.

25 The imports from Madras, in which an increase occurred, were raw cotton, raw hides, ghee (which advanced from Rs 1,405 to Rs 16,28,213), castor-seed, and indigo. The low price of Madras ghee has given a sudden and marked impulse to its sale in Calcutta and the neighbourhood. Madras castor-seed was also in greater demand for manufacture into oil for the English market. The exports to Madras of Indian produce (especially of rice) fell away by nearly 66½ lakhs. This was of course due to the cessation of the effects of the Madras famine and scarcity.

26 Smaller consignments of raw cotton, country cotton twist, betelnuts and sugar account for the diminution in the Bombay imports. Only 2,996,675lbs of cotton twist and yarn came from Bombay as against 4,615,000lbs in the previous year. The importation of Bombay grey cotton goods amounted to 10,399,672 yards against 10,508,078 yards in the previous year, but the total value of the goods increased from Rs 24,86,955 to Rs 27,93,835. The decline in the imports of cotton twist and yarn is attributed by the Collector to a fall in prices in Calcutta, owing to excessive imports in the two preceding years, to larger shipments from Bombay to China, and to the closing of several mills in Bombay. There was a rise in exports to Bombay, chiefly under rice and sugar.

27 Imports from Burma show an increase, chiefly in rice, cutch and gambier (for export to the United States), and railway plant (mostly wooden sleepers), while there was a heavy decrease in teak wood, probably caused by the disturbed state of Upper Burma. The decrease in exports to Burma occurred in foreign cotton twist, piece goods, and hardware, and in various Indian articles. In the case of foreign goods, it seems probable that shipments from Calcutta have fallen off in consequence of an increase in direct shipments from Europe.

28 OUTPORTS—Chittagong—In the foreign trade the imports of Chittagong increased from Rs 2,38,699 to Rs 3,31,721, or by nearly 39 per cent, owing to the receipt of larger shipments of salt from the United Kingdom, and of coconuts from Ceylon and the Maldives for the local manufacture of coir. Much of the salt was brought by ships seeking jute cargoes and a ready sale was obtained for it in the neighbouring districts, as well as in Chittagong itself. The foreign export trade advanced in value from Rs 37,44,455 to Rs 46,78,340. Raw jute, which is brought in country vessels and transhipped for the United Kingdom at Chittagong, advanced by 34 per cent, and rice by 24 per cent, over last year's figures, Mauritius and Ceylon having made larger purchases. The coasting trade amounted in value to Rs 1,91,821, being Rs 33,54,224 in excess of the previous year. The progress made by the port within the past two or three years promises well for the further development of its commerce. The total value of the trade of this port (excluding treasure) has risen from Rs 47,21,039 in 1875-76 to Rs 1,24,39,172 in 1879-80.

29 Orissa ports — The trade of the Orissa ports compares thus for the past two years —

The foreign trade of Balasore is entirely export, and shows an increase during the year owing to the diversion of the export trade in rice from home to foreign ports, chiefly Mauritius and the Maldives. In the interport trade its imports increased, partly no doubt owing to the fact that many consignments for Cuttack go now by the Chandbally instead of the False Point route, but in great measure the increase indicates a continuous development in the trade of Orissa. The Cuttack trade shows the same increase in foreign exports owing to the diversion of the rice exports from home markets. The interport exports show a corresponding decrease. In this port, however, the coasting imports also show a falling off of 31 lakhs, three lakhs of this being under treasure. At Pooree the foreign export trade in rice advanced from Rs 27,840 to Rs 87,540. But the coasting import trade fell from Rs 1,30,303 to Rs 42,503, most of the decrease being under treasure, while the exports fell from Rs 3,67,954 to Rs 1,06,119 owing to the dullness of the rice traffic with Madras.

30 Narungunge has no foreign trade. It exports jute and other products of Eastern Bengal to Chittagong, receiving salt chiefly in return. It has also a small trade with Moulmein. The imports last year amounted to Rs 4,93,373, and the exports to Rs 23,70,437.

31 The Lieutenant Governor desires to thank the Board, Mr. Mackean, the Collector of Customs, and the officers specially named by the Board, for their services in connection with the Customs Department during the year.

By order of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal,

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE BOARD'S REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE LICENSE TAX IN 1879-80

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT — LICENSE TAX

Calcutta the 20th November 1880

RESOLUTION

READ—

The Report of the Board of Revenue on the Administration of the License tax in 1879-80

The report was due on 31st July. The Board, however, explain that considerable delay was occasioned by the introduction of the additional forms prescribed in the orders of the Government of India of 27th May, and the difficulty of bringing the detailed figures required for them into accord with those given in the old statements. The report is full and interesting, but the Lieutenant Governor considers that it should have been possible to submit it to Government before 28th October. As the operations under the Act each year cannot be brought to a close till 30th June, the date of submission of the report may be extended to 31st August, but endeavours must be made to keep within this limit.

2 The license tax was levied during the year under Act I of 1878. An important modification, however, was introduced by the orders of the Government of India of 14th September exempting all incomes below Rs 250 per annum from the tax. The result of this measure was to remit a claim of Rs 9,55,820, or nearly one third of the gross demand, and to exempt no less than 579,674 out of the 710,432 persons assessed. A sum of Rs 3,42,191 had been collected from assessee of the lowest class before the issue of these orders, and every facility was offered for obtaining refunds. Only Rs 1,57,734 was claimed by the licensees. There can be no doubt that the action of Government in exempting the lower class of contributors to the tax was most favourably viewed by the public generally. The further raising of the minimum of taxable income from Rs 250 to Rs 500 under the new Act has restricted the operation of the law to persons in the enjoyment of fairly substantial incomes.

3 The rules under the Act were revised during the year, the principal change introduced being a large reduction in the number of circles. Sub divisional officers were placed in charge of the work within their jurisdictions, and instructed to check the assessment lists in as many villages as possible during their cold weather tours. Arrangements were also made for payment of the tax being made at the district or sub divisional treasuries, and not to itinerant collecting officers. The Board apprehend that the "establishments were reduced to a degree which was hardly consistent with efficiency considering the onerous duties in which sub divisional officers are ordinarily employed." No indication, however, of any failure of efficiency, necessarily arising from this cause is to be found in the results set forth in the report. On the contrary, where specially good work was done it was accomplished by the local officers unaided by any special temporary establishment. With the reduced number of assesses the Lieutenant Governor can see no reason why a sub divisional officer should require more than occasional assistance when once the lists have been carefully prepared. On the other hand, it is of the greatest importance that the main responsibility for the administration of such an important measure of taxation should rest upon the chief local executive officers. The practice of undue centralization in such departments as this cannot fail to have mischievous results by depriving the local officer of a valuable means of ascertaining the circumstances of his charge and the state of public feeling, while it places obstacles in the way of those who have grievances for redress.

4 The statement showing the work done by the circle officers could be of little value, except during the year of the introduction of the tax. That now submitted, however, is quite worthless as in several of the largest districts, such as 24 Pargunnahs, Nuddea, Mymensingh, Litterah, Gya, Durbhunga, and Purneah, it shows no villages visited by the circle officers. It shows 4,067 visited in Mozufferpore, though the total number of villages in the district is only 4,385 The Board observe that the figures for this district are not reliable The Lieutenant Governor hopes that the same remark applies to the returns of Midnapore, which show only 68 villages visited out of 13,007, and to those of the Sonthal Pergunnahs, which show only 2 visited out of 9,872

5 It is not easy to make an accurate comparison between the numbers of persons assessed in the two years The returns contain several double entries, owing to the system under which, for convenience of account, persons transferred to a lower class are entered in the original class as assessed and exempted, and in the lower as assessed The return for 1878 79 does not show the net figures separately The gross figures are 840,507 in 1878 79 against 740,132 in 1879 80 The difference (100,075) represents the exemptions of 1878 79, the corrections for deaths, fulures and the like, and the new assessments of 1879 80 The net figures for 1879 80 are 718,306, or, after deduction of assesseees of the sixth class exempted during the year, 138,620 Before the sixth class was exempted the assessments were as 1 to 84 of the census population of the province, after the exemption they were as 1 to 435 The statement shows the most striking differences in the proportion of persons assessed in the different districts It can be easily understood that the proportion of assesseees would be lower in districts of which the inhabitants are chiefly agriculturists than in those which contain large marts and populous villages Thus, while the provincial average is 1 in 435, the rate in Calcutta is 1 in 28 in 24 Pergunnahs 1 in 253, and in Dacca 1 in 297 But it is not clear why 1 only should be assessed in 619 in Burdwan, while 1 in 358 is found liable in Beerbhoom, or why such differences as the following should be found—Moorshedabad 1 in 403 and Nuddea 1 in 539, Julpigoree 1 in 371, Bogra 1 in 688, and Pubna 1 in 1,008, Mymensingh 1 in 309, Tipperah 1 in 603, Noakhally 1 in 895, and Chittagong 1 in 1,169, Maldah 1 in 178 and Purneah 1 in 538, Durbhunga 1 in 520 and Patna 1 in 771, Pooree 1 in 550 and Cuttack 1 in 1,069 The Board give reasons for considering that some districts have been under assessed, and these will be considered further on

6 No useful comparison can be made between the total number of objections entered in the two years, as the orders exempting the sixth class were issued in the middle of the year, when objections were pending in many cases, and when the time had not arrived for preferring them in others Under the first five classes the proportion of objections to assessments was 40 per cent and upwards in 11* districts This is a very unsatisfactory state of affairs for

In the preparation of the lists for 1878 79 villages had been left untouched, because it was believed that they probably did not contain assesseees, and not only had these lists been most carelessly prepared, but some of the same lists were published in 1879 80 without any correction for objections which had already been allowed Thus, while persons were excluded who should have been entered, others were entered who had already established their right to exemption The latter naturally lodged objections, as did the former, when they were called upon to pay after the scrutiny instituted by the new Collector, Mr MacDonnell In Balasore the large number of objections is said to have been due to the altered circumstances of the assesseees, owing to the decline of the rice trade These, however, should have been considered before the assessments were made It is to be remarked, moreover, that the percentage of objections in this district was as high as 50 in the previous year In Furreedpore and Dacca the explanation is the distress caused by the inundations when the collections were in progress This, again, is unsatisfactory, as the percentages in the previous year were unduly high (Furreedpore 60 and Dacca 40) In Mozufferpore the cause is said to have been the discovery of assesseees who had improperly escaped in the previous year In Hooghly, as in Sirun, there was carelessness in the preparation of the lists, remissions and reductions granted in the previous year being overlooked, and persons being assessed in more than one place, or charged separately on more than one business In Midnapore

the explanation is the "want of care and judgment which marked the proceedings of circle officers." The Collector should have explained why the proceedings of these officers were not properly controlled. The result of the petitions of objection shows that the people of this district were unjustifiably harassed. Out of 2,992 assessments impugned, only 904 were upheld, while 1,063 were modified and 1,025 were cancelled. The circumstances of Monghyr will be referred to below. It is satisfactory to observe that there were only 15 objections left pending against 4,979 undisposed on 30th June 1879. The number of appeals was 1,743. In 968 cases the order was upheld, and in 389 cancelled. In 186 cases exemption was granted. There were no appeals in Pooree or Singbhoom.

7 In comparing the financial operations of the two years, it is necessary to exclude the figures for the sixth class. The orders for remission came when in some districts the full demand had not been made, while in others the collections were far advanced. The figures for the first five classes stand thus—

	1878-79	1879-80
	Rs	Rs
Gross demand	35 94 323	20 52 990
Remissions	18 32 473	5 17 323
Net demand	17 61 850	15 35 667
Collections	17 19 310	15 15 591
Refunds	23 30 7	40 062
Net collections	16 95 807	14 75 529
Balance	42 540	20 076

The great difference between the figures for the gross demand in the two years was due to the carelessness with which the assessments were made, particularly in Calcutta, in 1878-79. This was remarked upon in the Resolution on last year's report. The increase in the gross demand of 1879-80 over the net demand of 1878-79 is due partly to new or enhanced assessments, and partly to imperfect revision of the lists before publication, but chiefly to the system of double entry under which original and revised assessments both appear as a demand, the former being also shown as a remission.

The remissions appear much heavier than they really were, owing to the same system of account. They are shown at Rs 5,17,323, but the net remissions were not more than 3½ lakhs. They were very high in Monghyr, Sarun, Midnapore, and Hooghly, where the collections were only 48, 56, 61 and 67 per cent respectively of the assessments. In Monghyr the reason was the over-assessment of the previous year,—a subject which has already been treated of in a special report. During the past year a thorough assessment was only carried out in the Begoocheri subdivision, the assessments in the Jamui and head quarters subdivisions being based on the lists for the previous year. The causes of the remissions in the Sarun, Hooghly, and Midnapore districts have already been detailed in the remarks on the number of objection petitions filed.

8 The collections amounted to 95.6 per cent of the net demand, and the balance was only Rs 20,076 against Rs 42,540 at the close of the previous period. The decrease in the net demand, and consequently in the collections, is not altogether satisfactorily explained. The Board attribute it to the fact that, while strenuous efforts were made by the assesses to obtain reduction of the tax, or complete exemption, it was difficult for the officers of Government "to discover higher or new assessable income, on the ground of under assessment or new trade, especially with an assessing establishment reduced in strength and numbers to an extent inconsistent with active efficiency." The Lieutenant Governor cannot agree that the establishment allowed to the local officers with which to work upon the experience already gained by the administration of the tax for a year was insufficient to enable them to see that persons liable to assessment did not escape. The fact that in some districts careful enquiries were made, and numbers of persons added to the lists who had improperly escaped assessment in the previous year, without any addition to the establishment, is sufficient to show that the district officers were not short-handed. In some districts the decrease is explained by calamities of season. In others, it is said that the Deputy Collectors and Collectors who heard the objection petitions were more ready to admit claims to reduction or exemption than the circle officers, who were responsible for the assessments, had shown themselves in the previous year. This is a circumstance which need not be deplored. But there is ample ground for supposing that in more than one district the tax has not been properly administered, and many persons have altogether escaped the public burthen altogether, or have been allowed to carry an inadequate share of it. In the Dacca Division the percentage of decrease is 21—Dacca district showing 31, Furreedpore 30, and Backergunge 20. There can be no doubt that the earnings of assesses in parts of the Dacca Division were seriously affected by the great dulness of trade and general distress in the third quarter of the year. The Commissioner reports that “the Collector of Backergunge, in whose district the crops were fair and things generally better than in Dacca and Furreedpore, distinctly state that many petty traders became bankrupt in the autumn of 1879.” It is to be remarked that of Rs 20,076 left outstanding at the close of the operations, Rs 9,445 were reported from three districts of this Division. In the Patna Division the decrease was at the rate of 14 per cent. Shahabad showed a decrease of 26.9 per cent and Mozufferpore a decrease of 26.2. The Commissioner, Mr. Edgar, who was also Collector of Shahabad during the quarter past of the year, asserts that reductions were carried too far in the Buxar and head quarters sub divisions, and that “the district was decidedly too lightly assessed as a whole. The explanation from Mozufferpore that some itinerant traders who visit Hajepore during the rainy seasons managed to evade payment is not sufficient. The Board point out that in this Division, not only Shahabad but Chumparun and Gya also (Patna will be referred to later on) appear to have been under assessed. The average rate of incidence for the province is Re 1 on 40 persons. In Mozufferpore it is Re 1 on 41. In Shahabad, however it is only Re 1 on 64, in Chumparun Re 1 on 68, and in Gya Re 1 on 74. This test is obviously one which cannot be accepted absolutely. The general character of each district must be taken into consideration. Still looking to all the circumstances, the Lieutenant Governor thinks that it is plain that either Mozufferpore was over assessed, or the other districts were somewhat under assessed. The Collector of Mozufferpore, however, reports that, though he has visited every part of the district, he has heard no complaints against the working of the Act. In the Presidency Division the rate of incidence is Re 1 on every 3 persons in 24 Pergunahs, Re 1 on 44 in Moorshedabad, Re 1 on 58 in Jessore and Re 1 on 60 in Nudda. The Board and the Commissioner consider that both Jessore and Nudda are under assessed. It is certainly difficult to believe that their circumstances justify the differences pointed out above, or that Nudda has only 2 traders earning Rs 25,000, and only 4 earning Rs 10,000, and Jessore none earning Rs 25,000, and only 3 earning Rs 10,000, while, on the one side, Moorshedabad shows 6 of the former class and 13 of the latter, and, on the other side, Backergunge shows 7 of the former and 15 of the latter. In Pooree the rate is Re 1 on every 16 persons, in Balasore Re 1 on every 66, and in Cuttack Re 1 on every 95. Yet Balasore showed a decrease in the collections of 17 per cent, and Cuttack a decrease of 18 per cent. The Lieutenant Governor cannot help agreeing with the Board and the Commissioner that these figures are only to be explained on the theory of under assessment in these two districts. In the Board's report for 1878-79, attention was drawn to the apparent under assessment of Bogra, Chittagong, Noakhally, Patna, and Manbhoon. All these districts now show an increase. In Bogra the assessment has been raised under the five classes from Rs 1,250 to Rs 24,233 by the Officiating Collector, Mr. Cooke, the increase falling chiefly in the first four. The assessment now stands thus, compared with the original assessment made in 1878-79 by Mr. Wycliffe—

	1878-79	1880-81
	Rs	Rs
Class I { Grade 1		8
2		21
„ II	8	41
„ III	18	32
„ IV	33	213

The Commissioner reports that he made personal enquiries and heard appeals on the spot, and that he is satisfied that the new assessment is correct.

He found no cause for interference in any case. It is quite incredible that Mr. Wye's assessment could really represent the circumstances of the district, and the Lieutenant Governor is constrained to say that the mistaken leniency, which has now resulted in much natural discontent, was most reprehensible. In Chittagong the assessment under the first five classes has been raised from Rs 7,700 to Rs 10,198, and in Noakhally from Rs 7,160 to Rs 7,970. The Board point out that, while in Dacca and Mymensingh the incidence of the tax is one rupee on every 37 persons, and in Tipperah, which, in the opinion of the Commissioner, has been under-assessed, 1 on 67, in Chittagong it is only 1 on 110, and in Noakhally 1 on 100. The revision of the assessment lists in Patna has not been attended with the results which might have been anticipated. Mr. Metcalfe, the Collector, considers that the city assessments were bad, that the grain dealers were too leniently dealt with on appeal, and that most of the books produced contained false accounts. At the same time, both he and Mr. Quinn, the Officiating Collector, report that the outturn of the tax cannot be in keeping with the apparent wealth of the town, as many of the leading merchants have their principal places of business in Calcutta or elsewhere, and are consequently not liable to assessment in Patna. Nevertheless it is very remarkable that the incidence of the tax should be only 1 anna 9 pies per head in Patna City, against an average of 2 annas 8 pies per head in the other Bengal municipalities (exclusive of Calcutta). The collections of the whole district are less than half those of Hooghly, Mymensingh, Mozufferpore and Durbhunga, and much less than half those of Midnapore, Bhagulpore and Purneah. They are considerably less than those of Beerbhoom, Tipperah, Gya, Shuhabad and Maldah, and only just exceed those of Chumpuun, Bogra and the Sonthal Pergunna's. The incidence of the tax in the Patna district, outside the city, is only $1\frac{1}{2}$ pies, against a general average of $1\frac{1}{2}$ pies for the whole division. The Lieutenant Governor entirely agrees with the Board in holding that the assessment of the district is still unsatisfactory.

9 The collection in Calcutta amounted to Rs 3,00,692, out of a net demand of Rs 3,31,908, while it was found necessary to strike off Rs 31,245 as irrecoverable. The Board remark that the knowledge of the extremely inefficient manner in which the first assessment of the tax was effected in 1878-79 should have led the Chairman to make a thorough revision of the assessment in 1879-80. This was not done, and, the Board remark, "the result has been that the collections failed to reach two thirds of the amount produced by the License tax Act in 1867-68, when the minimum was Rs 20 and the rate one and a half per cent." There can be no doubt that experience has shown the hopelessness of endeavouring to work such an Act as this with efficiency through municipal agency in Calcutta. The Lieutenant Governor is not prepared to say that as much judgment and energy were displayed by the Chairman as might have been desired. Still the ordinary duties of the Chairman of the Corporation and Commissioner of Police are very arduous, and if, in addition, he is required to undertake the task of conducting an important measure of State taxation, some department of his work must suffer. In this instance it would appear that further mischief was done by dishonest subordinates. Under the new Act the proceedings will be conducted by the Collector of Calcutta.

10 The Board remark that it will not be possible to form a correct estimate of the result of the employment of municipal agency in the towns in the interior until the returns of the current year, in which Government agency will be alone employed, can be compared with those of the past year. In some municipalities, however, especially in Seraijunge, Mozufferpore, Sectamurhec, Bilasore, and Chyebassa, the assessments appear to have been carefully made. In others, either the assessments were extremely faulty or undue leniency was shown in admitting objections. Thus in Howrah the remissions amount to Rs 20,217, against collections Rs 16,700. In Seraijunge the remissions were Rs 4,497, the collections Rs 5,817. In Chupra and Revilgunge the remissions amounted to Rs 9,156 and Rs 7,850 respectively, against collections of Rs 9,700 and Rs 5,815. In Revilgunge the balance outstanding was Rs 2,340, so that the collections amount to little more than one third of the sum assessed. The incidence per head varied from 14 annas

8 pies in Naraingunge (where European firms contributed largely) and 6 annas 10 pies in Mozufferpore and Sectamuihee (where the Collector either made or supervised the assessments) to 9 pies in Bansberia and Pubna, 6 pies in Ichak, and 3 pies in Behar (in the Patna district). Thus the rate in the Behar Municipality was lower than the general rate of the province,—towns and rural tracts included. The Board believe that municipal agency, if judiciously controlled, may be of considerable use, but that, while in making assessments, the local knowledge of the Commissioners may be advantageously consulted, it is not safe to entrust to them the decision of objections.

11 The cost of administering the Act was 7.5 per cent of the gross collections against 12.1 in 1878-79. The lowest divisional average was in Burdwan (5.5), the highest in Chittagong (13.1). The charges were highest in the districts of Rajshahiye (20.8), Jessore (15.7), and Cuttack (15.5), and lowest in Beerbhoom (2.4), Purneah (3.8), and Bogra (4.3). In Rajshahiye the cost was raised by a thorough revision of the assessments in parts of the district. The high rate of charge in Jessore is very unsatisfactory. It cost Rs. 7,362 to collect Rs. 44,720 in this district, while in Moorshedabad, a district of the same division, it cost only Rs. 2,498 (5.1 per cent) to collect Rs. 45,901. Cuttack similarly compares most unfavourably with the neighbouring district of Pooree. The figures are these—

	Establishment &	Revenue & Statutory	Contingent	Total	Collections	Percentage of collection
	R	Rs	Rs	Rs	R
Cuttack	314	88	487	401	31,887	13.5
Pooree	101	4	07	14	22,801	6.8

In Beerbhoom the low rate is explained by the increased receipts, owing to changes of jurisdiction, without any proportionate increase of expense. In Bogra the work of revising the assessment was conducted chiefly by Mr. Cooke, the Collector, in person, without any extra cost. This is very creditable to Mr. Cooke, and shows the error of imagining that energetic district officers cannot administer the tax without large temporary establishments.

12 The reports of the local officers show that the exemption of the lowest class of incomes has done much to remove the unpopularity of the tax. A further improvement must have been effected by the exemption of incomes between Rs. 250 and Rs. 500 under the new Act. Practically, such discontent as now exists is confined to the sufferers from individual instances of carelessness or misconduct on the part of the assessing or collecting staff, and to districts where the minds of the people have been disturbed by fluctuations in the policy pursued by the officer in charge of the administration. Instances of misconduct appear to have been comparatively rare during the past year. What is really required now is that the people shall not be harassed or excited by constant change. It is not to be expected that the effects of previous over-assessment should be instantly effaced, or that, in a district which has been grossly under-assessed, those liable to the tax should view with complacency a large increase suddenly made in the demands upon them. One extreme is almost as mischievous as the other. A man who is wrongly assessed at Rs. 100, but who ultimately escapes with a payment of Rs. 10, and many incidental expenses, is irritated and alarmed, but the man who, having wrongly been called upon to pay only Rs. 2 in one year, is properly required to pay Rs. 100 in the next, will be even more dissatisfied and disturbed. Wholesale revision of district assessments, though absolutely necessary, as in Monghyr and Bogra, are, the Lieutenant Governor believes, the most fruitful cause of the unpopularity of such an impost as this. The present Collector of Bogra justly remarks that the people of Bengal, "whatever they pay in the way of taxes or other dues, like, above all things, that the demand against them should be fixed in its nature." The Commissioner of Patna believes that the existence of the tax is scarcely known to the mass of the people, and that the chowkidari and municipal taxes are "ten times more disliked." There is a consensus of opinion among the Commissioners that little complaint is made against the principle of the tax, and now that its incidence has been confined to so small a section of the population, the Lieutenant Governor believes that, with steady and vigilant administration, such discontent as has accompanied it will disappear.

13 The names of the Commissioners and Collectors selected for favourable mention have been noted. The Lieutenant Governor desires to thank the Board for their administration of the tax during the year.

LIBERALITY OF MAHARANI RAJROOP KOER OF TIKAREE

No 124 dated Calcutta, the 24th November 1880

From—COLMAN MACAULAY Esq, Offg Secretary to the Government of Bengal
Medical and Municipal Department

To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No 471J, dated the 29th ultimo, and in reply to say that the Lieutenant Governor accepts the offer made by Maharani Rajroop Koer to maintain the dispensary at Tikaree, in the district of Gya, independently of Government aid, and sanctions the proposal to place the institution in Class I of the Dispensary Rules. Sir Ashley Eden desires that his thanks may be conveyed to the Maharani for the liberality she has displayed.

2 I am to request that you will ask the Maharani to be good enough to nominate an Assistant Surgeon for appointment to the dispensary. The Assistant Surgeon should be a duly qualified practitioner, and his certificates must be approved by the Surgeon General.

3 This correspondence will be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

No 471J dated Bankipore the 29th October 1880

From—J WARE EDGAR Esq (SI) Officiating Commissioner of the Patna Division
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal Medical and Municipal Dept

With reference to paragraph 3 of Government order No 313 of the 21st August last I have the honor to report that Maharani Rajroop Koer of Tikaree has generously offered to make the Tikaree Dispensary independent of Government aid and that it should therefore be placed in Class I instead of Class III as proposed before.

2 The Maharani has already paid a sum of Rs 27 000 for the support of the dispensary and she proposes to make a second donation of an equal amount payable in three yearly instalments. In order to meet the current expenses of the Dispensary she promises to pay the sum of Rs 1 080 less the interest of Rs 5 000 the amount of the first instalment during the first year and so on till all the instalments are made.

The arrangement proposed by the Maharani for the future support of the Dispensary is satisfactory and does great credit to her liberality and benevolence.

4 The buildings are now ready for occupation and I hope that there may be no delay in the appointment of an Assistant Surgeon to take charge of the dispensary.

NOTE

Barometric Pressure—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18 for stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table 'Prof. Papers on Indian Engineering, No CXIII'. The temperatures at the sea level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky a cloudless sky being indicated by 0 and one completely overcast by 1.0.

The above, being all comparable afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions which last may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

Showing a decrease in total carriage and goods traffic. During the month there was a slight increase in passenger traffic. The most noticeable feature of the month is the heavy fall in the carriage and goods traffic. This is due to the fact that the goods traffic has been very light since the beginning of the month. The carriage traffic has also been very light, and the total traffic has been very low. The decrease in earnings is due to the fact that the carriage and goods traffic has been very light, and the total traffic has been very low. The decrease in earnings is due to the fact that the carriage and goods traffic has been very light, and the total traffic has been very low.

Increases are as follows in the following staples—
Cattle
Cattle
Government
Killed
Increase with exception of wheat
Increase
Salt
Sugar

Will decrease appear in—Cattle
Cattle
Wheat
Railway materials foreign

Coal down
The demand in Calcutta for country coal was unusually brisk during the month. Ghee and oil
This increase is chiefly due to the fact that the North West India Railway has been very busy. The increase in earnings is due to the fact that the carriage and goods traffic has been very light, and the total traffic has been very low. The decrease in earnings is due to the fact that the carriage and goods traffic has been very light, and the total traffic has been very low.

Report on the Fluctuations in Traffic on the Northern Bengal State Railway for the month of October 1880

GENERAL REMARKS

In six out of the twelve lines under which the total traffic of the line is shown there has been a serious falling off this month. The total in the low with light carried during the corresponding month of 1879 stands at 14 197 maunds.

Increases

The total weight carried under this head during the month under review stands at 1 397 maunds the result being as shown above 7 6 maunds in excess of last October's traffic.

The cold season's despatches for the convalescent depot at Dupleing have commenced.

Food grain

The demand for shipment which still continues has had the effect of slightly increasing the selling price at the port and this has given a stimulus to the despatches.

Gumy lugs

At this time last year the raw material (jute) was in such brisk demand at such unusually high rates that it had the effect of almost stopping for a time the local industry.

This season the case is different and the result will no doubt be a considerable increase in gumy bags over last year's traffic.

Salt

In October 1879 11 700 tons were carried against 17 500 tons in the corresponding month.

The traffic which is slowly but steadily affected by water communication when open will as the season advances rapidly improve.

Tobacco

The price at the port for this staple keeps steady at about Rs 6 8 per maund for Rungtore and a brisk business is being done in it.

On reference to previous reports it will be seen that the despatches over the line have varied very little for some months past.

All other goods

This increase although not large shows that the miscellaneous traffic carried on under this head is steadily improving.

Decreases

Ginger

Until demand springs up for this article no improvement in the traffic can be looked for.

This Article only applies to cases where ships are meeting end on or nearly end on in such a manner as to involve risk of collision and does not apply to two ships which must, if both keep on their respective courses pass clear of each other

The only cases to which it does apply are when each of the two ships is end on or nearly end on to the other in other words to cases in which by day each ship sees the masts of the other in a line or nearly in a line with her own and by night to cases in which each ship is in such a position as to see both the side lights of the other

It does not apply by day to cases in which a ship sees another ahead crossing her own course or by night to cases where the red light of one ship is opposed to the red light of the other or where the green light of one ship is opposed to the green light of the other or where a red light without a green light or a green light without a red light, is seen ahead or where both green and red lights are seen anywhere but ahead

17—The public are hereby informed that, in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Patna factory and the opium manufactured at the Ghazeeport factory for the year 1879-80 the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug picked and sent down in a pure state to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at the Patna and Ghazeeport factories and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the Office of the Board of Revenue.

18—The attention of the public is particularly drawn to the fact that of the aforesaid 1520½ chests of the opium manufactured at the Ghazeeport factory of the season 1878-79, 1729 chests consist of opium specially manufactured at a consistence of 75, and also to the fact that the ordinary opium manufactured at the Ghazeeport factory of that season is of unusually high consistence. The numbers and the distinctive marks of the 1729 chests of 75 consistence will be duly mentioned in the notifications of the sales in which they will be brought forward.

19—Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage and in no circumstances will the Board of Revenue entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight abstraction of opium or adulteration of the drug which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment.

20—It is hereby further notified that under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below the Agents in India of the French Government or persons duly appointed by them are entitled to demand that out of the quantities of opium manufactured at the Patna and Ghazepore factories declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1881 there shall be delivered to them at the average of the particular sale or sale to which the opium so applied for may belong a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale provided however that the Agent of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agent of the French Government shall not make the requisition for opium within the time above mentioned the entire quantity of about 56 400 chests of opium manufactured at the Patna and Ghazepore factories as above estimated will be brought to sale in the usual manner and if they shall make application for a quantity of opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales above mentioned but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for either by retaining the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing after the date fixed for payment or by selling such opium or any portion of it at any subsequent monthly sale in addition to the quantity which in this advertisement is approximately mentioned as the quantity to be sold at such sale or by selling such opium at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to Article 11—"With regard to the trade in opium it is agreed between the high contracting parties that at each of the periodical sales of that article there shall be reserved for the French Government and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty or by the persons duly appointed by them the number of chests so applied for provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which opium shall have been sold at every such periodical sale it being understood that if the quantity of opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore mentioned. The requisitions for opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

BENGAL CIVIL FUND

Report of the Proceedings at the Special General Meeting held at the Town Hall, at 10 30 A M, on Monday 22nd November 1880

Esq C Macaulay Esq J A Churchill Esq C W Bolton Esq H M Krish Esq and H Lee Esq

Hon ble H T Irmsp in the Chair

The Chairman read the notice convening the Meeting

Mr Cotton suggested that in proposing the resolution of which notice had been given, the opportunity should be taken on the part of the Management to explain more fully than had been done in recent circulars the history of the proposal to exempt Annuitants from subscription and that in particular some further explanation might be given to the Service of the remark contained in the Managers circular of the 24th August 1880 that the Managers have steadily recognized that the Subscribers are committed to the grant of relief to Annuitants. He was sure that a clear account of the facts now would save trouble and unnecessary correspondence hereafter.

Mr Westland moved the following resolution on the part of the Managers —

That a motion of the amendment of Article VIII of the rules adopted at the Half yearly General Meeting held on 31st January 1873 and the subscription of Annuitants to the Ordinary Branch of the Fund be held in abeyance.

He said it would probably be necessary to explain how it came about that the Managers after having proposed to the Service certain increases of benefits in January found it necessary, before the year was out to come again before the Service with proposals to keep part of their own plan in abeyance.

The question of increase of benefits had really been before the Service ever since 1873 in which year the Managers had certain resolutions before a General Meeting but these propositions were then rejected in favour of an amendment by Mr Cotton that nothing should be done till an Actuary's report on the state of the Fund was received. Various circumstances delayed that report so that it was received only in 1879 and the Managers considering the state of the Fund on this report had to choose whether they should bring their proposals for increase of benefits before the Service on such calculations as they had themselves the means of making or whether they should make a further reference to the Actuary. The possibility of further indefinite delay in the event of the latter course being adopted and what the Managers believed to be a manifest desire on the part of the Service that a matter so long under discussion should be pressed to a settlement and that benefits so long in prospect should no longer be withheld determined the Managers to make their proposals at once on the understanding that the Actuary should be immediately consulted and the votes of the Service approved this course.

The Actuary's report was received with unexpected promptness in July and it showed that in his opinion the Managers proposals had gone a little too far. So little however that it was really open to doubt whether all things considered, it was necessary for the Managers to retrace their steps. The Managers however thought that viewing the extreme importance of the interests committed to their care they ought not to oppose their own confidence in the position of the Fund to the professional advice of their Actuary and resolved at once to submit to the Service such modification as it appeared necessary to make in their original proposals.

In determining in what particular part of the January proposals a modification might best be made they considered that the positive benefits added to the list were far too valuable possessions to be given up if it could possibly be avoided and thought that it would in every way involve less of hardship if they were to keep in abeyance for a short time (he hoped it would be a short time only) part of the reduction they had proposed in Annuitant subscriptions. They were strengthened in this opinion by observing that this reduction of subscription was the only one of their proposals which when submitted to the vote of the Service met with any degree of opposition, all the rest having been almost unanimously accepted.

Mr Cotton had made enquiry as to how far the Managers considered themselves pledged by earlier proceedings to this remission of subscription. In 1868, when the first possibility of increase of benefits occurred the principal proposition (founded upon the practice in the other Presidencies, where Annuitants do not subscribe at the same rates as active members) was to reduce their subscriptions by nine tenths the intention to retain one tenth being founded on a reason which was really not valid. The Actuary then reported that the Fund could not afford to reduce more than one half and this was accordingly done. The whole tone of the proceedings however implied that the rest of the then intended reduction would be again brought forward when it was considered that the Fund admitted of it. Though the Managers could not admit this to be a pledge binding upon them it was certainly sufficient reason why this particular form of benefit should form part of the next considerable scheme for additional benefits laid by the Managers before the Service and there was no doubt that a good deal might be said for it on its merits and even regarding the matter as a pledge it might be pointed out that the Annuitants had received a very fair equivalent for the pledge of reduction to one tenth in the immediate reduction to one quarter and the practical promise of an early total abolition.

Mr Macaulay said that the statement in the circular of 24th August that the Subscribers are committed to the grant of relief to Annuitants was quite accurate. The Managers in presenting the results of the quinquennial valuation for the period ending 1st March 1868 made certain proposals for the utilization of the surplus then found in the Fund. One of them was that all Annuitants be permitted to compound for their future payments of subscription at one tenth of present rates. In reference to this proposal the Managers said the sum so obtained will be merely nominal and the boon amounts virtually to relieving Annuitants from all subscriptions to the Fund. It is thought prudent to retain a rate of composition however small in order to ensure correct returns to the Fund free of family change. A Special General Meeting approved this proposal among others.

As to the extent to which the ascertained surplus may under the advice of the Actuary be held to warrant. The Subscribers at large confirmed the proceeding of the Special General Meeting on this particular point by a majority of 92 votes to 11. In his report the Actuary Mr Brown, said:

I would venture to suggest that looking at all the liabilities present and future the proposition to allow retired members to compound for one half the value of their subscriptions ordinary and additional would be as far as it is prudent to go on the present occasion. Accordingly the Managers in their report presented at the Half yearly General Meeting of 27th July 1870 recommended that for the present the extension of benefits under this head be confined to a reduction by one half of the rates of subscription or composition by retired members. Nothing therefore could be clearer than that the measure under which Annuitants should be virtually exempted from all subscriptions was only postponed and not abandoned. Mr Westland had pointed out that the intention to retain even a composition of one tenth was founded on a reason which was really not valid.

Mr Cotton asked some questions regarding the actual amount of subscription for which Annuitants would be temporarily liable under the Managers proposal. These were answered by Messrs Westland and Macaulay.

Mr Macaulay then read the following letter from Mr R. P. Harrison, a retired Subscriber —

Dated London the 2nd October 1880

From—R. P. HARRISON Esq

To—The Managers Penial Civil Fund Calcutta

In a letter dated 3rd September last from the National Bank of India I was informed that the Manager of their Calcutta Branch had upon application from you, the refund to the Fund the sum of Rs 2712 5 being one half of the amount refunded to me on account of subscriptions paid on my behalf subsequent to 1st April 1878. I was at the same time referred to a circular issued from the Fund Office which was not however forwarded to me and a copy of which I only obtained yesterday from Messrs Coutts and Co the Agents to the Fund in London.

If the Manager of the National Bank in Calcutta had made a previous reference to me I should have declined to return any portion of the sum refunded in accordance with a decision passed at a General Meeting of Subscribers and confirmed by the votes of the Subscribers at large under Article XVII of the rules.

The resolution of the General Meeting duly confirmed by the Subscribers which the Managers now seek to set aside falls within the provisions of Article XVII and is not subject to revision under Article XVIII and has therefore become final and conclusive. My accumulated subscriptions to the Fund amount to upwards of one lakh and eighty thousand rupees and I am not disposed to contribute further unnecessarily.

I have now to request that the amount paid for me by the National Bank of India on account of refund and subscription which it appears to me has been demanded improperly and without any sufficient authority may be returned.

I have in conclusion to ask you to be good enough to place this letter before the Special General Meeting of Subscribers which you have convened on 22nd November next

Mr Westland's motion was seconded by the Hon ble W Fraser McDonell, & c, and was carried

Mr Cotton then said that, though he supported the Managers in regard to the resolution which had just been passed, he was of opinion that the facts stated in Mr R P Harrison's letter, which he understood were correct disclosed an irregularity of procedure on the part of the Management which ought not to be passed over in silence. The exemption of Annuitants from subscription was a measure which had become final and conclusive under Article XVII of the rules, and it was not within the competence of the Managers to anticipate any change of policy or in any way modify a resolution formally passed at a previous meeting until express authority had been conferred on them to do so by the Subscribers at a General Meeting convened under Article XVII of the rules for the purpose

Mr Westland said that he objected to individual expressions of opinion which involved a censure on the Managers being placed before the Meeting without giving the Managers an opportunity of taking a vote on their conduct. He therefore requested that Mr Cotton would express his opinion in a formal resolution

Mr Cotton said that it was far from his intention to propose a resolution which might have the appearance of a form of vote of censure on the Management and for his own part he would have been content if his individual opinion on the action of the Managers had been recorded as part of the proceedings of the Meeting. But as he was pressed on behalf of the Management to propose a formal resolution he would do so and he did so with less hesitation because this was not the only instance in which the Managers in his opinion, had recently shown a tendency to exceed the powers vested in them under the Fund rules

Mr Westland asked that any such case might be cited

Mr Cotton replied that on an early opportunity he would draw prominent attention to the case to which he referred. He begged now to propose the following resolution --

That the Managers have exceeded their authority in taking upon themselves to call upon Annuitants to repay any subscriptions in the face of a resolution passed by the Service exempting Annuitants from all subscriptions and which has become final and conclusive under Article XVII of the rules and that they should have awaited the sanction of the present Meeting

The Chairman seconded the resolution. He remarked that it was not quite correct to state that the Managers had acted on the Actuary's recommendation. The Actuary had reported that the present state of our funds would not safely permit the adoption of all the proposed benefits to subscribers. He therefore suggested that we should abandon one of two of these benefits which we specified but he added his own opinion which of these two we should retain. The Managers have not adopted that opinion but have proposed to postpone the reduction of annuitants' subscriptions. The Managers exceeded their authority in anticipating the result of the present meeting as pointed out by Mr Cotton. Their circular to annuitants and the agents of annuitants was one which in his (the Chairman's) opinion did not leave it open to those persons whether they should or should not comply with the demand made

Mr Macaulay pointed out that in their circular of 13th October 1879 which was before the Subscribers when the alterations in the rules were approved the Managers had recommended the immediate extension of the benefits "subject to discontinuance if the Actuary should report that the Fund cannot afford them." The Actuary had so reported. It was therefore open to the Managers to suspend all the benefits. They only suspended a part of one however and they immediately called a Special General Meeting to obtain the sanction of the Subscribers to their action

Mr Westland, after having asked the Secretary to repeat the passage from the circular of 13th October 1879 in which the Managers informed the Service of their intention to propose an immediate extension of benefits, 'subject to discontinuance if the Actuary should report that the Fund cannot afford them' said that the Managers when the Actuary's report was received by them in July had two courses open to them. They might either continue to carry out the new propositions until they could be regularly set aside or they might stop proceedings in anticipation and call a General Meeting to reconsider the position. The Managers had practically in the words quoted undertaken to withhold the full operation of the new rules and to submit for early reconsideration the questions that arose in the Actuary's report. They had lost no time in calling a General Meeting and he submitted that, whatever difference of opinion there might be as to the propriety of the choice that the

CORRESPONDENCE REGARDING AN INSECT THAT HAS LATELY BEEN INJURING THE RICE CROP IN THE KHURRUCKPORA
THANA OF THE DISTRICT OF MONGHYR

No 1169J dated Monghyr the 23rd October 1880

Memo by—W H D'OLY, Esq Magistrate of Monghyr

Copy forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal General Department The insect alluded to has been sent this day by dāk

No 1168J dated Monghyr, the 2nd October 1880

From—W H D O'LEARY Esq Magistrate of Monaghan

To—The Commissioner of the Bhigulpore Division

I HAVE the honor to inform you that the police have sent me some specimens of a new species of insect which has been at a time, and seriously injuring the dhan in the Khurrucl pore thana. The people of the neighbourhood say they never saw such insects before. I have asked the District Superintendent of Police to enquire whether such an insect has been found elsewhere.

2 I have forwarded the specimens of this species of insect to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal together with a copy of this letter

No 234 dated Calcutta the 13th November 1850

From—BABOO RAJENDRA NATH MITRA Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal Financial Department

To—J Wood MAHON Esq Deputy Superintendent Indian Museum

I AM directed to forward herewith copy of a letter from the Magistrate of Monghyr, No 1169J, dated 23rd ultimo together with specimens of the insect therein referred to, and to request that the Lieutenant Governor may be favoured with your opinion regarding the insect

No 36 dated Calcutta, the 25th November 1880

From—J Wood MA on Esq Deputy Superintendent Indian Museum

To—The Asst Secretary to the Government of Bengal Financial Department

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter No 254, dated 13th, but only received by me on the 18th November forwarding a copy of a letter from the Magistrate of Monghyr to the Commissioner of Circuit, Bhagulpore, and a small bottle containing the dried, shrivelled, and mutilated remains of some specimens of an insect that had been attacking and seriously injuring the dhan in the Khairuckpore thana and asking for my opinion thereon

2 In reply I beg to inform you that I have carefully examined these specimens and I find that they consist of pupa pupal skins and an adult female of a species of Cecidomyia a genus of dipterous insects which includes amongst its members at least three species destructive to cereals—the famous ‘Hessian fly’ (Cecidomyia destructor) whose ravages were at one time so extensive that the cultivation of wheat had to be abandoned in many parts of the United States where it had established itself and the only less formidable ‘wheat flies’ (Cecidomyia tritici et aurantiaca), only too well known on account of their depredations both in America and in Europe

3 The occurrence in India of an insect pest belonging to the genus Cecidomyia has so far as I have hitherto been able to discover, never been placed on record indeed, only a single species belonging to the family Cecidomyiidae or gall flies has been described from India, and only two or three, the Indian one included, from all Asia

4 The adult or perfect winged insects are only indirectly injurious to vegetation by depositing thereon their eggs from these grubs are hatched in due course which suck the nutritive juices from the plants and thereby cause the mortification of the fruit In the case of the ‘Hessian fly’ the eggs are deposited upon the tender leaves of the young wheat plant, and the grubs, when hatched pass down the culms or stalks as these get mature and unfit for food eventually taking up a position between them and the vagina (the expanded and sheathing leaf stalks) of the leaves and there changing to pupæ and perfect insects In the two species of ‘wheat fly, the eggs are laid in or upon the flowers of the wheat, in which the grubs are hatched and remain until their feeding days over they are ready to assume the quiescent pupal state when they quit the plants and pass into the earth there to undergo their metamorphosis In the newly discovered India pest on the contrary not eggs but living grubs all ready for their destructive work are thrown in force into (probably) the developing panicle or ‘ear’ of the rice plant Cecidomyia oryzae or the ‘Rice fly’ as I propose provisionally to call the species, being in fact, viviparous instead of oviparous as in all the other known species, the agramic reproduction of Miasmor in the larval state forming only an apparent exception to this

5 Affecting as it does the very staff of life of the people Cecidomyia oryzae may prove a most formidable pest and a most careful watch should be set upon its movements

6 I beg leave to suggest that the district officers be directed to enquire, while the circumstances are all fresh in the memories of the people, and while the injured dhan is still uncut what part of the rice plant is affected, what particular variety of the rice plant has suffered from the attacks of the pest, and what varieties if any, seem to have enjoyed an immunity from attack

7 In conclusion I may say that I have already prepared some drawings, and that I shall hereafter submit as full and detailed an account of the insect as it is possible to draw up from the exceedingly meagre and ill preserved material that has been placed at my disposal, together with such remarks as to remedial measures, &c, as the study of the rather voluminous literature of Cecidomyian pests may suggest In the meantime this brief statement of the nature of the new enemy may, I hope, prove acceptable to the Lieutenant Governor

From—COLMAN MACAULAY Esq, Off^y Secretary to the Government of Bengal Financial Department,

To—The Deputy Superintendent, Indian Museum, Calcutta

IN acknowledging the receipt of your letter No 36, dated the 25th instant, I am directed to convey the thanks of the Lieutenant Governor for your interesting report on the insect that has lately been injuring the rice crop in the Khurruckpore thana of the district of Monghyr

2 The Lieutenant Governor will await the further detailed report on the subject promised by you. Meanwhile the Commissioner of Bhagalpore has been asked to institute the enquiries indicated in the penultimate paragraph of your letter, and to report the result to Government on an early date. The other Commissioners of Divisions have also been asked to state if anything has been heard of the pest in any of the districts under their charge

The mean pressure temperature &c are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on Regnault's modification of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of previous (at the Dul Suet Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and other things being equal reads therefore 0.3 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 2.55 lower, and finally the thermometer which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards is found to read 0.6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

CANAL REVENUE REPORTS FOR THE YEAR 1879 80

No 4984 I A

Extract from the Proceedings of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, Irrigation Branch under date the 13th December 1880

READ—

The Canal Revenue Reports for the year 1879 80 and note by the Chief Engineer on the same

The capital outlay on irrigation works during the year under review was Rs 18,48,281, and the total outlay under this head amounted to Rs 51,61,194, of which Rs 4,98,01,887 have been expended on productive works the balance, Rs 13,59,307, is the expenditure on works other than productive but for which capital and revenue accounts are kept, divided into ' Ordinary ' charged to Imperial funds Rs 8,31,624, and ' Ordinary ' charged to Provincial funds, Rs 5,27,683

The amount of interest for 1879 80 payable by the Government of Bengal to the Imperial treasury is Rs 22,04,767

The receipts of the year amounted to Rs 10,94,112, against Rs 8,51,133 in 1878 79 and Rs 4,94,772 in 1877 78

The following statement shows the receipts from all sources for each project, as compared with those of the two previous years —

Total	11,667	9,255	9,692
GRAND TOTAL	10,94,112	8,51,133	4,94,772

The above figures show a very satisfactory increase in the revenue the outstanding balances on account of water rates are, however, the Lieutenant Governor observes, still very heavy, as follow —

	Rs
Orissa	58,328
Midnapore	48,981
Sone	3,18,378
Total	1,20,787

In Orissa and Midnapore the demands fall due early in February, but little time is therefore available for the collection of the revenue before the close of the year. On the Sone canals the arrears are due to large uncollected balances of former years. On this subject the Chief Engineer, in paragraph 84 of his note, writes — "The Commissioner of Patna states that there is no real unwillingness on the part of the people to pay for the water which they have taken, 95½ per cent of the current demand having been realized. He attributes the failure in collecting the balances to errors in distribution of water, measurements, and assessments during the first years the canals were opened. These faults have to a great extent, he says, been remedied, but difficulty is still experienced in collecting the arrears due on account of those years. A change in the system of collections has been made, from which good results are hoped for. The Lieutenant Governor trusts that every effort will be made by the Collectors to realize the large outstanding arrears on the Sone canals.

The working expenses amounted to Rs 9 20 498 against Rs 8 05,610 in 1878-79 and Rs 7 02 857 in 1877-78. The increase is entirely on the Orissa works, owing chiefly to extensive repairs to the Mahanuddy and Naraj weirs, rendered necessary by the injury done during the excessive floods of August 1879. Both in Midnapore and on the Sone canals the cost of maintenance was less than in the previous year.

The areas assessed for water rates, compared with those of previous years, are as follow —

		1877-78	1878-79	1879-80
		Acres	Acres	Acres
Orissa	{ Khurif	95 088	10 500	106 186

	Total	111 900	197 018	130 506
GRAND TOTAL		300 104	366 399	339 672

In Orissa the decrease is more apparent than real. "The figures in the current year," as remarked by the Chief Engineer, "represent the area actually leased, while those for 1878-79 included many acres of unleased land on which water rates could not be realized. There has been in fact a real advance, and the khurif irrigation has been placed on a better footing. On this subject the Commissioner says — 'It is a positive source of satisfaction to find that most of the area assessed in 1878-79 as having been irrigated surreptitiously, is included in the acreage under lease shown against the year under review — a result which clearly indicates that the value of canal water as one of the auxiliaries of production, is really appreciated.' The increase in the leased area is stated by the Collector to have been 10 000 acres.

The advance of irrigation in Midnapore and its effect on the country, is so important that no apology is needed for quoting largely from the Chief Engineer's note. In paragraph 30 he says — 'The great increase in the irrigated area must no doubt be ascribed chiefly to the deficient rainfall of the year, which amounted to only 35.11 inches at Midnapore, and 36.02 inches at Panchkora, against an average of the last ten years of 53.18 and 52.64 respectively. In the first half of the khurif season the rainfall was particularly scant. All the demands for canal water were satisfactorily met, and the canal is thoroughly popular. On this point the Deputy Revenue Superintendent states, in paragraph 4 of his report, — 'People living outside the irrigable area now envy the position of those who reside within it, and instances of emigration, though still few in number, from the unirrigable to the irrigable area, purely on account of the benefits to be derived from the canal may be cited. It is now an undisputed fact that while the Government irrigators are paying off their debts, and rapidly extricating themselves from the mahajans' clutches, the cultivators who are beyond reach of the Government canal are getting more and more hopelessly involved in debt, both in paddy and hard cash' Again, in paragraph 15,—“I should, besides in this place, notice an unmistakable proof of their appreciation of the canal by the land holding class of Midnapore during the last mentioned year Pergunnahs Dhakiabazar and Bhunjbhoom belonging to the Midnapore zemindary, the former is within reach of the Government canal while the latter is not Both these pergunnahs were offered to be let out in putnee during the year 1879 80, but while Dhakiabazar was greedily sought after by hundreds of people, and sold by the zemindar on the most advantageous terms very few were willing to take a putnee in Bhunjbhoom simply because canal irrigation was not there available I may further add that within the irrigable area the sale of jotedaree right was hitherto unknown, but such sales are now frequent, and they fetch very fair prices to the vendors The area of uncultivated land also within the irrigable area is being gradually diminished' The Collector of Midnapore remarks on this subject —‘The canal is in high favour with the people of the irrigated area from Midnapore to Panchloora and applications for extension of some of the existing channels, and for the construction of new ones are frequently received in my office’ The Commissioner also reports that —‘The present state and prospects of irrigation in Midnapore could not well be better, inasmuch as the greater part of the irrigable area has been leased It is essential, if this satisfactory state of affairs is to be maintained, that the canal be kept in thorough repair and the distributaries extended It was with this object in view, and to enable us to meet our engagements as regards water supply that the canal was widened this year’

The great advantages of irrigation in a year of scant rainfall such as that under review are further shown by the experiments on the comparative yield of the irrigated and unirrigated rice crop the difference in favour of irrigation being represented by no less than 20 maunds of paddy per acre

The rainfall in Behar was excessive as shown in the 71th and 75th paragraph of the Chief Engineer's note and fully accounts for the great falling off in the areas irrigated under both khurif and rabi It is satisfactory to observe that the spread of sugarcane cultivation noted in last year's report, still continues, the area having increased from 19 624 to 27 158 acres On this subject the Commissioner of Patna remarks — In illustration of the prosperity of the agricultural classes in Shahabad, I would note that the cane cultivators in the district have with a view to introduce an improved method for the manufacture of molasses bought 9 000 of the Behar mills patented by Messrs Thomson, Mylne & Co at an outlay of Rs 6 50 000 This is the result of the impetus which the canal irrigation has given to the cultivation of sugarcane Before the opening of the canals the area under cane cultivation was

* A to—27 158 acres were actually only 1 804 acres, whereas it has now increased to 22 000* acres or nearly 12 times the area previously cultivated This increased cultivation of sugarcane has added considerably to the agricultural wealth of the district the increase of profit derived from this source being estimated at no less than Rs 1 473 000 per annum

The total revenue derived from navigation amounts to Rs 2 85 370 against Rs 2 23,437 last year the increase is mostly caused by the earnings of the Government steam port service having for the first time been introduced into the accounts The following statement shows the tollage collections for the last eight years.—

The falling off in the tollage receipts of the Hidgelee canal is due to the closure for silt clearance. Putting aside the exceptionally large traffic on the Midnapore canal in 1877-78, caused by the demand for food grains at the time of the Madras famine, the statement shows a satisfactory and steady increase in the traffic.

The results of the irrigation operations of the year, as stated in the 102nd paragraph of the Chief Engineer's note, cannot be considered otherwise than satisfactory. "As shown in the report for the year 1878-79, the receipts from the canals in that year exceeded the working expenses by Rs 45,523. In the current year the excess is Rs 1,73,614, and had it not been that unusually high floods in Orissa caused much damage to the weirs and thus entailed heavy expenditure on repairs, there is no doubt the estimated profit, Rs 3,23,000, would have been realized. Calculating by the earnings of the canals, the surplus on the year's operations would be Rs 2,26,145, as follows—

The Lieutenant Governor recognizes the excellent work done by Mr Wylly and Mr Roberts, Deputy Revenue Superintendents of Canals in Orissa. He also fully appreciates the services of Baboo Jodonath Mookerjee, Deputy Revenue Superintendents in Midnapore, which are prominently brought to notice in the reports of the Collector of Midnapore and the Commissioner of Burdwan, by whom he is highly commended for his zeal and energy, and for his successful administration under circumstances of no ordinary difficulty caused by the sudden and great spread of irrigation. Sir Ashley Eden also fully endorses the remarks of the Chief Engineer on the officers mentioned in the 105th paragraph of his note, viz., Messrs Lind and Vertannes, and Major Heywood, Superintending Engineer. Mr Hayes, Assistant Engineer, Cossye Division, also the office is mentioned by the Superintending Engineer, Sone Circle.

NOTE

Barometric Pressure—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperature given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allen Cunningham's table, Prof. Lipers on Indian Meteorology, No. CXIII.

Temperature—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 100 feet.

Wind Resultant—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudy sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 10.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To this may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean pressure temperature &c are deduced from observations made at 6 h 10 h, 16 h and 22 h and from the traces of the barograph and thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86, formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygro-metric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground

With reference to your memorandum No 501M of the 27th ultimo giving cover to the Divisional Commissioner's memorandum No 178MM of the 6th October and copy of Government letter No 898 dated 1st idem and its enclosures I have the honor to submit a revised report drawn up in accordance with the instructions contained in the Government letter under acknowledgment

2 I ever since the passing of the Act (II of 1872 B C) the jute year in the Suburb of Calcutta commenced on the 1st of August and ended on the 31st July following. Although therefore the present report has reference to the official year April 1879 to March 1880 (i.e.) one month and 11 days before the present Jute Act (V of 1879 B C) came into force the amount of jute license fees Rs 21 800 as per accompanying statement specifying the jute warehouses in respect of which licenses were granted during the year was realized under the new Act. But of this sum Rs 2000 has been disbursed on account of refund due to certain licensees for excess fees deposited

3 The number of warehouses licensed during the year was 82 71 being old licenses renewed and 11 new licenses including one hydraulic press one hand screw and nine ordinary warehouses for the storage of loose jute only. The new ones have been marked on the accompanying statement with the word "new" in red ink for ready reference

4 The following amounts were charged against the Jute Fund —inspection establishment Rs 2 184 proportion of executive and contingencies at 10 per cent on the collection charge Rs 2 180 total Rs 4 364—and the amount made over to the Commissioner of Police for the maintenance of the fire brigade was Rs 7631 2 6 being three tenths of the whole expenditure on account of the said brigade

5 Three persons were prosecuted under section 12 of the new Act for storing jute in unlicensed warehouses of whom two were convicted and fined and one was dismissed for want of proof. The number of prosecutions for infringement of the law has been very small and this is to be attributed to the gradual increase since the Act came into force of the number of licensed godowns and to the scanty imports of the jute during the year there being consequently ample accommodation for the quantity imported in licensed buildings and less temptation to break the law

6 Sixteen fires occurred in the suburbs during the year under review. A tabular statement exhibiting the property destroyed by the fire and the amount valued thereof is given by the Commissioner of Police also accompanies this report

The average fall of the corresponding period for 24 years S G Office

The mean pressure temperature &c are deduced from the traces of the barograph and thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a tinneashed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on Regnault's modification of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

The greater part of the increase is on the Rajpoot State Railway at Agia

There was also a fall in the Sindh and Punjab and in the latter (noted)

The decrease in volume was also reflected in the declining total October when the total traffic was at its lowest point.

16 —The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale or may be seen previously to that date by personal application at the Office of the Board of Revenue —No 1, certificate of the opium advertised for sale, No 2 report of the examination of such opium

17 —The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the opium manufactured at the Patna factory and the opium manufactured at the Ghazepore factory for the year 1879 80 the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at the Patna and Ghazepore factories and a statement of the average weight of the chests indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on personal application at the Office of the Board of Revenue

18 —The attention of the public is particularly drawn to the fact that of the aforesaid 15 204 chests of the opium manufactured at the Ghazepore factory of the season 1878 79, 1 729 chests consist of opium specially manufactured at a consistence of 75, and also to the fact that the ordinary opium manufactured at the Ghazepore factory of that season is of unusually high consistence. The numbers and the distinctive marks of the 1 729 chests of 75° consistence will be duly mentioned in the notifications of the sales in which they will be brought forward

19 —Any further information respecting weight or quality of the opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade will as heretofore, be furnished to them on personal application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But in accordance with established usage under no circumstances will the Board of Revenue entertain or recognize any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight abstraction of opium or adulteration of the drug which may be preferred on reference to chests after the sale and delivery of the opium for shipment

20 —It is hereby further notified that under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below the Agents in India of the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them are entitled to demand that out of the quantities of opium manufactured at the Patna and Ghazepore factories declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1881 there shall be delivered to them at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the opium so applied for may belong a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of opium required by them at any particular sale within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale provided however that the Agent of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. - Do from the Director of Public Instruction No 6791, dated 3rd November 1880

The Committee appointed to report on Medical Expenditure in Bengal having been requested to report on what subjects satisfactory text-books in medicine exist, and in what they are still required, proposed that the question of these text books should be dealt with by a special committee consisting of Educational and Medical officers possessing a thorough knowledge of the vernacular. The following officers were accordingly appointed a Committee to perform this duty —

Dr R C Chandra of the Medical College

Assistant Surgeon Tamiz Khan of the Campbell Medical School

Ditto ditto Soorji Narain Singh of the Dacca Medical School

Ditto ditto Ramkali Gupta of the Patna Medical School

2 The report of the Committee was on receipt forwarded to the Director for opinion and he has now submitted his recommendations thereon, after consulting with the Council of the Medical College

3 It appears that in several subjects of medical study vernacular text books already exist which are either sufficiently good to be authoritatively adopted as they stand, or would become so if carefully revised by their authors. In respect of those subjects on which text books will have to be compiled, the Director accepts the opinion of the Committee that to select certain English books and require translations of them, possibly in a condensed form, is better than making any effort to secure original works. No attempt need here be made for the present to combine in the projected translations the two requirements of a class book for students and a reference book for practitioners. It is desirable that the text books prescribed for the vernacular medical schools should be cheap, and for the class of students trained at these schools a good set of class books, teaching the leading principles of medical science, is all that is required. Complete treatises for general practitioners will no doubt be produced as the demand for them increases. On the subject of the nomenclature to be adopted in the text books the Director urges the necessity of employing the vernacular terms wherever they exist and are in common use, and the English terms transliterated in all other cases. While objecting to the use of English terms when common vernacular terms would fully convey the meaning, he points out that it would be equally objectionable to hammer out Sanskrit terms hitherto non-existent, for English words in current use which, as a fact, are alone employed by graduates of the Medical College, with whom the vernacular students will frequently have to come in contact. The Lieutenant Governor accepts the views of the Director on the foregoing points. As regards nomenclature, the main principle should of course be to make the books readily intelligible to the class using them.

4 Regarding the selection of translators and translations and the remuneration of translators the Director suggests that "an advertisement should be issued stating that a translation of a certain work was required for use in vernacular schools, and inviting all competitors to send specimens of translation of a selected passage—preferably of a passage to be abridged in the translation. The Committee would then select out of the whole body of competitors some half dozen of the best, the best being determined not merely by their specimen translations, but by that independent knowledge of their professional capacity and position which the Committee would probably have or could easily obtain. To those so selected the final competition should be confined."

The Lieutenant Governor agrees to the proposal to invite competitors for the translations by advertisement, and to test their capacity by calling for specimen translations of passages of the English works, but he considers that competition need not be carried further than the selection of the translator for each work. Once the Committee have made their choice of a translator out of those offering themselves, he might be left to do his work, on the understanding that if he completed it to the satisfaction of the Committee within a reasonable time (to be fixed) he would get a reward from Government of five hundred rupees (Rs 500), and his translation would be adopted as a text book. All the profits from sales would be left to the translator, but some stipulation as to the selling price might be necessary in the interests of the students. Where the original works are copyright, the consent of the authors will have to be obtained to their being translated into the vernacular. The Surgeon General will be asked to make the necessary arrangements with the authors or their publishers at home. Any charges on this account will be borne by Government.

5 Taking now the various subjects in which text books are required the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to pass the following orders on the proposals now before him —

- (1) In Anatomy—As a Bengali text book Baboo Mohendra Nath Gupta's work is recommended and will be temporarily adopted. But the book has many faults, and the author should be required to revise it carefully and pass it through a new edition expunging the objectionable long English sentences, supplying omissions, and, if possible, improving and multiplying the illustrations. If he does this to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Government will pay him a reward of Rs. 500, and finally adopt his work, but if he fails to bring out such a new edition within a reasonable time it will be open to Government to substitute any better work. As in Urdu text book, teachers and students will be at liberty to adopt either the work of Assistant Surgeon S. P. John of Agra, or that of Assistant Surgeon Mahomed Hossain Khan of Lahore.
- (2) In Materia Medica—The Bengali work of the late Assistant Surgeon Doonga Das Kun (Bhoisharjya kutnabali) may be adopted. In Urdu either the work of Assistant Surgeon J. M. Mookund Lal of Agra, or that of Honorary Surgeon Rohim Khan, Khan Bahadur of Lahore, may be adopted as the teachers and students may choose.
- (3) Under Practice of Medicine the treatise by Biboo Gunga Persad Mookerjee B.A. and M.B. in Bengali may be adopted. If Roberts' Hand book of Medicine is translated by any one it will be open to Government to substitute it hereafter. But no reward need be offered for any such translation. There is no satisfactory work on this subject in Urdu. Translations of Roberts' Hand book of Medicine may be invited on the plan sanctioned in paragraph 4 above.
- (4) In Surgery it appears that Assistant Surgeon Zohuruddin Ahmed is now engaged upon a treatise in Bengali which may meet the requirements of the schools in Lower Bengal. The only work at present extant is the Principles and Practice of Surgery by Assistant Surgeon Kasi Chunder Dutt of Dacca. This however requires to be thoroughly revised and brought up to date. The Director proposes that the question of a text book be kept open for the present, intimation to that effect being given to the authors named. When both works are ready the Committee might select either one or the other or leave the choice to teachers and students. The Lieutenant Governor agrees to this course. In Urdu the Vade Mecum of Assistant Surgeon Brojo Lal Ghose, Rai Bahadur of Lahore may be adopted. The author should, however, revise it if he wishes it to maintain its place. The information given on tetanus, erysipelas, antiseptic surgery, and other points is said to be defective.
- (5) Under the head of Midwifery no very satisfactory text book exists either in Bengali or Urdu. Bengali and Urdu translations of Dr. Playfair's work on this subject, in an abridged form should be invited.
- (6) In Medical Jurisprudence the Manual by Assistant Surgeon K. M. Lall Dey Rai Bahadur will suffice in Bengali. Translations of this work into Urdu should also be called for.

6 The Lieutenant Governor desires that the Committee will, in communication with the Director, be good enough to undertake the examination of the revised editions, and the selection of the new translations now called for.

A. MACKENZIE,

Secretary to the Govt of Bengal

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal Political Department

I HAVE the honor to enclose a copy of a resolution passed by the Municipal Commissioners of Rungpore in meeting from which it will appear that Baboo Mohima Runjun Roy Chowdhry zemindar of Kakina in Rungpore has offered a contribution of Rs 7 500 for the completion of the Rungpore drainage scheme.

2 Owing to the great demand for convict labour for the construction of jail buildings in this division the intention of Government to assist the work by the labour of 200 convicts could not be carried out and it would perhaps have been necessary to postpone the completion of the scheme for some years had it not been for the liberality of the Baboo.

3 In sending up the enclosed Resolution the Magistrate of Rungpore says that Baboo Mohima Runjun Roy Chowdhry subscribed another sum of Rs 2 000 when the scheme was first decided on and that he has subscribed liberally to all deserving objects and spends a considerable amount every year in the maintenance of dispensaries and schools.

The mean pressure temperature &c are deduced from observations made at 6 h 10 h 16 h and 22 h, and from the traces of the barograph and thermograph

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a shaded shed open at the sides and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain gauge is one foot above the ground.

HENRY F. BLANFORD,

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, INDIA

29th December 1880

Report on the Fluctuations in Traffic on the Northern Bengal State Railway for the month of November 1880

GENERAL REMARKS

The total weight in all commodities carried during the month under review stands at 332313 maunds which is 61481 maunds in excess of the traffic for the corresponding period of last year

This result is arrived at in spite of a large falling off under the head of jute which at this season is the staple on which we greatly depend

Increases

Food grain Mds 36977
The despatches under this head have been unusually heavy during the month and this too in the face of a decline in prices at the port. The new crop which is estimated to be an 18 anna one is being rapidly cut and as large stocks of last year's crop are still in the district holders are naturally anxious to clear

Gunny bags Mds 8581
The price of mill made bags has been steadily on the increase for some time past and this coupled with the fact that the raw material is not in brisk demand has resulted in large quantities of hand made bags being made and exported

Railway material Mds 13589
This increase is almost entirely due to the despatch of material for the Dhubri tramway

Salt Mds 12343
The traffic in this staple is a sure index of the state of the waterways to our stations. The increase over the weight carried during the same month of last year is satisfactory showing as it does that the low rate at which the article is now carried is gradually undermining the boat traffic

Sugar Mds 1112
This is a mere trade fluctuation

Tea Mds 502
This slight increase is probably due to despatches being held back as pointed out in last month's report

Lumber Mds 3741
Although 3141 maunds of timber commodity has been a fall over a long time this quantity is still below the corresponding month of last year and a general decline in despatches must now be expected as last season's crop is very nearly at an end

All other goods Mds 2055
With the end of the rains a large increase in the traffic coming under this head may be confidently looked for

Decreases

Alum Mds 192
This falling off is scarcely worthy of note a single Commission at once negates it would not be worth counting

Girg Mds 4666
There was a brisk demand for this item at the month last year but for sometime past no transactions have been reported and no purchases have been made except for local consumption

Jute Mds 11110
The total weight of this staple carried during the month stands at 102897 maunds against 114007 in 1879

At the beginning of the month this traffic gave signs of revival stimulated no doubt by a rise of from 1 to 2 annas a maund and all the market kept firm we should probably have topped last year's despatches but towards the middle of the month prices declined and this immediately hindered the effect of clearing despatches

Statement showing Increases and Decreases in maundage of staples carried over the line during the month of November 1880
